THE NEW CAPE MAY.

A stupendous work has been in progress at Cape May for four years. Taking a section of salt flats, five hundred acres in area, the land-makers have literally turned it bottom side up and spread it over six hundred acres of salt marshes. Two purposes have been accomplished. A land-locked harbor of five hundred acres, thirty-five feet in depth, has been made, and a city site, covering six hundred acres, has been raised on a tidal marsh to a maximum grade of eighteen feet of solid ground. This work is finished, and the city is being laid out. The government, recognizing the value of the harbor, has appropriated a million and a half dollars to connect it by a navigable channel to deep water, and this construction is about to begin.

In a central location on the new site a magnificent hotel has been erected. It is six stories high, built of brick, stone, and steel, and absolutely fireproof. It contains 350 chambers and 150 baths, supplying hot and cold fresh and salt water. The newest hotels of the world have been studied for suggestions as to the construction, equipment, and furnishing of this house, and the best of all have been utilized. It is complete in every detail.

The Hotel Cape May will open April 11th, 1908, and remain open during the year, and thus the exceptional charms of Cape May as an all-year-round resort may be enjoyed through the medium of a completely appointed city hotel on the very brink of the ocean.

POOR TO BE FED AGAIN.

American Salvation Army to Resume Its Help on Sunday.

Distribution of food to the hungry of Washington will be resumed Sunday by the American Salvation Army, at their headquarters, 412 Second street northwest.

Coal, money for rent of the new building, clothing, shoes, boots, and underwear are needed to carry on the work, and donations from the public are solicited by Mrs. Marion Smalley, staff captain.

Mrs. Smalley broke down Monday night from the severe strain of hard work, occasioned by the demands made on the army by the poor during the past few weeks. She was much better yesterday.

Mrs. Smalley advised the unemployed to seek work in other cities. Washington has so little commercialism that it cannot, even in more prosperous times, give every one employment.

SUICIDE BY HANGING.

Employe of Homeward Bound Mission Found Dead in Room.

Without friends or relatives, so far as can be learned by the police, Peter Stohl, fifty-five years old, an inmate of the Homeward Bound Mission, committed suicide by hanging some time Wednesday night, while in a fit of despondency.

Stohl was found hanging from a nail driven in a door jamb in his room in the mission by John and Patrick Casey early yesterday morning. He had tied a window sash cord about his neck, affixed the other end to the nail, and then kicked a chair, upon which he had stood, from beneath him.

Stohl was often morose and despondent. He had been employed at the mission for nearly a year, doing cleaning work and odd jobs for his room and board.

REPORT ON SCHOOLS

Commission Would Become a Permanent Body.

STUART SUSPENDS JUDGMENT

Not Sure He Can Approve Plan for First Year's Business Course in Academic High Schools and the Conversion of Several High Schools into Grammar Schools.

The permanent continuance of the schoolhouse commission, the expenditure of $3,000,000 in the next four or five years by Congress for structural and physical improvement of schools, the abandonment of many school buildings as defective for school purposes, and numerous changes in the system of education are recommended by the schoolhouse commission in its report submitted yesterday.

Supt. Stuart in Doubt.

A. T. Stuart, superintendent of schools, who was one of the signers of the report, generally approves of it. He states, however, that as the inspections were made and all the work done and the report prepared by the commission when Dr. Chancellor was a member, he himself has not conclusively considered all the findings as thoroughly as would be necessary before he could give his approval to all the recommendations.

He is not exactly determined in his endorsement of the proposed establishment of a first year's business course in the academic high schools, the conversion of Central, Eastern, and the M Street high schools into grammar schools, and the details of the proposed law making permanent the schoolhouse commission, although he approves of the main idea of this last proposition.

Congress appointed the schoolhouse commission last year to investigate the schools of the District from a structural and physical standpoint, and to compare conditions with schools in the principal cities of the country. The commission visited New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Boston, Detroit, Cleveland, Providence, Rochester, Syracuse, Brooklyn, Baltimore, Brookline, Mass., and East Orange, N. J.

Of the schools of the District, every one was visited by the commission.

Abandonment of Schools Suggested.

Immediate abandonment of ten public school buildings has been recommended by the commission. Early abandonment of eight more school buildings has also been recommended.

The commission urges the adoption of the sixteen-room and twenty-four-room school building in preference to the eight-room school building as types for consolidating primary and grammar schools.

Special attention was paid to the architectural properties and space requirements of the school buildings. The commission had exceptional opportunities of obtaining the views of members of boards of education and superintendents and officers of schools, as well as of leading architects in the cities visited.

Those who compose the commission are Maj. Jay T. Hensley, Chairman, Commissioner; James Knox Taylor, Supervising Architect of the Treasury, and Prof. A. T. Stuart, superintendent of schools of the District, who replaced Dr. Chancellor on the commission.

General Recommendations.

The commission recommends: Abandonment of the sixteen-room school building as a type, except as the first half of an ultimate sixteen-room building.

Adoption of the sixteen-room building and the twenty-four-room building as types for consolidated primary and grammar schools.

Immediate use of fireproof construction in all new buildings, and the establishment of athletic fields.

Construction of special high schools rather than of polytechnic high schools.

Immediate abandonment of the Potomac, McCormick, Thomas, John F. Cook, Throldick, High Street, Hillside, Banker Hill, Garfield, and Johnson Annex school buildings.

Early abandonment of Webster, Abbot, Bert, Lincoln, Fern, Adams, Bradley, and Jefferson school buildings.

Abandonment of Central and Eastern High Schools as high schools, and the conversion of grammar schools, and the construction of new Eastern and Central High Schools.

Enlargement of McKinley, Business and Western High Schools, and the use of the Business High School for all but the first year of commercial work, instruction which, it is urged, should be given at each of the academic high schools.

Conversion of the present negro high school (M street) into an elementary school, and the construction of a new negro high school with provision for commercial instruction.

Construction of white and negro normal schools or colleges.

Construction of a number of manual training centers, similar to the B. F. French school.

More liberal provision in new buildings for assembly rooms and gymnasiums.

More liberal provisions for playground space and the establishment of athletic fields.

The evening session convened at 7:30 with devotional services, conducted by Rev. C. H. Butler. The choir of the Church of the Reformation sang, under the direction of Mrs. John Weidley.

Rev. G. W. Miller, D. D., presided, and introduced Rev. Dr. Charles Roads, for an address entitled "The Sunday school training its scholars." Rev. C. S. Albert, D. D., gave a discourse on "The world's Sunday school convention in Rome."

Shortly before 9 o'clock the final word to the conference was given by Rev. W. H. Dunbar, D. D. The institute then adjourned.

The committee on arrangements for the convention were Rev. J. G. Butler, D. D., pastor of the Luther Place Memorial Church; Rev. A. P. Hellman, C. H. Hines, and Rev. C. H. Butler.

August Ridgely May Die as Result of an Accident.

August R. Ridgely, sixty-six years old, of 1304 Thirteenth street, is in a serious condition at the Emergency Hospital as a result of accidentally inhaling gas Wednesday night.

The aged man was found early yesterday morning by his wife. He was unconscious, and was hurried to the hospital. At a late hour last night he had not regained consciousness. A small gas stove in the room in which Mr. Ridgely slept was found to be fed by a defective rubber pipe, and to this is assigned the cause of the accident.

Mrs. Sarah Collins Fernandez, head resident of the settlement, described clubs and classes for training in industrial work and housekeeping.

A new organization to be known as the Negro Social Settlement Auxiliary was launched at this meeting.
