Addresses were made by Rev. Father Russell, of St. Patrick's Church; Mrs. Harry Coope, president of the society; Rev. John M. Cooper, of St. Matthew's Church; Rev. Thomas E. McGuigan, of St. Patrick's Church; Rev. A. P. Doyle, Apostolic Mission House; Mrs. Thomas H. Carter, vice president of the society; Miss Mary N. O'Toole, and Miss Jennie D. Glennan.

INCIDENT OF WEDDING TRIP

Mr. Harrison's suit was filed in July last. He stated in the bill filed that the marriage took place July 14, 1901, "at the little church, corner of Thirteenth and L streets," and he informed the court: "While, on our wedding trip up the Hudson River, defendant, in a most serious manner, informed petitioner she only married him that she might secure alimony and be able to live independently."

AGREEMENTS TO PROMOTE HAPPINESS

Finally, he states, matters became unbearable. He and Mrs. Harrison agreed to separate, he to pay her $35 per month. Before this separation took place, however, the parties drew up several agreements as to the conduct of each toward the other, and endeavored to live amicably. One of these agreements, market Exhibit A, entitled "Agreement to Promote Happiness," is filed with the case. The agreement was drawn up by Mr. Harrison, and is composed of several articles, one of them as follows: "Also, Mary F. Harrison agrees she will do her utmost to refrain from speaking to Arthur W. Harrison otherwise than in a friendly and pleasant manner, unless provoked."

NO PRESENTS FOR FORMER WIFE

Another article permitted Mrs. Harrison to inspect the books in his office at any time she desired, and another article provided that Mr. Harrison should give anything of any value to Lella C. Harrison, Harrison's former wife, or her children. In her cross-bill, Mrs. Harrison's statements. She denies she ever struck him, or ever pointed a pistol at him, and she accuses him of being cruel toward her. She states that he gave her a revolver while they were stopping on a lonely hill near Marblehead, Mass., for her protection, and that when he sent Detective McDevitt after the weapon, in September, 1903, she surrendered it without hesitancy.

REFUSED TO REAR FAMILY

Mrs. Harrison, among other things, informed the court that Mr. Harrison appeared to be averse to establishing a home, and "particularly averse to rearing a family, although much desired by her." Mr. Harrison is represented by W. Preston Williamson, and Mrs. Harrison by Brandenburg & Brandenburg. A series of letters which passed between Brandenburg & Brandenburg and Mr. Harrison were filed by the latter with the papers in the case. In the course of these, Mr. Harrison strongly expressed the opinion that Mrs. Harrison should give up her children, and that he stood ready to resume marital relations if she were willing to let bygones be bygones.

BUILDING ART SHOWN

Merit in the Exhibition at Corcoran Gallery. CUNNINGHAM'S PRIZE WINNER. Design for Private Residence—National Museum Drawings on Walls. Offerings by Supervising Architects' Office and Prominent Architects of the United States.

DESIGN FOR PRIVATE RESIDENCE

A majority of the exhibits shown were invited. All have been selected with the greatest care. The standard is high. The field of current activity is fairly well covered. Especially notable are the public and semi-public buildings represented. National Museum Designs. Around the semi-circular wall the design of the United States National Museum, by Hornblower & Marshall, of this city, has been hung. The drawing is exceptionally fine, and shows the building to be simple, dignified, and appropriate. While the building is primarily for museum purposes, it is pre-eminently a work of art.

OFFERINGS BY SUPERVISING ARCHITECTS

Opposite this, on the flat wall, in a similar position, perspective views of government post-offices, designed in the office of the supervising architect of the Treasury, James Knox Taylor, for Des Moines, Iowa, and Atlanta, Ga., are to be seen. Wood, Donn & Demming, Washington architects, have shown a number of exhibits of business buildings and residences. High ideals in business architecture are manifested in the drawings of the Union Trust Company Building. A beautiful and practical structure, in the design of the Treasury Department, admirably adapted to present-day needs, and probably pressed to its limit in regard to height. Relation of burden to support has been well adjusted, and the proportioning of its parts and the employment of ornament well considered.

MR. CUNNINGHAM'S PRIZE WINNER

Among designs for private city residences, H. F. Cunningham, of this city, is exhibiting his prize drawing of a beautiful house. This drawing Mr. Cunningham prepared especially for competition, and carried off the prize given by the Washington Architectural Club. Both exterior and interior are shown. The floors are well laid out, combining cozyness and beauty. The entire exterior bespeaks simplicity and dignity, and indicates the spaciousness of the interior. Mr. Cunningham also won the club prize for a book cover. This design is deeply shaded in green, with Caslon style letters. There are shown several post-offices and public buildings, designed under the supervision of Supervising Architect Taylor, of the Treasury Department, together with drawings submitted by well-known architects in competition for the new City post-office, which have not previously been exhibited.

THE PALAIS ROYAL

The winning design, by McKim, Mead & White, is included in the group, and excited much admiration. This firm has just won the competition for the new municipal building, New York, and has to its credit many notable achievements. REMEDIES FOR TAX EVASION

Bill Would Require Warehouses to Pay Percentage as Trustees. Goods Stored Now Go Free, Although Taxable—Sight-seeing Autos to Be Franchised and Taxed. Storage houses and warehouses, shielding property left in them by persons who have left the city, and those who avoid paying taxes on furniture by putting it in storage, will have to pay taxes on all such property, if a bill on the subject voted by Congress yesterday by the Commission is enacted. Personal Tax Appraisers Nye and Wilson, and Tax Collector Griffin report that the District is deprived of large sums of revenue by the inadequacy of personal tax laws. They point out the custom of placing furniture and other personal property in storage, owners going away from the city for long periods of time and not paying personal taxes on the property. Entrance into storage houses and warehouses cannot be enforced by appraisers. This, the tax collector points out, is why furniture and other property, taxable by law, cannot be appraised, and, therefore, taxes on it cannot be collected. To remedy these evils, the bill sent to Congress yesterday provides: "All persons, companies, and corporations engaged in the business of storing goods, wares, merchandise, or household belongings (pawnbrokers excepted), shall, as trustees for the property stored, pay 6 per centum on their gross receipts from storage and other real and personal taxes."
