FUNERAL PLANS MADE

Mrs. G. M. Hubbard Will Be Buried To-morrow.

JURY ESTABLISHED PRECEDENT

Citizens Aroused by Testimony at Inquest—Closing of Streets Said to Be a Frequent Occurrence—District Officials Say Practice Is Dangerous—Dr. Glazebrook Explains.

Funeral services for Mrs. Gertrude M. Hubbard, widow of Gardiner G. Hubbard, and victim of an automobile accident in Connecticut avenue on Wednesday last, will be held at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon at the Church of the Covenant.

The services at the church will be preceded by services at the Hubbard home at Twin Oaks, Woodley lane, when only members of the family will be present.

Dr. Charles Wood, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, will officiate, assisted by Rev. George C. F. Bratenahl, of the Episcopal Cathedral Close, who was a personal friend of Mrs. Hubbard. Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Honorary Pallbearers Named.

The honorary pallbearers will be Gen. John W. Foster, Charles D. Walcott, Director of the Geological Survey; Charles C. Glover, Gen. George M. Sternberg, former Surgeon General United States Army; Prof. Willis L. Moore, chief of the United States Weather Bureau; Hillary Herbert, former Secretary of the Navy, and Mr. Crouter, of Philadelphia.

Acting Coroner Glazebrook, who conducted the inquest into the death of Mrs. Hubbard, yesterday said the six men who composed the jury established a precedent in calling the driver responsible for her death, and referring the question to the grand jury for further investigation.

Dr. Glazebrook said it was practically a "hung" jury, and he explained that a "hung" jury was unheard of in a coroner's inquest.

Testimony heard in the inquest revealed that both sides of the roadway at the scene of the accident were closed to traffic, causing vehicles to use car tracks. The custom of closing a street while making repairs has aroused many citizens of the District, who are condemning the practice as it exists in and around Washington.

Five department officials say it is dangerous to close both sides of a street under reconstruction, as it would be perilous to drive fire apparatus along a car track at rapid speed. Ambulance drivers would also be forced to use car tracks in responding to an emergency call, endangering the lives of drivers, physicians, and patients.

Dangerous Instance Cited.

As an instance of the dangerous custom, citizens cite Fifth street northwest, between D and E streets, which was recently closed for the purpose of resurfacing it with asphalt. For several days while the work was in progress vehicles were forced to use car tracks in the center of the street. Persons living on each side of the street claim they were inconvenienced, as delivery wagons could not stop before houses in the block, but were stopped at the corner of D or E street and the goods carried to the houses by Lemuel Bradshaw, inspector of the engineer department of the railway, brought out at the inquest the fact that the closing of both sides of a thoroughfare is of frequent occurrence in the District. Citizens declare they do not understand why this is not prohibited by police regulations or by the engineer department. It is said a body of citizens is planning to bring the matter to the attention of the Commissioners.

Board Will Pay Tribute.

The board of visitors of the Government Hospital for the Insane, of which Mrs. Hubbard was a member, met yesterday afternoon and designated Judge William A. Maury and Dr. William A. White a committee to prepare a tribute to be spread upon the minutes. Mrs. Hubbard was devoted to the interests of the institution.

The board will attend the funeral in a body. It is composed of Dr. F. M. Gunnell, U. S. N., president; Judge William A. Maury, Surg. Gen. Walter Wyman, Marine Hospital Service; Dr. G. Lloyd Magruder, Mrs. Kate M. Sharp, former Surg. Gen. George M. Sternberg, U. S. N.; Rev. John M. Schick, D. D., and Scott C. Bone.

The hearing in the case of William Martin, a negro, who is charged with having assaulted Gen. Floyd King with intent to kill at Falls Church, Va., will be held at that place next Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Mayor Hawhurst, of Falls Church, will preside at the hearing.

Dr. I. M. Rubinow, chairman of the educational department, Council of the Civic Center, speaking at a recent meeting of the council, raised the question of medical school inspection in the District, and stated Washington was far behind other American cities in this respect. "Medical school inspection," said Dr. Rubinow, "should begin with a systematic effort to counteract the effect of a school as a center of contagion for the children. It is one of the most important obligations of the city government."

Adult foreigners attend night sessions in large numbers.

Never before in the history of the night schools has the attendance of adult foreigners been so great or their interest so manifest, as this year, according to the statement of Superintendent Stuart, who is receiving reports of the first month's work. At 7:30 o'clock on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings, the Jefferson, Franklin, and Gales schools are crowded with Greeks, Russians, Italians, Germans, and other foreign adults, anxious to take the English, mathematics, and history courses. Many women are also taking the prescribed courses of cooking taught in the night schools.

CONSTRUCTIVE MIND NEEDED

Banker Explains Diplomatic Interests in China.

C. A. Conant Believes Next Minister to China Should Be Man of Financial and Economic Training.

New York, Oct. 22.—A vigorous statement of the sort of diplomacy needed to promote American interests in China was made yesterday by Charles A. Conant, the well-known banker, who devised the Philippine currency system and has given much attention to affairs in the Orient. "What is needed, in my opinion, in China," said Mr. Conant, "is a representative of the United States possessing not only diplomatic ability, but a man of economic training and constructive capacity. A man who will help China to preserve her integrity by developing her financial and economic machinery and welding it into a cohesive whole will do more to preserve the integrity of China and promote the interests of the United States than can be done by the routine methods of old-fashioned diplomacy. China needs railways, a uniform currency system, and the reorganization of her public finances. Leading Chinese statesmen already appreciate the importance of carrying out these reforms. A minister who understands their importance and places their achievement above displays of gold lace or petty political maneuvering will be in a position to make suggestions beneficial alike to the Chinese empire and to this country. "The problem of stable exchange alone is one of the most important to be dealt with in China. As the recent minister to that country tersely put it in a recent talk, currency reform lies at the basis of all other reforms. Railway extension will be greatly hampered without a uniform currency in which passenger and freight rates can be paid. What has been accomplished by the United States in this direction tends to support my position.

"What is needed in an American minister is sufficient knowledge of these subjects to make wise suggestions and sufficient diplomacy to use persuasion without coercion. China is one of the greatest sovereignities, and naturally resents the efforts of foreigners to dictate her policies.

"Her more far-sighted leaders are appreciating the fact, however, that she must study the material and economic development of the West in the past century, and must adopt that which is suited to her needs. What America needs in China is an ambassador who is neither anti-Japanese nor pro-Russian, but one who is first of all an American and will hold the balance even between all other powers and their representatives."

JOHN H. GHEEN DEAD.

Prominent Business Man Will Be Buried Monday Afternoon.

Funeral services for John H. Gheen, a prominent business man of this city, who died yesterday morning, will be held on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence, 1518 Park road northwest. Rev. Mr. Gheen came of one of the oldest Quaker families in Pennsylvania and was seventy-two years old, having been a resident of this city for the last thirty-five years. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. D. Sadie Curtis, and two sons, George A. and John O. Gheen, all of this city.

Col. Armes' High Steppers.

Col. George A. Armes, U. S. A., retired, drives one of the finest teams on the Potomac speedway, which he purchased during his summer outing in New York. While at Moravia he learned there was a beautiful $2,500 team of Hambletonians that had taken the first prize at several State fairs during the past summer, and he at once arranged for their purchase and they have just arrived, with a $1,000 Morgan colt which he proposes to break to the saddle. The colonel now thinks he owns three of the best horses in this city, and his experience in the cavalry service for so many years ought to make him a good judge.
