FAVOR RAILWAY EXTENSION.

Commissioners Approve Bill to Provide Brookland Service. Favorable action is recommended by the Commissioners on the bill to authorize certain extensions of the City and Suburban Railway of Washington, provided certain small amendments are made. In a letter to Chairman S. W. Smith, of the District Committee, the Commissioners commend the merits of the bill, the object of which is to extend the tracks of the road from Michigan avenue along Monroe street to the subdivision of Brookland, in order to provide car service for that subdivision. Monroe street was recently condemned and a bridge constructed across the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks within the line of the street. The object is to eliminate the present grade crossings at Michigan avenue and to furnish a means of permitting a car service to Brookland. "The Soul of Croesus," by Gerald Villiers-Stuart, author of "In the Balance," etc., an astounding plot, taking up in daring style the theme of wealth, throned, replete with startling situations and thrilling climaxes, will begin Monday, May 11, in The Washington Herald. Do not miss it. One of the most thrilling romances ever conceived. Worthy of Poe at his best. Watch for a city—Randle Highlands.

POOL SHARPS SOUGHT

Got Away with $440 of Heins' Money, He Says.

OWNER OF PLACE IS ARRESTED

Police Are After Men Victim Charges with Investigating Him Into Game. Disputed Money Left with Proprietor Disappears, Says Heins. Reports to Police—Warrants Issue.

Declaring he was swindled out of $440 by pool sharps, Conrad P. Heins, a stranger, stopping at 3011 Cambridge place northwest, complained to the police. As a result, Arthur L. Lipscomb, thirty years old, proprietor of a pool room on the second floor of 211 Seventh street northwest, was arrested by Detectives Parham and O'Brien yesterday afternoon. Lipscomb is held on a charge of owning and operating a gaming table. The police say Lipscomb held the stakes in the game where Heins lost his money. The men who participated in the game have not yet been arrested.

How It Happened. Heins told his story to Capt. Boardman, chief of detectives.

He arrived in Washington a few days ago from the West. On Pennsylvania avenue, between Second and Third streets northwest, about 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, he was approached by a man, who asked him the way to Seventh street.

The man followed one another in quick succession, and the stakes increased, until Heins was out $80. It was then proposed that they play one game at $3 a point. When they ended up the men declared Heins had won. Before paying him the money the men asked him to show that he had enough to have paid the bet of $80, had he lost.

Money Put Up Disappears. He said he did not, but showed a draft for $80. He was told to cash it. He could not do this until yesterday and the bet stood in the meantime. Yesterday morning Heins cashed the draft and met the two men. A discussion started. It was proposed Heins put up $360 against their $30, in the hands of Lipscomb, until the dispute should finally be settled. Heins agreed. Shortly afterward the men disappeared, as did the manager.

Heins reported the matter to the police. Lipscomb's arrest followed.
