New York—WASHINGTON—Paris.

A Special Remnant Day.

ON this day all broken assortments, odd lots, short lengths, remnants from whatsoever cause, are offered at prices very much below their intrinsic value. Hear About Postal Rates on Class Publications.

POSTMASTER GENERAL SPEAKS

Mr. Meyer Tells Hearers He Will Not Recommend Increase on Second-Class Matter—The Third Assistant Postmaster General Discusses the Problems Confronting Publishers.

Members attending the second annual convention of the Federation of Trade Press Associations held a banquet last night at the New Willard, where there was an extensive and friendly exchange of views between the association and the post-office authorities on the question of mails and the postage rate of the publications represented.

Hon. George von L. Meyer, Postmaster General, A. L. Lawshe, Third Assistant Postmaster General, and Maj. John M. Carson, Chief of the Bureau of Manufactures, were the principal speakers. The banquet was served in the Red Parlor, and about 100 delegates sat at the tables and the addresses were listened to with great interest.

Charles A. Stillings, Public Printer, was not present, having sent a letter of regret. John A. Hill, retiring president of the association, presided as toastmaster.

Discussion of Problem. Postmaster General Meyer stated that he had delegated to his third assistant a discussion of the problems relating to the mailing of trade papers, and announced that he would not recommend an increase in the rates of second-class matter.

He said the Post-Office Department is not a money-making concern, and that it did not have to return a cash dividend to its patrons. The only dividend which the Postmaster General is anxious to see is an enlarged service and better distribution of the mails among the people.

A. L. Lawshe, Third Assistant Postmaster General, entered into an exhaustive discussion of the special problems confronting the publishers of trade papers, and presented the memorial sent to the department by them a year ago, and showed its progress through the department and the publishers were not far apart.

He said the attitude of the department is in no way different from its attitude toward other publications, and that this attitude was friendly. Mr. Lawshe praised the trade publication, and complimented the men engaged in making it.

He declared, near the conclusion of his address, that he had demonstrated that the publishers of the trade papers were in good company, and that it was a matter of great satisfaction to him and the Postmaster General to be present and state their views, found to be well in accord with those of their auditors.

Power in Trade. Mr. Lawshe stated that he recognized the trade press as peculiarly educational and a powerful factor in trade and commerce. He said the trade press were the legitimate product of business needs and conditions. He designated them as "specialized publicity" and "invaluable to their constituencies."

Having said a high regard for the trade press in general, Mr. Lawshe said it would be impossible for the department to have anything but respect for it; that as he understood the law it placed this class of special literature on the same plane as that devoted to public information or the arts and sciences.

Maj. John M. Carson, in a brief speech, spoke of the publications of the Bureau of Manufactures and their value to the trade press. He said it had given him satisfaction to find that more and more use was being made of department bulletins.

Speeches were made by Mr. Wakeman, of the New York association, who spoke of advertising in the trade papers, Mr. McLean, of Toronto, who entered a protest against the limitations put upon the papers from one country circulating in the other; Mr. Nile, president-elect of the organization; Mr. Taylor, who made a humorous speech on the committee of arrangements to be in charge. A trip to Mount Vernon is contemplated and other places of interest will be visited.

The afternoon session yesterday was called to order at 3 o'clock, and the members at once settled down to business. J. Newton Nind, vice president of the organization, delivered an address on "Organization Among the Trade Press; What May Be Accomplished," which was followed by a general discussion of the subject.

A. H. Lockwood, of Chicago, read a paper on a subject relating to the trade press, after which the report of the nominating committee was read. Election of officers resulted as follows: J. Newton Nind, of Chicago, president; Henry G. Lord, of Boston, vice president; E. P. Harris, of New York, secretary-treasurer, and the following executive committee: David Williams of New York, C. K. Belfender of St. Louis, W. S. Jones of Minneapolis, and H. M. Taylor of Chicago.

Urgent Fair Treatment. A resolution was passed in which the fair treatment of the trades press on the part of the present Post-office Department administration was acknowledged. An interesting feature of the session was the presentation of a "big stick" to the retiring president, John A. Hill, for his fearless defense of the rights of the association, and for the discipline he exacted from the members of the organization. The morning session of the convention proper was opened by John A. Hill, president, who, after a short address, introduced Robert N. Harper, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who made the opening address of welcome. The annual address of Mr. Hill was made after some routine business had been disposed of.

On the subject of postal reform he made two recommendations that brought out a lively discussion, one that printed matter be put on an equal footing by the Post-office Department, and be required to pay 1 cent a pound, and that one-tenth of a cent additional be paid for each piece, the latter to offset the cost of distributing small packages of mail. The remainder of the morning was taken up by the reading of reports of the secretary and treasurer, the reports of the committee on the part of the association, and the report of the chairman, Charles T. Root, on the work of the postal committee of the Federation for the past year.

Warren, of the New England conference that he has been appointed pastor of the People's Temple in Boston, Mass. Dr. King will enter his new field the first Sunday in November. The Boston church is one of the largest in that city, and was erected at a cost of $300,000.

It is expected that the vacancy created by Dr. King's resignation at the local church will be filled in a few days. Dr. King graduated from Drew Theological Seminary in 1884. He came to Washington in 1905, in which place his labors have been crowned with success. He is the author of several widely read productions.

GEN. GARLINGTON RETURNS

Inspector General of Army Makes Trip Around the World.

Went to Philippines to Investigate Tucker and Other Alleged Scandal on Instructions from Taft.

Brig. Gen. E. A. Garlington, inspector general of the army, arrived in Washington yesterday from Manila, having made the trip around the world since he left Washington on June 4 on a special mission for Secretary Taft.

He sailed from San Francisco and returned by way of the Suez Canal. Gen. Garlington was sent to the Philippines by Secretary Taft to investigate the reports of scandal in the supplying of furniture to the army, and to report on the charges made to the War Department by Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, against her husband, Lieut. Col. William F. Tucker, of the army pay corps.

Gen. Garlington's report in both investigations was left at Manila to await the arrival of Secretary Taft. It is expected the Secretary will act on the reports and cable his decision to Washington. It is known that the reason Secretary Taft withheld his decision in the Tucker case when it was presented to him here, was to get a supplemental report from Gen. Garlington concerning the conduct of Paymaster Tucker in the Philippines.

A. H. Lockwood, of Chicago, is also down on the programme for a paper relating to the organization and its interests, which will be followed by discussions of questions brought up by the speakers at last night's banquet.

The afternoon is to be devoted to social features and the committee of arrangements will be in charge. A trip to Mount Vernon is contemplated and other places of interest will be visited.
