IRISH PRIMATE DINED

Cardinal Logue the Guest of Mr. Bourke Cockran.

PAYS VISIT TO MOUNT VERNON

Expresses Admiration for Character of George Washington, and Places Wreath on Tomb—Guest of Honor at Various Catholic Institutions of Washington—Makes Speech.

It was a notable gathering that assembled at the dinner given by Representative W. Bourke Cockran, of New York, in honor of his eminence Cardinal Logue last night.

The affair was informal and was in the nature of a farewell to the primate, who leaves this morning for New York. Seated about the board were distinguished clergymen, judges of the United States Supreme Court, members of Congress, and laymen.

Following the dinner a reception was held in the drawing-rooms of Mr. Cockran's residence. A number of the members present among them William J. Cary, of Wisconsin; Arsene P. Fujo, of Louisiana; James A. Hamill, of New Jersey; Joseph A. Goulden, of New York; Charles V. Fornes, of New York, and Michael E. Driscoll, of New York.

Guests at Dinner.

Seated about the banquet table were Cardinal Logue, Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishops Ryan, of Philadelphia; Glennon, of St. Louis; Keane, of Dubuque; Moeller, of Cincinnati; Farley, of New York, and Ireland, of St. Paul; Bishops O'Connell, rector of the Catholic University; Brown, of Cloyne, Ireland; Mgr. Diomede Falconio, papal delegate to the United States; Mgr. Lavelle, of New York; Rev. Fathers William T. Russell, William Brown, A. Hasselman, S. J., Mr. Justice White, and Mr. Justice McKenna, of the Supreme Court; Senator Aldrich, Speaker Cannon, Representative W. Bourke Cockran, and Richard Harding Davis.

The cardinal put in a busy day yesterday, visiting several Catholic educational institutions and making a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon.

Accompanied by Bishop Brown, of Cloyne, Ireland, and Rev. T. E. McGuigan, W. Brown, and J. Quinn, the cardinal left this city for Mount Vernon at 9 o'clock. Upon arrival, the party was escorted about the grounds by Supt. H. H. Dodge and his assistants.

Pays Tribute to Washington.

The prelate was struck with the simplicity of the surroundings, frequently expressing his admiration for the character of Washington, as portrayed in the mansion and grounds.

"I admire the simplicity of the great general and President, who, after a successful public life, retired to the privacy of this beautiful home and lived in the circle of a contented family."

After viewing all the rooms of the mansion, the cardinal was taken to the tomb of Washington.

"Upon noting the simplicity of the mausoleum," he exclaimed, "I can now appreciate the nobleness of that character which inspired him to the great deeds of his life. This grave is in truth a mirror of Washington's own character."

Places Wreath on Tomb.

Before leaving the grounds his eminence placed a wreath of flowers upon the tomb.

"I was surprised," said the prelate, when he again boarded the train for Washington, "at the breadth and beauty of the Potomac. Why, it is as broad and as placid as a lake."

While passing through Alexandria, Cardinal Logue evinced much curiosity. He asked numerous questions about the city, and in a long conversation about the condition of the Catholic Church in this country and Europe.

At St. Patrick's Academy, earlier in the day, the visiting prelate addressed the pupils and was entertained with a musical programme. One song, entitled "Teddy Bear," was particularly enjoyed by Cardinal Logue.

Makes Hit with Boys.

He surprised the youngsters when he recommended to Father Russell, who accompanied him, that two holidays be given them. The yells that greeted this announcement were given with a vim.

In a brief address to the party the prelate interspersed many witty remarks relative to the school children of this country and Ireland.

"While I must be loyal to the children of the old country, I can safely say they do not surpass those of the new," said he. Accompanied by the Bishop of Cloyne and Fathers Russell, Brown, and Quinn, the cardinal was driven to the Holy Cross Academy, in Massachusetts avenue, where he was again entertained by school children.

The cardinal and his party will leave here this morning at 11 o'clock for New York. It is his intention to visit Niagara Falls and Boston before returning to Ireland.

Speaking of his sojourn here for the past few days, the primate had nothing but words of praise for the people and city of Washington.

HONOR GUEST AT ACADEMY.

Cardinal Logue Addresses Students and Faculty of Holy Cross.

Cardinal Logue was the guest in whose honor Holy Cross Academy, Massachusetts avenue and Thomas circle, gave an entertainment yesterday afternoon. It was a red-letter day in the annals of the academy.

Bishop Brown, of Cloyne, who modestly admits he travels in the cardinal's shadow, received his share of the honors. He did the Rev. Dr. Quinn McIntyre, of the Armagh Cathedral; Rev. Dr. Brown, rector and secretary to the bishop, and Dr. Russell, of St. Patrick's.

The distinguished company was met in the entrance hall and parlors by the Sisters of Holy Cross and their chaplain, Very Rev. Dr. Shanahan, and then proceeded to the large study hall, which was decorated with tall palms and flags. The sunburst of Erin hung side by side with Old Glory.
