Indestructo Trunks.

(Practically Indestructible.)

THE STRONGEST, lightest, handsomest, and most commodious trunks on the market to-day. In fact, the highest achievement in the art of trunk making.

These trunks have a real individuality, and they look just as practical, strong, and substantial as they really are. They are guaranteed to stand more abuse, more careless handling, will travel more miles and remain longer in good, serviceable condition, without the annoyance and expense of frequent repairs, than any other trunk made. But this is not all. The manufacturers are not satisfied to rest there. To make your "assurance doubly sure," the "Indestructo" Trunk comes to you with an insurance policy against fire, accident, wreck, collision, carelessness, and neglect while in the hands or custody of any common carrier, for a period of five years. And further, they are protected against loss by a registration system, which means that every trunk is numbered. When you purchase a trunk, simply send your name and number on the postal that accompanies the trunk to the manufacturers, and they register the name of the owner beside the number. If your trunk happens to get lost, the number is sent to the manufacturers, and they immediately notify you of the whereabouts of your trunk. Could you ask for anything more? See window display, or drop into the Traveling Goods Department, in the basement of the Equitable Building, on F street, and examine at leisure the wonderful merits of this trunk.

We Are the Sole Washington Agents.
Prices, $22.50 to $32.50.

Mrs. Taft Hostess at White House Garden Party.

PRESIDENT HELPS RECEIVE

Many Guests Enjoy Tea on Knoll Near Where the Marine Band Concerts Were Once Held—Mrs. Phoebe Hearst and Son Among the Guests. Judge Herron Meets Old Friends.

No prettier party could be imagined than the garden party of Mrs. Taft yesterday on the grounds of the White House, south of the mansion. This was the second of a series of afternoon teas which, the weather permitting, were intended to be held in the garden. The first one, however, was held practically indoors, owing to the stormy day. It was a matter of great delight to the 250 guests yesterday that they could roam at will in the private grounds of the President and his wife under the historic trees, with the President and his wife standing near by. Mrs. Taft received the guests on a knoll to the east of where the Marine Band used to be stationed for its Saturday afternoon concerts. Col. Cosby made the introductions, and the President remained by his wife's side throughout the afternoon. She wore a graceful gown of soft rose pink chiffon silk, with a drapery of sage green and pink net, made in semi-Greek fashion, the neck of the bodice filled in with soft, creamy lace. Her hat was of gray brad, a large crown, but medium-sized brim, turned down all around, and a wreath of pink roses all about the crown.

Capt. Archibald Butt and the other aids stood at intervals between the entrance and the receiving party, and ushered the guests to the garden. They entered the White House by the usual entrance for receptions—at the east side—and went through the inclosed corridor which opens onto the lawn toward the south. The corridor was banked with beautiful hydrangeas in full bloom, and the little fence which surrounds the inclosure close to the house was a mass of pink ramblers in bloom. The Marine Band was stationed at the side of the music was most effective and beautiful, in the open air and not so close to the guests.

Judge Herron, of Cincinnati, father of Mrs. Taft, who is now a guest at the White House, sat in a large chair and to the side of the President and Mrs. Taft, and had a little reception of his own, meeting many old friends and making new ones. Mrs. Lewis Moore was also about him much of the time. She has many friends in Washington and was busy greeting them all the afternoon.

The tea table was extremely handsome, the mounds of red roses making a beautiful contrast to the green all about. The guests included Mrs. Sherman, wife of the Vice President, the British Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce, the latter in white embroidered muslin, with white hat and pink roses; the charge d'affaires of Mexico; the Greek Minister, Mr. Coromilas; the Portuguese Minister, Viscount d'Almeida; the Belgian Minister and Baroness Moncheur; the military attaché of the French Embassy and Countess de Chambrun; the counselor of the French Embassy and Mme. Lefevre-Fontalis, and scores of the younger members of the diplomatic corps. Mrs. Hearst, in a gown of dark blue and white, with white hat; the Italian Ambassador and Baroness des Planches, the latter in a striking tailored costume of white serge, made with long coat and several plain, and wearing a large black hat with stiff black feathers; the French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, the latter in a charming costume of black and white silk, with white hat and deep red roses; the Japanese Ambassador and Baroness Takino, in a white messaline; the British Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce, the latter in white embroidered muslin, with white hat and pink roses; the charge d'affaires of Mexico; the Greek Minister, Mr. Coromilas; the Portuguese Minister, Viscount d'Almeida; the Belgian Minister and Baroness Moncheur; the military attaché of the French Embassy and Countess de Chambrun; the counselor of the French Embassy and Mme. Lefevre-Fontalis, and scores of the younger members of the diplomatic corps.

One of the most interesting visitors of the afternoon was Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, widow of former Senator Hearst, of California, who was escorted by her son, former Representative William R. Hearst, of New York. Mrs. Hearst was a quaint figure, who stood out in contrast to the other women present. Like a charming picture of the grande dame of a quarter of a century ago. Her hair, turned gray, rather than her Washington friends are accustomed to seeing it, was worn in the same style, parted in the middle and drawn well down at the sides, as when she was the leader in the Senatorial circle, as the wife of the richest Senator. Her gown was a rich one of gray and white figured silk, with a soft, filmy gray chignon over it. Her only ornament was a handsome brooch of amethysts, and her bonnet was of gray, like her gown, with purple and lavender flowers. On leaving she was greeted with respectful delight by some of the men at the doorways, who were doing duty at the White House during Senator Hearst's career, when he and Mrs. Hearst were frequent and familiar visitors at the Executive Mansion.

Mrs. Hearst has spent much of her time of late years abroad, and has recently returned to this country. The government was bought by the Italian government, and is used as their embassy here.

An interesting, but informal, tea was held at the Congressional Club yesterday afternoon. The tea was informal, because of the tea for which Mrs. Taft has issued cards, for the Friday afternoons in this month, the members deciding not to have outside guests on those afternoons, but to leave the afternoon free to the first lady of the land. Mrs. Champ Clark, hostess of the afternoon, read some of the most interesting portions of her book, "The Autobiography of a Politician's Wife," which is a rehearsal of Representative Clark's first campaign in Missouri. After her reading, different women took up the discussion of their experiences, and related scores of interesting and humorous tales of their lives as wives of politicians.

Among these were Mrs. Scott, wife of Senator Scott, of West Virginia; Mrs. Hughes, wife of Senator Hughes, of Colorado; and Mrs. Hull, wife of Representative Hull, of Iowa.

Mrs. Sladen, of Texas, and Mrs. Woodyard, of West Virginia, presided at the tea table. Among the members present were Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Gore, Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Tillman, Mrs. J. B. Perkins, Mrs. Joseph Shibley, wife of former Representative Shibley; Mrs. Gaines, of West Virginia; Mrs. Taylor, of Ohio, and her house guest, Miss Callaghan, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Woodyard's house guest, Miss Elliott, of Parkersburg, W. Va.; Mrs. Burns, of Tennessee; Mrs. Wiley, of Buffalo; Mrs. Hare, of Georgia; Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Burleson, of Texas, and Miss Maverick, house guest of Mrs. Sladen.

Miss Alice Wright, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Wright; Miss Frances Miller and Miss Carrie Leina, with Mrs. Ben.

CONE IS MADE CHIEF

Will Head the Steam Engineering Bureau.

VICTORY FOR LINE OF NAVY

Appointment Was Promised by the President Several Months Ago, but the Announcement Was Held Up Because Senator Hale Declined to Give His Approval of Officer.

Official announcement was made at the Navy Department yesterday of the appointment of Lieut. Commander Hutch I. Cone, U. S. N., to be Chief of the Bureau of Steam Engineering, and not long afterward his nomination went to the Senate from the White House. It was announced on Thursday that the incumbency of Chief Constructor Capps since last December was illegal. Yesterday there was no chief, and Assistant Secretary Winthrop signed the mail of the bureau, and ran it generally.

The final appointment of Lieut. Commander Cone is considered a victory for the line of the navy. They have been fighting steadily to prevent the transfer of control of a line bureau to a staff officer, as was done by the Newberry reorganization plan. Lieut. Commander Cone was promised the position several months ago, before President Taft's inauguration. After Mr. Taft became President the Secretary of the Navy announced that the place would go to Lieut. Commander Cone, but the appointment has been held up until now. This has been due, it is generally understood, to the attitude taken by Senator Hale, who declined to approve the selection. In the meantime, Lieut. Commander Cone has been on leave and on special duty in Washington. His appointment is a distinct advance. As far as rank and pay go, he advances from the grade of lieutenant commander to that of rear admiral. His fellow-officers have recently laughingly called him "a rear admiral in advance." Lieut. Commander Cone won distinction by taking the torpedo flotilla around South America. Later he was fleet engineer of the Atlantic fleet.

RELIEVE ADMIRAL PENDLETON

Rear Admiral Harris to Command Philadelphia Naval Station. In line with the policy of President Taft to place naval officers on the active list at the important naval stations, orders were issued yesterday by the Navy Department relieving Rear Admiral E. C. Pendleton, retired, from duty as commandant at the navy yard and station at Philadelphia, to take effect May 23. Rear Admiral U. R. Harris is appointed to the post. His last duty was with the Pacific naval station.

GOODRICH QUILTS POST.

Rear Admiral No Longer Commander of Brooklyn Navy Yard. New York, May 14.—Rear Admiral Goodrich, U. S. N., retired, will quit his post as commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard to-morrow morning, and Capt. Joseph B. Murdoch will take charge. The rear admiral's retirement will be made impressive with ceremonies. He will go direct from the yard to the Grand Central Station and take a train for Albany, and will go thence in a motor car to join his family at his home at Pomfret, Conn. Admiral Goodrich, it is expected, will not be superior of the navy yards, a position created for him in the closing days of the Roosevelt administration. The admiral said to-day:

"While nothing has been done to abrogate the order creating the department and assigning me to it, no directions have been given as to making it an active position. I do not expect to be retained in active service." This morning Maj. Gen. Wood, accompanied by several members of his staff, paid his last official call on the admiral.

THREE CHOIRS ENTERTAIN.

Those of Holy Name Society Give Musicals and Dances. The three choirs of the Church of the Holy Name gave an entertainment and dance last night in National Rifles' Armory. It was the first event of the kind the choirs had given, and with an attendance of 250, the workers under Miss Anna Doyle were rewarded for their initiative.

The entertainment consisted of musical numbers, vocal and instrumental, and comic songs. Following an overture by an orchestra led by John B. Salb, the chorus, consisting of the male vesper choir of twenty-one voices, the senior mixed choir of fifteen voices, and the "O'clock choir" of forty-one voices, sang "Merry Life" and "Song of Illyrian Peasants." A comic song was given by John B. Irving, and a selection was sung by a male quartet composed of James Dunne, Mr. Watan, Alfred Handboe, and John Salb. Messrs. Salb and Handboe played a piano duet. The closing number was a selection by a quartet composed of Mrs. Irving Taylor, Miss Marie Myers, James Dunne, and John B. Irving. The accompaniments were played by Mrs. Hughes, organist of the Church of the Holy Name. At the conclusion of the entertainment a dance was given.

Towers Return to Old Home.

Utica, N. Y., May 14.—Charlesman Tower, former Ambassador to the Courts of St. Petersburg and Berlin, with his family, will to-morrow take up his residence in the Tower ancestral home at Waterville, a few miles south of this city, after many years absence. The house was occupied twenty years ago by Reuben Tower, grandfather of the present owner.

Gets English Acroplane Record.

London, May 14.—S. F. Cody, the results of whose unfortunate experiment with an army acroplane at Aldershot consisted chiefly of a weekly test in Funch, yesterday flew a mile at a height of thirty feet, which is the English record. The Prince and Princess of Wales, who were watching the military maneuvers at Aldershot, heard of the flight, and crossed Laffan's Plain and asked Cody to repeat the flight. He attempted to do so, but smashed into an embankment after he had gone 250 yards.
