Coats, Neckpieces, Muffs.
Furs Purchased Now Will Be Stored

Nothing newer or better will be shown later, when the season opens. This is an authoritative showing of rare furs, with about one-third to one-half taken off of the regular prices.

We positively guarantee that all of the Furs in this sale are as represented.

In addition to the made garments and pieces in this sale we are showing a collection of rare skins. If you prefer, you can select the skins and style and have your furs made up to special order and be given the benefit of the August Sale prices.

We guarantee the quality and the style, and in addition will store and insure them until October free of charge.

The Secretary of Commerce and Labor and Mrs. Straus, who are taking their summer outing on the government yacht Mayflower, spent five very gay days at Bar Harbor. They left there last Wednesday and are making a slow trip back to Long Branch, where they will spend the summer, stopping at the various lighthouses along the coast which were not inspected during their trip up the coast. Rear Admiral and Mrs. Adolph Marx are also on board the Mayflower.

During their stay in Bar Harbor the largest dinner given in their honor was that by Mr. and Mrs. John S. Kennedy in their place, Kenarden Lodge.

Mrs. Charles Grayson Dulin and son, Mr. Albert R. Dulin, and daughter, Miss Beatrice Dulin, accompanied by Miss N. G. Jacquith, of Lawrence, Mass., made a trip to New London in their touring car for the week-end, going from there to New York, and after a few days' stay there continued their journey.

The first dance of the season in Newport was given on Saturday evening by Mrs. Robert Golet in her cottage, when all the young people of the cottage colony were present.

Mrs. Nathaniel Talbot James, of San Francisco, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Margaret Evans James, to Mr. Hartwell Craig MacCartney, of this city. It is expected the wedding will take place in October in the home of the bride's mother. Miss James has spent the past four years in Washington, and returned to her California home about two months ago. She has been the object of almost constant entertaining since her arrival there, and it was a matter of very great surprise to her host of friends that she had but just returned there to be married.

Mr. MacCartney is the son of the late Lieut. C. A. MacCartney, U. S. N.

Miss Harriet Blaine Deale, of this city, and her son, Walter Edmunds Deale, have arrived at Bar Harbor for the season, and are at the Belmont.

Mrs. Philip M. Prescott, of this city, who is, as usual, at Narragansett Pier for the summer, entertained at a smart dinner on Saturday night at the Casino in honor of Miss Carol Newberry, daughter of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, who is spending the summer with her parents in their summer home at Watch Hill. The other guests were the Misses Sadie and Carolyn Murray, daughters of Gen. Murray, who are guests of Miss Newberry; Miss Elsie Robinson, Miss Marguerite Prescott, Mr. John Welch, Mr. Sherburne Prescott, Mr. Henry B. Kees, Mr. William C. Morrow, Mr. Paul Jones, and Mr. Warner Jones.

Ketterlinus, of Philadelphia, entertained at a bridge whist party of eight tables in her honor, the prizes being of special value.

Miss E. S. Stevens, of Washington, has arrived at the St. Sauveur, at Bar Harbor, for the rest of the season.

Mrs. James Francis Burke, wife of Representative Burke, of Pittsburgh, who is now in St. Louis visiting relatives, will join Mr. Burke in Pittsburgh the middle of this month and go for a visit in Beau-Marie, Canada.

One of the most interesting occasions of the Bar Harbor season was the celebration by Mrs. J. Frederick May, of this city, of her eightieth birthday at Strawberry Hill house. Mrs. May was one of the pioneer cottagers of Bar Harbor, and has not missed a season there for many years.

Miss Martha Platt Worthington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Worthington, of Georgetown, is in Columbus, Ohio, visiting her uncle, Mr. Edward H. Thacher. Miss Worthington is a grand-niece of the late Donn Platt, who was one of the most brilliant journalists of this country. She is the great-granddaughter of Gov. Thomas Worthington.

The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Louis Stern, of the Hebrew Temple on Eighth street, in the presence of only the members of the bride's and bridegroom's families. A buffet wedding supper followed the ceremony. The bride wore a gown of white batiste and carried a shower of bride roses. After the supper the bride and bridegroom left for their wedding journey to New York and Atlantic City. The bride wore a going-away costume of Copenhagen blue, with blue hat to match. Their future home will be in this city. Mrs. A. H. Kaufman and her son, Jake Kaufman, of Richmond, came up for the wedding and are the guests of the bride's mother, Mrs. H. Kaufman.

The New Hampshire ran into the gale when about 150 miles off the shoals, but the big boat weathered the winds and rough sea very satisfactorily. Rear Admiral W. S. Cowles, U. S. N., who is aboard, will return to Washington to-morrow.

HARMONY PLEA WINS

No Steam Roller Needed by Saengerbunders.

SLATE GOES THROUGH QUICKLY

Candidates Agreed Upon by Managers Accepted by Members to Avoid Fection and Insure Victory at the Coming National Fest—President Waldman Renominated with Others.

If the steam roller method of the manager of the Republican party, and the stone crusher system of his Democratic colleague are regarded by them as the acme of practical politics and the most perfect type of the science of nominating candidates and silencing the opposition, they are laboring under a great delusion. They are, in fact, only beginners in the game of politics compared with the leaders of the Washington Saengerbund, who should be awarded the palm as champions of candidate nominators and annihilators of opposition.

Taft and Bryan were unknown quantities in the discussion of the news of the day at the Washington Saengerbund yesterday. Sunday papers were hardly looked at, the exclusive theme of conversation being the nomination of officers. The astute managers of the various booms pleaded their cause with great success before the meeting was called to order last night.

Opposition Gives Up.

Steam rollers and stone crushers were relegated to the rear and harmony was the watchword and basis upon which the administration forces made their silent fight. With harmony in the society and good will everywhere, the Washington Saengerbund will win the first prize at the National Saengerfest, which will be held in New York next year. If opposition candidates are nominated it will engender friction and prospects to win the prize will grow less, and in all likelihood disappear altogether. This was the argument used by the managers, and they won the day. The various candidates for the important offices having been agreed upon before the meeting was called to order, there was little else to do for the assembled members but to ratify the work accomplished by the managers.

A. Kimmel, the venerable vice president of the Saengerbund, in the absence of John Waldman, the president of their society, occupied the chair. He stated the object of the meeting, and the members nominated the following candidates for election.

John Waldman, president; Hugo Schulze, vice president; Adolph Brauner, financial secretary; Frederick Carl, treasurer; William A. Hannemann, librarian; Prof. Henry Xander, musical director, and the following board of trustees, six to be elected: Frank Claudy, Henry Scheuermann, Dr. George W. Baier, Albert Lepper, Charles Diermer, Charles H. Baumann, A. F. Joers, Otto Borcharding, Harry Minister, Hugo Lossau, John Reideker, and Carl Xander.

Election in September.

The constitution of the Saengerbund prescribes that the annual election of officers take place on the first Sunday in September. The Franz Schubert Maennerchor, of New York, will be on their annual visit to this city on that day, and will be the guests of the Washington Saengerbund at a Kommerz to be held at the National Hotel. It was deemed advisable, therefore, to change the date of the election of officers, and the board of trustees was authorized to select a date and notify the secretary, who will advise the members by postal card.

The regular rehearsals of the bund will be taken up again, and the committee in charge of the concerts the coming season has promised the society that every effort will be made to make this season's musical programmes the most attractive and artistic in every respect.

CAPT. BADGER NOT NEXT.

Superintendent of Naval Academy Will Not Be Rear Admiral.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Annapolis, Aug. 2.—Considerable speculation was indulged in at Annapolis today over the press dispatches from Washington, which placed the superintendent of the Naval Academy as senior captain of the navy and next in line for promotion to the rank of admiral, through the retirement of Admiral Cowles.

The dispatch was in error so far as its reference to the superintendent is concerned. The highest captain is Capt. William J. Barnette, and Capt. C. J. Badger, the superintendent of the Academy, is considerably farther down the list.

The last superintendent of the Academy to reach the rank of admiral while assigned to duty at Annapolis was Rear Admiral Willard H. Brownson, who afterwards became head of the Bureau of Navigation, and incidentally a member of the Presidents' Annapolis Club, through the trouble over the placing of a medical officer in command of the government hospital ships.

Capt. Badger will not arrive at a higher rank until after his tour of duty at the Academy has expired.

THREE BIG MISSION MEETINGS

Rev. Drs. Robert M. Moore, Cockrell, and Spangler Exhort Audiences from the Central Mission Gospel Wagon in Different Sections of the National Capital.

In point of attendance, the three meetings held under the auspices of the Central Union Mission yesterday were the most successful conducted by that institution this season. Speaking from the large Gospel wagon of the mission, Rev. Selwyn K. Cockrell, of the Marvin M. E. Church South, addressed an audience of 500 persons at First street and Florida avenue at 5 o'clock.

At 6 o'clock a crowd equally as large was present at the corner of Seventh street and Louisiana avenue to hear Rev. Dr. Robert M. Moore, of the Foundry M. E. Church, preach on "The prodigal son." This sermon was considered by those in charge of the mission to be one of the most masterly lessons taught the city's unfortunates in years.

Last evening the members of the mission were addressed by Rev. John Spangler, of Georgetown, who spoke on the evils of socialism and anarchy, and incidentally explained Scriptural lessons applicable to every day life.

Urged Not to Despair.

Rev. Mr. Cockrell in his discourse chose as his text "For the son of man is come to seek that which is lost." He explained that Christ in His mercy offered Himself up as a sacrifice for man's salvation, and urged those who were not leading upright lives to repent and seek God's saving grace.

"We should always remember, no matter how low we may have sunk, that God is willing and anxious to receive us into His kingdom," said the clergyman.

"The trouble with many men is they give up in despair and fail to rely on the Master's promise. What is the loss of a home or any other material setback compared with the loss of a human, an immortal soul? I tell you men to cast off the shackles of bondage that are tying you down to an unhappy life and ask God's help to reform."

In beginning his sermon at the bank corner at Seventh street, Rev. Dr. Moore related the parable of the prodigal son, and gave several examples to show how men to-day, unheeding the call of loving friends, lead lives similar to that described in the gospel. "Unhappily, though, many of the unfortunates of this city never sum up sufficient courage to go back to their homes, beg forgiveness, and live Christian lives. Either through carelessness or malice, many young men of the present time sink into idleness and go on living sinful lives, never heeding the lesson Christ gave by His life on this earth."

"Men, I say to you take courage; arise and go to your father's house."

Should Not Be Cowards.

"Don't be cowards. Even though you are hard pressed, stand up and fight your evil habits like true brothers of Christ. Almight God will see you through if you call on Him."

An exhortation to the men to free themselves from the wiles of the Satan was embodied in the address of Rev. Mr. Spangler. "It is the case in some instances where men are unfortunate and forced to live in poverty, to grasp the teachings of socialism and anarchy in an effort to get back at their more fortunate brethren. My friends, if these people ruled, the order of things would revert to primeval days when might was right. They shout for more freedom and some men unknowingly and foolishly take up the shout, so it spreads. Do you know that the greatest man is the greatest worker. No man can be absolutely free, and it is false for these fanatics to assert that men should distribute equally the goods of this world with his brother."

"If you would be rich get out and work. See that you have God with you, and all will be well. Take Him as your master and your body will be your servant, otherwise your body will master you and enslave you to its passions. What matters it if we enjoy ourselves in this life and lose our soul?"

The services closed with hymnal singing by the Chace family.

SERMON UNDER THE TREES

Large Congregation Attend Services at Mount St. Alban.

Rev. Dr. Pierce, of Philadelphia, Preaches on the "Double Aspect of the Cross."

With the waning day filtering its rays of light down through the thick branches of the old oaks and an assemblage of more than 800 people standing with bared heads, the boy choir of the Cathedral of St. Alban marched from the chapel yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock to the foot of the marble peace cross, where the Sunday open-air service was held, according to custom.

Following the boys in their black and white vestments was the section of the Marine Band, which furnishes the music for these services, and Rev. Dr. Charles C. Pierce, for twenty years a chaplain in the United States army, stationed in this city, and now rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, of Philadelphia.

With the minister, the large congregation seated about on camp stools in the cooling shade of the trees read respectively the vesper service leading up to the sermon by Dr. Pierce, who frequently occupied this same pulpit when he was in this city. Taking as his theme "The double aspect of the cross," he said:

"The cross was set forth before mankind first of all as a sacrifice for sin. The first thought which it draws from a survey of the cross is that of expiation, and this church of ours is in no uncertain mood as to the personality of Him who hung upon the cross.

"Our church has no room for the thought that Jesus was only a good man among good men, and a Son of God only in the sense that all of us may become sons of God if we strive to realize the dignity of our birthright. The voice of the church is not bidding men look at the cross to behold the perfection of altruism."

WOMEN AIDING BRYAN.

Mississippi Fair Ones Start Club to Raise Campaign Funds.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 2.—A special from Rosevale says that the women of that city have organized a Bryan Liberty Club, the object of which is to "raise funds for the campaign to elect William J. Bryan, President of the United States."

It is proposed to have similar organizations in every precinct in the county and State. The officers of the club are as follows: Mrs. Walter Sillers, president; Mrs. L. C. Harris, recording secretary; Mrs. T. W. Nugent, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. L. Sutherland, treasurer.

The women of Mississippi are not allowed to vote and few of them have any desire to have the ballot, but the organization of clubs of this character shows that they are much interested in the present political situation.

WOODWARD STARTS CRUSADE.

Washington Man After Sheep-killing Dogs in the Berkshires.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Lenox, Mass., Aug. 2.—S. W. Woodward, of Washington, who owns the finest summer place in the Berkshires, and who is the heaviest taxpayer in the county, is making a crusade against the all-year residents and their dogs.

Mr. Woodward keeps a drove of fine-blooded sheep that are the pride of his heart. A few days ago dogs owned by the year-around people killed two of them. Mr. Woodward had been bothered with the dogs before, and with the killing of the sheep he started in to get even.

The summer residents banded and, with Harry A. Whitney, of New York, Mr. Woodward planned a raid of the county treasury. Mr. Woodward sued for $200 for dead sheep, Mr. Whitney for $20, and there are still other suits to come.

A SHIRT-WAIST COSTUME FOR A MISS.

The very practical frock shown in the accompanying illustration represents the most approved ideas in shirt-waist costumes for young girls, and will particularly appeal to the girl who likes smart, up-to-date effects. The blouse is made quite in the newest style, with plain three-quarter sleeves set into the extremely wide armhole without fullness, and displays the broad, effect now so much in vogue, the ticks on the shoulder contributing to this. It closes at the center-front, under the wide bow pleat. The seven-gore skirt, which is also one of the new models, has a pleat at each seam and an inverted pleat at the center-back, an arrangement which insures a trim effect about the hips and a graceful flare at the hem. Sicilienne, serge or any material that will pleat well would serve for making the costume, though the blouse may, if preferred, be modeled in silk or a tub fabric. For the fifteen-year size eight and three-eighths yards of material twenty-four inches wide will be required to make the entire costume. Four sizes, 14, 15, 16, 17 years. This pattern may be obtained by enclosing 10 cents to the Pattern Department. The Washington
