

WOMAN ABOUT TOWN

FRAILTIES AND FOIBLES OF HER SEX.

How brief a while, the fickle world To my idea's true! They call it "Copenhagen" now That once was "Alice" blue.

Has Family Tree Fixed. Out on Columbia Heights the other day I met a woman I know, alternately leading and led by an Irish setter pup.

"It is," she answered, obviously ignoring the intimation that she had come by the dog dishonestly. "Do you want to talk about it like a woman's magazine or like a human?"

I signified my desire to be human. "Because," she went on, "I've just two hours of the magazine talk from my sister-in-law, and I'm tired. You know how it goes. If I want something to lavish my affection on, why don't I take one of the poor, love-starved little waifs from the asylum? Why don't I get a dimpled little orphan and give it a good home? I'd like to write a piece about my I don't, but nobody'd print anything so un-maternal and hard-hearted. This dog's the only thing I've ever had in the world that I could lavish affection on. I have three children, but I had to treat them wisely, and bring them up carefully, and not spoil them, and train them and be sensible with young ones. I'm fourteen now, and you know yourself they're all splendidly brought up."

"I can beat this dog just exactly as I please. In the first place, I know what he's going to be. He'll be a thoroughbred Irish setter when he's grown. I don't have to worry over his turning out a bulldog, and I don't have to curb terrier tendencies in him. You do with children, you know."

"My grandmother was a Migs and my husband's grandmother was a Briggs, and there are Spriggs and Sniggs and Higgses in the family tree, and I hadn't any way of knowing what my children would be like. It was hard enough knowing the Briggs and Sniggs and Wiggs tendencies. What it would be like with a waif without a known family tree I'd be afraid to say. My dog is all one kind of a dog—not mixed like a child. You can count on him. When he's sick I send him to the dog man and don't worry. I can teach him to mind with a switch, and I don't have to explain that it hurts me worse to whip him than it does him. I don't feel the least responsibility about him. He can associate with mastiffs and cats and curs, and go right on being entirely an Irish setter. I can pet him all one day and keep him out of the backyard all the next without hurting his disposition at all. He amuses me whenever I want to be amused. There may have been a time when a mother could lavish affection on a child, but she can't now, with germs and ideas in the air, and the cry for desirable citizens worrying her of nights. When a woman has put in twenty years of honest work and earnest endeavor for her children and their health and their happiness and their future, she needs something she can love and not worry about. My dog hasn't any future to think of. He's just a dog, and I'm entitled to attach myself to him without having magazine talk slammed in my face."

Germicide Causes Woe. Talking about germs reminds me of a girl who went to the matinee with me yesterday. She had on a new hat, but she had an unsatisfied air that doesn't right with a new hat, and the hat itself had an unsatisfied look under the brim that doesn't properly associate itself with this season's fashions.

"Mother used to be as comfy to live with as a person of another generation can be," the girl told me, "till she began to read about germs. When she says the Creed now she says 'the communion of the saints,' and puts in to herself 'out of thoroughly sterilized cups.' I went to the very best hair store in town and bought some disinfectants to put under this hat, and mother—mother knows about germicides, but she doesn't know what they do beside sterilizing things. When I asked her this morning what she'd done with my hair things, what do you think she said?"

"You can't tell where the hair came from," she said. "It may have all sorts of germs in it. I put those puffs you bought right into peroxide of hydrogen."

"I suppose I might bleach the rest of my hair to match them, mightn't I?" If I

SOME WELL-FITTING GIRDLES.

There is nothing so fatal to a smart, well-dressed appearance as an ill-fitting girdle, and to purchase a satisfactory one at a price within reach of the average purse is not always possible. For this reason many women prefer to make their own girdles, but the success of the home-made girdle depends so much upon the style that a reliable pattern is essential. The pattern illustrated includes three styles of crash girdle and three of plain, all of them easy and inexpensive to make, and specially designed to meet the exigencies of the present season, when deep girdles and those of Empire style are especially popular. In the medium size 1/2 yard of material 22 inches wide will be needed for the deep crash girdle, 3/4 yard for each of the other crash girdles, 1/2 yard for the deep plain girdle, and 1/4 yard for each of the other plain girdles. Six sizes, 22 to 32 inches waist measure. This pattern may be obtained by enclosing 10 cents to the Pattern Department, Washington Herald, 24 Fifteenth street, northwest, and giving number of pattern (6136) and size desired.

Mrs. Louis C. Barley entertained at cards on Friday afternoon, when her guests were Mrs. Robert W. Fuller, Mrs. William B. Daltgerfield, Mrs. Carroll W. Ashby, Mrs. Samuel G. Brent, Miss Margaret McG. Ashby, and Miss Philippa Watties.

One of the events of the week here has been the opening of the trout season. Countrymen and boys have been out in large numbers, and advantage has been taken of the opportunity to visit the brooks by a number of men from the Homestead. Some of those entertaining at brook-trout dinners have been Mr. J. T. Sweeney and Dr. John F. Culp, among whose guests was Dr. T. J. Gilchrist, of Baltimore. These fishing trips have been the occasion of a number of enjoyable fish-fries, held by the fishermen during a pause in the sport beside the running streams. A record catch was made by Mr. James P. Scott, who returned after a day's outing with a string of thirty-eight trout.

At the Hot Springs the "kur" is being taken as a means of enjoyment, as well as a precautionary measure against physical ills. Baron Haymerle, of the Austro-Hungarian Embassy, went in for a course of treatment at the baths, as has Mr. Reginald de Koven. Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt also took the "kur" during her three weeks' stay. Among others to be seen each day going to the Whitestone bathhouse are Gen. Pope, Mr. John R. Chadwick, Mr. William Rhinelandier Stewart, Senor F. de Sarlano, Mr. Augustus A. Busch, Mr. J. M. Hag, Mr. E. M. Lockwood, Mr. William B. Averill, and Henry M. Plummer.

Mrs. Charles E. Hearne, of Washington, who fell with her horse last week, has recovered from the effects of the accident and is riding again.

HOT SPRINGS, VA.

Nicholson, Mrs. George Hunter, Mrs. J. L. Bruce, Mrs. G. P. Henderson, Mrs. Ella Anderson, Mrs. R. B. Peter, and Miss England.

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

BENEFIT CONCERT TENDERED MR. CHARLEMAGNE KOEHLER.

Mr. Charlemagne Koehler was tendered a benefit concert on Tuesday evening in Rauscher's Hall, which was filled with an enthusiastic audience. Mr. Koehler has attained a leading place among local entertainers as a dramatic reader, and is about to return to the professional stage, where he made a reputation some years ago with Lawrence Barrett and as a leading man with Mme. Modjeska. Mr. Koehler was assisted by Mr. S. M. Fabian, who was in his happiest mood in several piano numbers, Chopin's "Etude," "Valse," and a flat "Polonaise"; Miss Bernheimer, who sang "Awake, Saturnia," by Handel; Miss Lillian May Lewis, who sang two songs; Joseph Battle, Richard Backing, Sydney Lloyd Wrighton, Fernand Pettit, the Philharmonic Quartet, composed of Mrs. Davelle Taylor Welch, Mrs. William Keye Miller, Miss Lillian Chenoweth, and Mrs. Dana C. Holland; the Apollo Quartet, composed of Charles E. Myers, William D. McFarland, Roland R. Rodrick, and Dana C. Holland, and Mrs. Henry Hunt McKee, Miss Maria Lee Goodwin, and Miss Donna E. Riegel, accompanists. Mr. Koehler gave Proctor's "The Message" and Wolsey's Address to Cromwell.

The pupils of the MacReynolds-Koehler Music School gave their spring recital yesterday afternoon in the hall of St. John's College, on Vermont avenue. The following pupils were heard:

Miss Marion Clark, Miss Catherine Cleveland, Miss Ruth Hollingsworth, Miss Alma Kaufman, Miss Esther Hughes, Miss Beatrice Hahn, Master Pierce Wellington, Miss Helen Stone, Miss Clara Bergman, Miss Elizabeth Quigley, Miss Emily Kohl, Miss Edith Bernman, Miss Justina Hill, Miss Kate French, Miss Helen Swamsted, Miss Olga Menzel, Master Francis Walter, Miss Leonora Richards, Miss Rebecca Rose, Miss Martha Rose, Mrs. Anna Menzel, Miss Florence McDonnell, Miss Laci Rose, and Master Irving Cleveland.

The Rebekah Orchestra, H. W. Weber conductor, gave a concert Friday evening in Hamilton M. E. Church for the benefit of the Hamilton Guard Boys' Brigade. They were assisted by some of the leading local talent, and gave a splendid concert.

LEADER IN MUSICAL WORLD.

Miss Clara Drew will give a pupils' recital to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The singers who will be heard are Mrs. Adele Davis, Miss Helen Stone, Miss Carolyn Murray, Miss Diana Norton, Clarence Childs, and Arthur Tirrell.

Mrs. Bradley McDuffie will present Miss Ethel Johnson, a promising young soprano, and Earl Temple, tenor, in joint recital on Thursday evening, May 28. They will be assisted by Miss Ruth Ebaugh, a young piano student of the Virgil Clavier Piano School, of Washington. Miss Olive Demarest will play accompaniments.

Mrs. Wilford Witts, assistant organist at the Cathedral, has resigned that position, and accepted an organ in Chicago. Her position at the Cathedral is yet unfilled. Mr. Edgar Priest is organist and choirmaster.

The pupils of Miss Beulah Beverly Chambers, assisted by Miss Julia Peck, soprano, gave their spring recital last evening in Gunston Hall, with the following programme:

Overture, "The Water Carrier" (Cherubini), two pianos, Miss Carolyn Williams, Miss Helen Rieth, Miss Mary Darnoch, and Miss Chambers. Tarentelle (Bartoloni), Miss Velma Hitchcock, with second piano accompaniment. Nocturne (Op. 9), Miss Josephine Mathea. Variations (Von Wilms), Miss Tuleta Chittim, with second piano accompaniment. Song, "Cantoreta" (Haydn), Miss Julia Peck. Les preludes, symphonic poem (Liszt), for two pianos, Miss Carolyn Williams and Miss Chambers. Liebestraum (Liszt), Mr. Bernard Shir-Cliff. Liebestud, from "Tristan and Isolde" (Wagner), for two pianos, Miss Carolyn Williams and Miss Chambers. Value brillante (Moszkowski), two pianos, Mrs. Duff Lewis, and Miss Tuleta Chittim, Miss Evelyn Stevens, and Miss Mary Darnoch.

Master Shir-Cliff is the gifted son of Mrs. Shir-Cliff, soprano in the quartet of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. He has great talent and temperament, and quite carried off the honors among the pianists of the evening.

The Washington Chorus Club will give its fifth and last concert of the season Wednesday evening next in Odd Fellows' Hall. It promises to be an interesting and novel affair. It is designated as an "evening of popular songs," and a large number of the up-to-date songs have been arranged in medleys, and will be sung by the club. Each piece will have the solo part taken by some member of the club, and the chorus will be made up of two dozen members of the club who will be heard in short individual parts.

Mr. E. C. Heintz, formerly of New Orleans; Mr. C. F. Stanley, from London, England; Mr. F. C. Schaefer, basso of St. Andrew's P. E. Church, will have special numbers; Mr. James H. Cathell will give some humorous selections, and Miss Mary Griffin, who scored such a hit in the club's third concert, will sing Anna Heil's famous "China Song." William J. Palmer will direct, and Lewis A. Potter, Jr., will be the accompanist.

Oscar F. Comstock gave his May studio recital Tuesday last, and a good-sized audience was in attendance in spite of the downpour of rain. Miss Lillian Dann and Miss Mercedes Godoy made their first appearance and created a favorable impression. E. G. Davidson's clear tenor voice was heard to good advantage in several songs, Schubert's "Who Is Sylvia?" being especially well done. Miss Helen Calhoun assisted Mr. Comstock in the performance of Gade's charming nozzelette arranged for two pianos by Busoni.

At this morning's service in Trinity Church, Mrs. Charles Denhardt will sing "I Will Extol Thee" from Mollie's oratorio, "Abraham."

Mr. and Mrs. Otto T. Simon will close their studios at 1729 P street and sail for Europe on May 31. They will spend the summer in Italy and on the continent and return here in October.

LETTER TRAPPED FUGITIVE.

Missive from Father Fell into the Hands of Another Man. Wilkesburg, May 23.—George Snyder, wanted in Bloomsburg on the charge of highway robbery and attempting to murder Joseph Himolos, is now in jail there, having been captured in Harrisburg by means of a letter written to him by his father, Reuben Snyder, of Centuria.

This letter said in part: "Me and mam says good-by to you. She's all broke up about it, and so am I. If you da write, sign your name in some other way."

This letter, addressed to general delivery at Harrisburg, was given to the wrong Snyder, who turned it over to the police and they captured George Snyder.

He Could Be Trusted.

From Success Magazine. A train from the North pulled into the station at Charlottesville, Va. An elderly man thrust his head out of a window of a day coach and summoned a little colored boy. The following colloquy ensued:

"Little boy, have you a mother?" "Yassuh."

"Are you faithful to your studies?" "Yassuh."

"Do you go to Sunday school?" "Yassuh."

"Do you say your prayers every night?" "Yassuh."

"Can I trust you to do an errand for me?" "Yassuh."

"Well, here's 5 cents to get me a couple of apples."

NOVELTIES FOR THE AUTOMOBILE TRIP

Advertisement for automobile travel novelties. It features several illustrations of products: a suitcase, a steamer trunk, a collapsible drinking cup, and a cooking outfit. Text descriptions include: 'Between a Suit Case and a Steamer Trunk', 'Collapsible Drinking Cup', and 'The Cooking Outfit'. The advertisement promotes these items as essential for travelers, highlighting their compactness and utility for long trips.

THE Introduction of the automobile into practically universal use has made it necessary to invent a collection of utensils that may be used on long trips, when luncheon must be prepared by the roadside. The principal feature of these handy implements is their compactness, for it is necessary that they should fit into the smallest space possible. The travelers, or auto tourists, of course, need garments necessary for perhaps a week's trip, and they must include for the women not only the blouses and necessary change of underwear and neckwear, but also a semi-dressy gown that will do to don in the evening at the hotel where the party stays for the night. For such a trip only one hat is necessary, one short skirt, and one auto veil and, of course, a coat to protect from rain and cold. These garments will do for everyday wear for the whole tour. To contain the clothing needed for comfort a large dress suit case must be carried by each member of the party, and a new variety (a compromise between a suit case and a steamer trunk) with a top tray is very useful. The semi-dressy gown may be placed in the tray so that no weight will spill it, everyday things may occupy the bottom of the suit case, or one might keep the tray for the white neckwear and blouses and use the lower section for the gown and those other garments which are necessary. For such letters, magazines, and books as the travelers require may be purchased in a sort of envelope case that will easily contain any and all of those paper comforts that help to while away a weary hour while the punctured tire is being mended or the gasoline is being bought in some neighboring township. Of course, not the least important of the traveling aids is the little stove where one can make coffee, boil eggs, or prepare such eatables as may be needed. The little alcohol lamp gives the maximum of heat with a minimum of fuel, and it includes as many appliances as possible for the cooking of a variety of foodstuffs. It is doubtful if it would be possible to broil a bird or to cook any game that may be found by the hunters of the party, but neighboring trees and a few matches will provide a fire that will cook anything from an ox to a rabbit!
