

STOPS SUNDAY WORK

National Tube Workers Get Day of Rest.

BLAST FURNACES CANNOT STOP

Ucle of William Ellis Corey Says President of Steel Corporation is at Last Coming to His Senses; that When Reminded of Sunday Rest Before His Reply Was Insulting.

McKeesport, Pa., May 9.—The United States Steel Corporation today placed in effect at the National Tube Works its first move toward total abolition of work on Sunday throughout all its mills in the country.

Its galvanizing department, which is the National Galvanizing Company, for the first time in years declined to turn a wheel on Sunday and its force of police were instructed to place under arrest any workmen who insisted on working today.

There were several rows between the police and foreigners, who did not understand that every one was to lay off hereafter on Sunday. The move is to be gradually spread through the mills of the Steel Corporation in the Pittsburgh district, and not an unnecessary wheel is to be turned on Sunday.

Furnaces Will Run. Blast furnaces and other concerns required to be kept running all the time when once started, will be the only departments where men will be employed.

This order being put in effect not only applied to the running of mills, but to the repairing of mills as well. Hitherto, most of the repairing work has been done on Sunday, but it has been figured out by the corporation as well as by the large independent owners that to give the mill one day of absolute rest in seven will prove a saving of time and money in the year's run. It is also figured that men getting their regular Sunday rest can turn out as much work in six full days as has hitherto been done in seven days.

Corey's Uncle Pleaded. When J. B. Corey, uncle of President William Ellis Corey, of the United States Steel Corporation, heard that the move to stop Sunday work in mills had been started by the corporation, he said:

"Good. Ellis is coming to his right mind at last. For thirty years I have been fighting against Sunday work in the Carnegie mills here. When my nephew was made head of the Steel Corporation I wrote reminding him of his good raising and begging that he would stop the Sunday work. His reply was an insult."

MRS. WILSON DEAD.

Southern Authoress Victim of Heart Failure in Mobile.

Mobile, Ala., May 9.—Mrs. Augusta Evans Wilson, the Southern authoress, died suddenly here today of heart disease. Mrs. Wilson was up and around this morning and apparently in the best of health, considering her advanced age. Shortly before 9 o'clock she was seized with heart trouble and died before any assistance could be given her. Mrs. Wilson was born at Columbus, Ga., May 8, 1835. She came to this city more than sixty years ago, and had resided here continuously ever since. Her marriage, in 1858, in this city, to Col. L. M. Wilson, a well-known banker in his time, was an event that was long remembered. He died in 1891, and there were no children. Mrs. Wilson was the author of "Inez," "A Tale of the Alamo," "St. Elmo," "Infelice," and many others. Her last book, "Devota," was written in 1907.

RELIEF CONVENTION ENDS.

Friends of Unemployed Hold Mass Meeting at Cooper Union.

New York, May 9.—The National Committee for the Relief of the Unemployed, which was in convention the greater part of last week, wound up today with a mass meeting in Cooper Union.

Before the mass meeting took place a demonstration under the auspices of the unemployed committee took place at Rutgers Square, where it had been announced meal tickets would be given out to the unemployed, each good for one meal. The demonstration took place at noon, about 400 persons attending. J. E. E. How, chairman of the committee, began to give out the meal tickets, and was at once surrounded by a mob of East Siders, who had nothing to do with the original unemployed committee. They grabbed for the tickets and secured some of them. A parade was attempted by the unemployed, but the police stopped it because no permit had been secured.

Negroes to Hold Meeting.

A mass meeting under the auspices of the Interdenominational Missionary Society of the United States, Cuba, Liberia, Hawaii, and the Philippines, will be held next Sunday afternoon at the Cosmopolitan Temple Baptist Church. The subject under discussion will be "Should the United States aid in the evangelization of Cuba, Liberia, Hawaii, and the Philippines?" Prominent members of the National Negro Baptist Evangelistic Convention will address the gathering.

LYNCHBURG MAN DIES.

R. H. Boatwright Was an Old Railroad Employee.

Lynchburg, Va., May 9.—R. H. Boatwright, aged about sixty-eight, a Confederate veteran, Mason, and member of First Baptist Church, died very suddenly this morning of heart disease. He leaves a wife. The deceased came here from the employ of the Atlantic River and Kanawha Canal Company, and was with its successors, the Richmond and Allegheny Railway, and then the Chesapeake and Ohio, until his death. For many years he had been general agent, but at the time of his death he had been commercial agent for a year. He was a native of Fluvanna County.

RAVENS NOT ON THEIR JOB

Modern Elijah Waits Four Days for Food from Birds.

They Disappoint Him, and Now He Is Just Getting Over Insipient Pneumonia.

Chicago, May 9.—E. M. Brock, the aged Zion City man, who lay four days under a tree during the recent storms waiting for the ravens to feed him, is slowly recovering from the frightful exposure.

The Dovelets, Volivians, and other sects in the city deny that Brock belongs to their faction. He seems to be a religious enthusiast who drifted into Zion, hearing that it was the refuge for all sorts of peculiar beliefs.

He had read where Elijah, by exercising faith, had been fed by the ravens, and he concluded to try the plan himself. He had sufficient fat to last four days, during which he prayed incessantly, but the fierce April tempest came up and the ravens were not on the job.

Poor Brock, drenched to the marrow, chilled almost to death, and on the verge of starvation, finally gave up the attempt and suffered himself to be carried back to his cabin, where he was dried out and fed. Owing to his advanced years, he will probably never recover from the exposure, as his health was poor before he went through his rough experience.

Work was not any too plentiful in Zion, and he was not able to do much work in any event, so he thought to emulate Elijah. The best he got was insipient pneumonia and neurasthenia, and his faith received an awful jolt.

NOW SOBS FOR $6,500,000

Judge Dewey Asks that Amount of $500,000 Be Raised.

Former Boston Jurist Files Third Motion in Libel Suit Against Good Government Association.

Boston, May 9.—Henry S. Dewey, a former judge of the Municipal Court of this city, has filed a motion in his libel action against members of the executive committee of the Good Government Association, asking that the amount in damages asked by him in his original writ be raised from $500,000 to $6,500,000. A few days ago Judge Dewey asked to have the damages raised from his original figures to $750,000, but yesterday he put in a new motion, requesting that the amount be made seven figures. He also asked that the court place his case on the short list, forthwith, and have it especially assigned for trial.

The judge's suit was brought by him about three years ago against Lawrence Mitton, Eliot N. Jones, John Mason Little, George E. Wether, and Nathaniel P. Thayer, of the association. The organization has for several campaigns taken considerable interest in the various candidates, and issued just prior to the election a pamphlet giving sketches of the nominees for all offices and advising the voters how to vote. During the campaign of 1905, when Judge Dewey was an independent candidate for mayor, the organization issued a pamphlet, and the same men that the alleged libelous statements concerning the plaintiff were made.

WANT LONGER SESSIONS.

West Virginia Wants to Avoid Extra Legislatures. Special to The Washington Herald. Elkins, W. Va., May 9.—While there appears to be much public sentiment for longer sessions of the legislature, in order to avoid extra sessions, and while the constitution does not forbid amendments, there is no widespread sentiment for a new organic law for West Virginia. It is indeed, doubtful if it would be possible to secure the services of such a representative type of men as gathered at Charleston on January 16, 1872, to formulate a constitution for their State.

WILL HARNESS YOUGH RIVER.

Power Will Be Used in Garrett County Mining Plants. Special to The Washington Herald. Oakland, Md., May 9.—The engineering corps of the Western Maryland Coal and Coke Company, composed of New York and Philadelphia capitalists, who propose to harness the Yough River, in Garrett County, have been engaged in locating the dam water-power sites. The dam will furnish water power to generate electricity. The company will install a large mining plant near Kendall, Garrett County, and will provide electricity for driving other plants.

In the near future the Oakland and Friendsville, Garrett County, the latter being the seat of extensive mining operations, will soon be connected with an electric railway.

WHISKY RAID IN COVINGTON.

Forty Gallons of Spirits Found in "Dry" Town. Special to The Washington Herald. Covington, Va., May 9.—The town officers have been quietly working for some time on the theory that whisky was sold here unlawfully, and early this morning Town Sergeant Kincaid, assisted by five other officers, armed with search warrants, raided the Cale House, H. C. Vaughan's place, a colored restaurant, kept by Joseph Smith. They confiscated about forty gallons of whisky, thirty of which was found at the Cale House.

Henry Ray Hill, who was in charge at the Cale House, and Ray Hill have been arrested, and later released on bail for a hearing May 11.

At the colored restaurant, Smith and five colored men were arrested and put in jail. Vaughan and Ray Hill have been suspected for some time and had been warned. Both are well known and well connected. Vaughan is employed by the Adams Express Company as a driver.

NEW EDIFICE DEDICATED.

Over $1,000 Raised at Mount Rainier Christian Church Exercises. Special to The Washington Herald. Mount Rainier, Md., May 9.—Dedictory services were held this afternoon at the Mount Rainier Christian Church, in Thirty-third street, when the new building was formally turned over to the congregation. The building is thirty-six feet wide by eighty feet long, and has a basement and a mezzanine on the rear portion, which will be fitted out for Sunday school purposes.

A large number of Washingtonians were present and participated in the exercises, as well as visitors and members from Langdon and Woodbridge. Rev. C. C. Waite, pastor of the church, conducted the services. Rev. F. D. Power, pastor of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church, and Rev. George A. Miller, of the Ninth Street Christian Church, made interesting and eloquent addresses. The appeal of Mr. Miller for funds, with which to discharge the church's indebtedness, was met with liberal response, approximately $1,000 being subscribed, a good portion of which was contributed in cash, and the balance in pledges payable within sixty days. Music was furnished by a young women's chorus, assisted by Miss Mary Boyd McCord, who presided.

During the services at the church in the morning, the builder, A. L. Foster, was presented with a gold watch by the congregation as a testimonial of their appreciation.

ON FULL TIME.

Baltimore and Ohio Shops at Gratton Are Now Busy.

Special to The Washington Herald. Gratton, W. Va., May 9.—Orders have been issued placing the Baltimore and Ohio shops at Gratton on full time. This means fifty-nine hours work per week instead of forty-five hours. This is the first time in fourteen months that the shops have been on full time—ten-hour day, with nine hours on Saturday.

BUYS CHAUTAUQUA HOTEL.

Washingtonian Will Conduct Mountain Lake Park Hotel. Mountain Lake Park, Md., May 9.—The Chautauqua Hotel at Mountain Lake Park, which has been conducted for two seasons by W. C. Dunnington, has been sold to a Mr. Ries, of Washington, D. C., who, it is understood, will greatly improve the property. A hotel company of Washington, which operates a number of summer resort hotels throughout the country, is negotiating with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for the purchase of the Oakland Hotel, at Oakland.
