

AGED MAN KILLED BY A STRAY SHOT

Bullet Pierces Heart of Pension Office Employee.

JOSEPH C. SQUIRES IS VICTIM

Walking in Path in Patch of Woods at Fifteenth and Adams Streets Northeast When a Shot Fired by Unidentified Person Ends His Life. Police Making Investigation.

Shot through the heart while walking along a path in a patch of woods at Fifteenth and Adams streets northeast yesterday morning, Joseph C. Squires, sixty-seven years old, veteran employe of the Pension Office, fell and died almost instantly.

It is believed the shot was lodged in Squires' breast by accident, and the theory that he was a victim of an assassin's weapon is scouted by the police, who have been investigating the case.

Persons in the vicinity heard shots fired at intervals of a few minutes in the morning, and it was supposed there were men in the woods at target practice. Little attention was given the men and their identity was not learned.

Boarded in Adams Street.

Squires boarded at 1711 Adams street. About 11 o'clock he left the house and started through the woods to the Winthrop Club, where it is said he stabled a horse and buggy. It is thought the aged man intended taking a drive in the afternoon and was on the way to get his team.

He entered the woods and proceeded along the path for several hundred yards. As he was walking briskly, there was a shot. With a cry, Squires reeled and fell. William Sarton, fourteen years old, of 1846 Franklin street northeast, was walking a few hundred yards in the rear of Squires. The boy heard the shot, and the cry of the mortally wounded man. Looking through the underbrush, he saw Squires fall and ran to his side. Squires was unconscious, apparently dying. Sarton ran for help, and in a short time the police were notified.

Before persons Sarton had summoned reached the body of Squires the aged man was dead, and the persons who shot him had disappeared. When police of the Ninth precinct reached the woods a search was made, but the gunners had disappeared. It is believed the wound was inflicted with a rifle, although it is possible the men were shooting with a revolver.

The bullet entered the left chest, and probably passed through the heart. It is believed it struck the body, and the hole in the chest was the only wound found when the body was examined by physicians.

Believing it possible Squires was killed with intent, the police notified Inspector Boardman, and Detectives Burlingame, O'Brien, and Springman were detailed to the case. As a consequence of the investigation, the theory that Squires was accidentally killed was strengthened.

Coroner Nevitt was notified and ordered the body removed to the morgue. Although the coroner is of the opinion Squires met his death by accident, it is probable an inquest will be held. The police are searching for the men believed to have fired the fatal shot. Two youths who fit descriptions were taken in custody by police of the Ninth precinct last night and released shortly after. The police were shooting the boys knew nothing of the shooting.

Saw Two Young Men.

Sarton told the police he saw two young men in the vicinity of the shooting shortly before Squires was killed. He described them as follows: One about eighteen years old, five feet seven inches in height, weighing about 140 pounds, smooth face, blue shirt, light felt hat, black trousers and coat, carrying a coat on arm, white suspenders, black low shoes, and brown socks; the other about nineteen years old, five feet eight inches in height, weighing about 135 pounds, black trousers, blue serge golf cap, blue shirt, and no coat.

The police say if the killing was accidental, the men who fired the shot will probably make known their identity in a short time.

Squires is survived by a brother, who lives in Philadelphia. His wife died several years ago, and the veteran clerk had no children. He had been employed in the Pension Office for nearly forty years.

Rear Admiral Sebree to Retire. Rear Admiral Uriel Sebree, U. S. N., commanding the Pacific fleet, will soon be relieved of that duty and ordered home. He will be placed on the retired list on February 29 next. He has commanded the Pacific fleet since October 8, 1907. Rear Admiral Giles B. Harber, who will soon be relieved of command of the third squadron of the Pacific fleet by Rear Admiral John Hubbard, will be promoted to command the Pacific fleet, succeeding Admiral Sebree. Admiral Harber will not retire until 1911.

Men's Retreat Ends.

The retreat for the members of the League of the Good Shepherd and the men of St. Patrick's parish closed last evening with the regular services of the league and a sermon by Father Robert, the Passionist missionary, on "Perseverance," after which he gave the apostolic benediction. One hundred and fifty new members were received into the league by Rev. Dr. Russell, its founder.

REGRETS NAVAL ORDER.

Rear Admiral Brownson Comments on Surgeon's Appointment. Rear Admiral Willard H. Brownson, U. S. N., retired, former chief of the Bureau of Navigation of the Navy Department, who in December, 1897, resigned that office, after a controversy with President Roosevelt over the assignment of Surg. Charles F. Stokes, U. S. N., to the command of the hospital ship Relief, left Washington last night for Thomasville, N. C., where he will spend a week or so hunting.

When asked if he had anything to say upon the recent decision of President Taft and Secretary of the Navy Meyer to assign Surg. George Pickrell, U. S. N., to command the hospital ship Solace, he replied: "Nothing, except that it is to be regretted that a matter of so much importance to the best interests of the service should not have been decided entirely on its merits."

SMALL FIRES RECORDED.

Lamp Explodes, Shed in Blaze, and Chimney Burns Out.

A lamp exploded in the house of Richard Hawkins, 1355 C street southeast, about 7 o'clock last night, causing a fire which resulted in $5 damage. An alarm was sounded from box 542, but several companies of firemen responding did not go into action.

Fire was discovered in a shed in the rear of 128 Ninth street northwest, about 8 o'clock, and No. 7 Engine Company was sent to the scene. The blaze was extinguished after a loss of $5.

While walking in the street about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, R. O. Chambers saw flames rising from a chimney on a house at 144 Twelfth street northwest, and sounded an alarm from box 228. Several engine companies responded, but the blaze had burned out before they arrived. There was no damage.

FLOWER SHOW CLOSED.

Large Crowds Visit the Exhibits in Old Masonic Temple.

After having had a most successful week, the flower show which was held at the Old Masonic Temple, under the auspices of the Florists' Club of Washington, during the last week, closed last night with a record-breaking crowd. From the time the churches let out until the closing hour, the exhibits were surrounded by a throng of visitors.

The musical selections were applauded. Music was furnished by Pistorio's Band, Thomas Randall, Metropolitan Quartet, composed of Messrs. Sanderson, Kimmer, Howell, and Peterson; Carl Otto, trombone; William H. Cole, cornet; Harry Maxwell, Guy Elker, and Miss Cecilia Ventres.

George C. Shaffer, one of the exhibitors, said he considered it to be the most successful flower show held in Washington. It is estimated that between 1,500 and 2,000 persons were present during the day.

WOMEN HEAR MISSIONARIES.

G. Sherwood Eddy, of India, Addresses Y. W. C. A. Meeting.

G. Sherwood Eddy, general secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association of India, spoke yesterday afternoon in the First Congregational Church, giving the women of Washington a chance to hear a speaker of the Laymen's Missionary Movement for the first time.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association, and was presided over by Mrs. William Hamilton Bayly, president.

The other speaker was Mrs. Elizabeth S. Cole, well-known linguist, who is said to speak forty languages.

The meeting was opened with a short address by Mrs. Bayly. A Scripture reading by Mrs. Elizabeth F. Pearce followed. Mrs. Wallace Radcliffe, wife of the pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian Church, led in the prayer.

Mr. Eddy, the only man present, was introduced by Mrs. Bayly. Mr. Eddy gave an account of the advancement of the Christian religion in India in the last generation. "I have been in India for the last fifteen years," said he, "and expect to return there within the next six months. In thirty years there is a slow progress so great that one can hardly believe it. In one little town in the southern part of India there is a church where 1,000 people attend every night.

GENERAL STRIKE THREATENED

Labor Unions May Retaliate if Gompers Goes to Jail.

Central Body Here Expected to Act at Session To-night—Philadelphia Union Starts It.

At its meeting to-night the Central Labor Union will doubtless take action upon the motion carried in Philadelphia yesterday urging every union and nonunion man to quit work for two days if Samuel Gompers, Frank Morrison, and John Mitchell are sent to jail for contempt of court.

While no proposition of this nature has been brought before the body, it is considered probable its action will be favorable, as it has frequently shown its strong opposition to the decisions of the courts in deciding the American Federation of Labor leaders are in contempt for branding a firm unfair.

The determination to quit work for two days is considered in the nature of a strike on the part of the union. In this way it is hoped to convince the country at large of the disapproval of the conviction of the officers, and, at the same time, arouse by action an agitation favorable to the men.

The resolution was offered before the Central Labor Union of Philadelphia yesterday by H. C. Parker, of the Cigar-makers' Union. Copies of the action, with a request that it be favorably considered by labor organizations throughout the country, are to be sent to every city in the United States, and nonunion men will be asked to join with organized labor in showing disapproval of the imprisonment of the executives.

It is probable the Central Labor Union of Washington will make its move concurrently with the American Federation of Labor now holding a convention in Toronto. This body has been asked to take action on the resolution of the Philadelphia labor union.

Collegiate Club Meets.

At the meeting of the Collegiate Club yesterday, a paper on the "History of the office of the Auditor for the War Department" was read by Maurice Hurwitz. Resolutions were adopted denouncing the legalized murder of Francisco Ferrer by the Spanish government. These will be forwarded to the Spanish authorities and the Spanish press.

Methodist Missionary Preaches.

Rev. Kingsley E. Pesse gave a talk last night at the Hamline Methodist Episcopal Church on the field for missionary work in Singapore, where he was in charge of the Methodist Episcopal work. After describing the natural beauty of the island, he explained its importance both from a commercial and a military standpoint.

Baltimore Couple Wedded.

Louis Hallmann and Miss Mary O. Matthews, both of Baltimore, were married yesterday afternoon by Rev. J. Henning Nelms, at the Church of the Ascension. The license was obtained four days ago. The wedding took place at the close of the children's vespers.

SPIRITS STALKED IN A PLAYHOUSE

Mysterious Houdon the Only One Who Saw Them.

BUT THE CROWD WAS PLEASED

Every Person in the National Theater Last Night Enjoyed Seeing the Professor Take Esoteric Sense Out for a Walk—Murder Scene Not as Real as Might Have Been.

Either something was irritating the mind of "Mysterious Houdon" at the National Theater last night, or else the spirits previously scheduled to be present were busily engaged in telling the First Spiritualists' Association how to build its new temple, and were, therefore, unable to aid him.

An unusually big attendance for a Sunday night entertainment gathered in the seats of the National Theater long before the "professor" made his appearance. From the babble of tongues such remarks as these could be heard: "The advertisement says he is marvelous."

"Yes; and he's got some gorgeous scenic effects, I understand." "They say the spirits shine all over the house when he begins his heavy work."

A little after 8 o'clock the curtain was lifted, and its rising brought from the audience the first of a series of heart-rending sighs. The "gorgeous scenic effects" were embodied in a sort of parlor suite with numerous kitchen chairs scattered about, to lend color to the atmosphere. The general decorative effect was a mauve blue, which thoroughly harmonized with the audibly expressed feelings of the audience.

Came from Scenes.

"Mysterious Houdon" crept out from somewhere behind the scenes. "I haven't been in Washington for nineteen years," said the professor as he sized up the audience.

"Why come back now?" grumbled Serg. Lee, who had been detailed to watch the show, and was consequently somewhat irascible.

"Now," said the professor as he mysteriously beckoned to the audience in general, "I want a committee of selected citizens to come forward."

And before the committee could decide who comprised it, the mysterious magnetizer had begun a little speech, in which he told those present what an immense amount of gratification it gave him to see them all there.

About half the audience moved toward the stage when the signal for the select committee was given. Those sitting near the front were led up until the kitchen chairs and parlor furniture were filled, when the professor announced his jury was larger than enough. Maj. Duffy was among those plucked by the professor. He seemed to be quite chummy with Houdon, inasmuch as Houdon made him do most of the work requiring "a thoroughly impartial citizen, ladies and gentlemen."

Once they got the committee seated, Houdon called one of the audience and had him to look the gathering over and pick out a face. "Now, think about it," ordered Houdon.

As far as could be told externally, the gentleman appeared to be thinking. Commander Peary made no deviation from his previous lecture or published statements. In simple language, dwelling scarcely at all upon the sufferings and hardships, endured by himself and companions, he depended largely upon the lantern to describe the events and environment of the dash to the north. Only when in speaking of the enthusiasm and unwavering support of his companions, both Eskimos and white men, did the lecturer depart from the merely circumstantial.

Dr. Moore, in introducing Commander Peary, paid the highest tribute to him as a man and a leader. Speaking of the battle of men of many nations against the obstacles of the arctic region, each adding its share to the conquered area, until it remained to the pride of every American that the Stars and Stripes waved over the apex of the world, he said:

"We admire courage; we admire intellect; we admire moral character. But when we find them all combined in one personality, we have as near a perfect man as the Creator ever placed among us. Commander Peary is a man who approaches this perfection as nearly as any man of any nation in the world."

Addresses Secular League.

At the regular Sunday meeting of the Washington Secular League yesterday afternoon in Pythian Temple, Mrs. Georgia Ferguson, pastor of the People's Church, made an address on "Woman on the warpath." The meeting was largely attended. Hyland C. Kirk, president of the league, presided. A debate followed, led by Miss Anna McLuan Smith, E. C. Kenny sang "The Song of the Ballad," of which he is the composer.

Rehabiles Hold Meeting.

Under the auspices of the Independent Rehabiles of North America, a temperance meeting was held last night at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church. The speakers of the evening were: N. E. Bowers, high chief ruler of North America; W. R. Hunt, past high chief ruler; James H. Doney, high secretary; and Rev. Francis M. Thompson, James H. Loveless presided.

The subject under discussion was "The subject under discussion in the audience a nervous person, possessed of a round face and a mustache.

"This is the face," said the professor wistfully. Whereat the man with the sandy mustache blushed and tried to hide his head.

"I will now," said the mysterious Houdon, "ask a member in the audience to pick out some young lady wearing a ring, take the ring from her, and put it on the finger of another young lady. Then I will get a grip on his esoteric senses, and find both the young lady wearing the ring and the one to whom it belongs."

A young man wearing eyeglasses and possessing a sparsely settled thatch of straw-colored hair was chosen by the select committee as the official victim to part some girl from her ring.

Not being possessed of a blackjack, the young man adopted the innate but effective policy of wandering aimlessly up and down the aisles inquiring, "Who's got a ring? Who's got a ring?"

Some girl was persuaded to give up her jewelry after the girl designated to receive it had been pointed out to her by the young man with his eyeglasses.

The professor blindfolded himself again after he had waved his fists over his eyes, leading a little girl, who predicted that a woman she pointed out would inherit a legacy, the psychic forces were exhausted. Mme. Kates explaining that they are never so strong after she partially expended them in a lecture over the treatment of physical, moral, and mental disease.
