MILK BADLY HANDLED

Inspector Complains of Union Station Facilities.

REPORTS TO HEALTH OFFICER

Cans Left in Hot Sun for Hours and Subject to Contamination from the Trains—Difficult for the Dealers to Get Their Morning Supply Promptly from the Cars.

Present conditions for unloading and handling milk at the New Union Station are disgraceful and should not be tolerated," is the report of Milk Inspector Robert A. Guerrant, to Health Officer Woodward yesterday.

The report submitted to Dr. Woodward is as follows:

"A long platform has been erected for unloading milk, the length of which is approximately ten or twelve cars. The cars are run in by this platform and the milk unloaded in the hot sun, there being no protection whatever save a shed that has been recently erected at one end of the platform and extending for only a distance of about two car lengths, which is wholly inadequate for the purpose intended, to protect the milk. There are always from four to five cars to be unloaded, and frequently I have observed that milk and baggage cars are shifted in on this same track, thereby preventing the use of the present shed.

The platform being so narrow and always piled up with empty cans, makes it next to impossible to roll milk to this shed, and the result is it is set out of the car on the platform exposed, and there remains until loaded on wagons.

Exposed to the Sun.

"I observed today one lot of milk, about twenty cans, was placed on the platform and remained there for over an hour. The dairyman, however, brought along a canvas which was spread over it, thus affording some protection. I find there are various shipments of smaller quantities which receive this same treatment, except it does not even have the protection of a canvas thrown over it. It may be said by the railroad company that the milk might remain on the cars until ready to roll it on wagons. This is not practicable, for the reason that the first man who applies for his milk may find that it was the first to be loaded on the car, and necessarily all the other milk would have to be moved that nearer the door before the other can be gotten at. Again a good many dealers buy milk from both Virginia and Maryland, and necessarily it is on different cars. When this is the case, the driver usually has a helper who is unloading one car while he, the driver, is unloading another, and, of course, one lot of milk is left exposed while the other is loaded.

"This condition should not be tolerated, when it could be remedied by the expenditure of a few hundred dollars. Surely the facilities offered at present for the handling of milk and cream by the railroad company is not in keeping with the new $15,000,000 depot. I recommend that steps be taken immediately with a view to having the present shed over the platform extended for at least three car lengths, or say 150 feet. I am Informed that Mr. George W. Martin, superintendent of the Washington Terminal Company, is in charge, and the proper person to be communicated with."

Smoke Inspector Busy.

The smoke evil has come under the ban of the health department in its crusade to make Washington a clean city, and yesterday Inspector Whitaker reported that he had visited thirty-six plants and found but three violations of the smoke law. He has asked for the issuance of a warrant for the arrest of the manager of the Georgetown Gas Light Company for unlawful issuance of smoke from its plant.

Dr. Woodward has issued instructions to his inspectors to look out for the public baths in the city—places known as Turkish and Russian baths. The instructions to the inspectors are to see that these places are conducted in a clean and healthful manner.

A manufacturer of "snowballs" whose place of business is in Southwest Washington, is likely to be arrested, according to a report made by an inspector who visited his place. "Snowballs" are made of scraped and crushed ice, flavored with an extract of chocolate, vanilla, or lemon. The health department is generally suspicious of them, and will send some of them to an analysis to determine the purity of the extracts.

In one of the cases of violation of the law by keepers of lunch rooms, heard before Judge Aukam, yesterday morning, the defendant was dismissed. The judge held that inasmuch as the defendant was the manager, and not the proprietor, he could not be held. The judge, however, directed that a warrant be issued for the proprietor.

In addition to the case of where the manager was not held responsible, there was one conviction. This case was that of a proprietor of a lunch room in the northwest section of the city. He was found guilty of maintaining a filthy place and was fined $2.

Runaway Boys Are Recaptured.

Four runaway boys, who escaped from the Reform School several days ago, were captured yesterday morning. Frank Teague and John Lee were caught by one of the guards a short distance from the institution. Charles McDaniels and William Roland were arrested by Baltimore and Ohio railroad detectives as they stepped from a freight train at Cumberland, Md.

Salt-water Bathing at Chesapeake Beach.

Situation Is Quiet.

Commander James H. Glenn, commanding the gunboat Yorktown, which is patrolling the seal fisheries on the Alaskan coast, telegraphed to the Navy Department yesterday that the situation there is quiet, and that five Japanese schooners are sealing in the vicinity of St. Pauls Island.

TONY OFF TO WIN FORTUNE

Fourteen-year-old Lad Uses Bicycle as a Charger.

Little Fellow's Mother Died Recently and He Flees When Stepfather Threatens to Put Him Away.

Tony Will, fourteen years old, who lives near Hyattsville, Md., started out to see the world yesterday, mounted on an old bicycle that formerly belonged to his mother. He carried a box strapped on the rear of the machine, in which he had what clothing he thinks he will need for a little trip.

George J. Will, the boy's stepfather, called on the police and asked them to assist him in locating the runaway. The stepfather unfolded a pitiful tale.

The boy's mother died a week ago, he said, and there being no one at home to take care of the boy, he started out to run things to suit his own ideas. His ideas did not conform with those of his stepfather, and Friday it was arranged to send Tony to an institution until he should attain his majority. The boy heard of the plan. Yesterday morning he took his mother's bicycle from the woodshed, and mounting, rode away. Later he returned and tried to gain entrance to the house. He used several keys in the attempt, but was unsuccessful, and again went away. Mr. Will said he believed the boy was trying to get to his mother's jewelry box, containing jewelry valued at several hundred dollars.

The police have sent a description of the boy all over the city and to near-by towns.

DEATH OF JUDGE A. J. BENTLEY

Veteran of the Civil War Dies in Habn, Me.

Had Been Connected for Years with the Department of Justice—An Honorable Career Ended.

A dispatch was received in Washington yesterday announcing the sudden death of Judge Alexander J. Bentley, of this city, at his summer home at Habn, Me. None of the circumstances concerning his demise is yet known to his Washington friends.

Judge Bentley was well known in this city, having been connected with the Department of Justice for many years. He was born at Zanesville, Ohio, on October 22, 1828. He received his training in law in Cincinnati, and was admitted to the bar in the courts of that city.

Judge Bentley was a veteran of the Mexican war, and was appointed examiner of titles in the Department of Justice by President Cleveland, an office he held with distinction and credit until about the beginning of the present year.

Last January, on account of falling health and vigor, Judge Bentley retired from the position.

He was retained by the Attorney General, and set to the performance of some congenial tasks of a personal nature during the balance of the winter and spring, working leisurely in the department up to the time of his departure for the North about a month ago.

Judge Bentley is survived by one son, Alexander G. Bentley.

Watch for a city—Randall Highlands.
