

HALSEY HAS EYE ON SEAT IN CONGRESS

Senator Daniel's Nephew Says He May Make Race.

GLASS WILL SEEK RE-ELECTION

Don P. Halsey, while in Washington, announces it is likely he will make race in the Lynchburg District—He was once a page in House of Representatives.

State Senator Don P. Halsey, of Lynchburg, who is a nephew of United States Senator John W. Daniel, and who at one time was a page in the House of Representatives, while in Washington yesterday announced that he is seriously thinking of entering the race for Congress from the Sixth Virginia district, which is now represented by Carter Glass, one of the most brilliant editors in Virginia.

Senator Halsey made the announcement of his candidacy conditional upon the decision of John L. Lee, the Lynchburg lawyer, that he does not cherish Congressional aspirations and upon the reported decision of Representative Glass that he may not stand for re-election.

After Senator Halsey had made his announcement friends of Representative Glass were seen, and the authoritative statement was made that he will seek re-election. It was stated that the rumors of Mr. Glass' retirement were based upon his consideration of entering the race for governor. Since he has decided not to enter the gubernatorial contest, the barriers to his making the race for Congress again were removed.

When seen at the Metropolitan Hotel, Senator Halsey, who is a bright lawyer of Virginia, said:

"It is, of course, too early to make any definite or decisive statement, as the primary will not be held until the summer of next year, but in view of Mr. Lee's statement that he will not be in the race and the fact that Mr. Glass has stated that he does not expect to be a candidate again, I will say that I think it more than likely that I will run for Congress from the Sixth district for the next term. Ever since the time when, over twenty years ago, I was a page in the House of Representatives, I have cherished the ambition to be a member of that body, and I hope that the situation may so develop as to afford that ambition its realization when the election is held next year."

REMOVED FROM MOUNDVILLE.

Federal Convicts Are Taken to Fort Leavenworth Prison.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Moundville, W. Va., March 31.—Eighty Federal convicts, now confined in the West Virginia penitentiary, will be taken to the Federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., to-morrow afternoon. This will leave only 100 Federal prisoners here, and these will be taken to Fort Leavenworth in a few months.

Among the convicts to be taken away to-morrow will be the notorious negro Ada Cross, who has slain three persons. While confined in the penitentiary here over a year ago she cut another negro's throat with a pair of scissors. Warden Mathews says she is the most desperate prisoner in the West Virginia institution. She has made a number of attempts to kill the matrons.

All Federal prisoners will be taken to Fort Leavenworth, Kans. Since Oklahoma has become a State all her convicts confined in the Fort Leavenworth prison have been taken back to the prison in that State. This leaves very few prisoners in the Fort Leavenworth prison, and it is for this reason that all Federal convicts will be taken there.

West Virginia was paid 50 cents a day by the government for keeping these prisoners, and the removal of the 180 convicts will mean a loss of considerable money each year to the institution.

Counter Move Against Prohibition.

The liquor interests feel confident of blocking the efforts of the temperance people.

The woman, the police say, said she stole them to place on her father's grave. They were recovered at various houses occupied by negroes, where, it is alleged, she had left them. Among the articles stolen was a dove, which the police found adorning a gate post, where it had been placed by some youths. Hattie will be given a hearing in the Police Court to-morrow morning.

LADDER BREAKS AT FIRE.

Twelve Men Injured Fighting Blaze in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., March 31.—Twelve firemen were injured this afternoon in a fire which broke out in the tea and spice establishment of McCormick & Co., Concord street, a second alarm being necessitated within three minutes of the first signal.

The flames were discovered in the third floor of the five-story building filled with spices valued at a large amount of money.

Hardly had the first cry of "Fire!" gone up than confusion broke out among the many girls employed in the place, and a rush was made for the stairway.

In the excitement several fainting, and fear was entertained that the panic would develop into a disastrous stampede.

As the stairway was not caught by the flames, however, the girls were calmed and eventually all got out unharmed.

Quickly on the spot in answer to the two alarms, the firemen threw up their ladders and got their engines into action, and the fight against the blaze was begun in earnest.

A scaling ladder from No. 1 truck was thrown against the wall and a dozen men from the truck company and from No. 4 Engine Company sprang on the rungs.

When the first man had reached the top and the others were right behind him the ladder broke, throwing all to the ground in a heap.

None of the men was seriously hurt, but all were more or less cut about the head and shaken up and bruised about the body.
