SWIRL OF SOCIETY ENLIVENS LONDON

Fairbankses Given Round of Receptions.

MRS. CHAUNCEY A DANCER

Countess Pappenheim's Second Dance After Friday Night's Concert Proves Enjoyable Event of Week End, with Misses Drexel and Carter and Their Fiances Most Observed.

London, March 5.—The Countess Pappenheim's second dance after Friday night's court was a delightful affair. The Misses Drexel and Carter, and their fiancés, Lord Maidstone and Viscount Acheson, were, as usual, the subjects of much observation. Mrs. Chauncey was one of the dancers. Others were Misses H. Goudy, Winstow, Post, and Lady Innes-Ker.

The arrival of former Vice President Fairbanks and his wife has been the signal for much entertaining. Ambassador Reid gave them a dinner at Dorchester House. The members of the American Embassy were among the guests. John L. Griffith, the American consul general here, and his wife gave a dinner in their honor on Tuesday. Only Americans were present. Among the guests were Mrs. Colman, wife of the military attaché, and Mrs. de Dominguez. In addition to Mr. Reid on Thursday the Griffiths gave a luncheon to the Fairbankses, to which only English women were invited to be present and meet Mrs. Fairbanks.

To Meet Wesleyan Ministers. Sir Robert Perks has asked nearly a hundred leading Wesleyan ministers and laymen to meet Mr. Fairbanks at a luncheon next week.

The Countess of Craven has quite recovered from the effects of the slight accident to her eyes. She, with her parents, the Bradley Martins, has been among the regular attendants at the opera this week.

Mr. John Jacob Astor, whose final decree of divorce was granted yesterday, was the hostess at a small dinner at her Hill street house on Wednesday. Among the guests were Lord Revelstoke, Count Albert Mensdorff, Mrs. Asquith, wife of the prime minister, and Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips.

Lady Granfield now expects to open her new house by the end of this month, when she will give a large reception.

WOULD IMPORT ANTELOPE.

Capt. Duquesne Seeks to Make Dry Regions of West Useful.

Capt. Fritz Duquesne, the officer who served with such distinction in the Boer war, came to Washington this week in furtherance of his plan for the transplanting of useful game animals from the African veldt to the semi-arid wastes of the Southwestern States and Territories.

Capt. Duquesne said that in Africa there are thousands of square miles of land, practically deserted, which resembles very much the dry region of the United States and Mexico, with the difference that the African country is inhabited by hardy, useful, and beautiful antelope, many of which are at present being experimented on by the authorities of German East Africa, with a view to their domestication.

The introduction of these animals into this country would not only give life and interest to the vast desert tracts in the Southwest, but also give them a commercial usefulness, for the flesh of these animals makes splendid food, and the skins of practically all of them excel leather when treated by the methods developed by the Boers.

The animals that Capt. Duquesne proposes to introduce would not interfere with the indigenous fauna or the domestic animals of this country, for the desert tracts which they would select as their habitat will not at present support anything of their usefulness at present. There is no chance of these animals ever becoming a pest or a menace by interfering with grazing districts.

Maj. Frederic Russell Burnham, who was chief of scouts for Lord Roberts during the Boer war and who is at present associated with John Hays Hammond in opening up a tract of country in Senora, Mexico, supports Capt. Duquesne's idea in an article in a recent number of the Independent.

As an illustration of what can be done with African game on this continent, Capt. Duquesne mentions the ostrich, which has proved a profitable success to those who introduced it into California, where it thrives without difficulty. The camel, one of the world's most useful animals, also thrived on the Southwestern deserts, where there was once a government herd, until some one with a greater admiration for dollars than animals rounded them up and sold them to a circus. It would therefore require a national law to protect any animals introduced into the country to prevent their capture or destruction.

A WIFE'S MESSAGE

Cured Her Husband of Drinking.

Write Her Today and She Will Gladly Tell You How She Did It.

For over 20 years her husband was a hard drinker. He had tried in every way to stop but could not. At last she cured him by a simple home remedy which anyone can give even secretly. She wants everyone who has drunkenness in their home to know of this, and if they are sincere in their desire to cure this disease and will write to her she will tell them just what the remedy is. She is sincere in this offer. She has sent this remedy to thousands and will gladly send it to you if you will but write her today. As she has nothing to sell, do not send her any money. Simply write your name and full address plainly in the coupon below and send it to her.

MRS. MARGARET ANDERSON, 121 Oak Street, Hillburn, N. Y.

Please tell me about the remedy you used to cure your husband, as I am personally interested in one who drinks.

RUBINSTEIN CLUB PLEASURES

March Recital Conducted by Mrs. Blair Arouses Enthusiasm.

Programme Closes with "The Lost Chord," by Chorus Which Brings Tears to the Audience.

The Rubinstein Club gave its March recital last week in the ball room of the Arlington Hotel before an audience of associate members and their invited guests, which filled the hall. This splendid club aroused enthusiasm, which was richly deserved by the organization and its conductor, Mrs. A. M. Blair.

"Nothing could have been more delightful than their rendition of Buck's "Wanderer's Night Song," which opened the programme. It was smooth, restful, and beautifully shaded. Yradier's "Dove," more familiarly known as "La Paloma," was given with exquisite lightness and grace. It was in the "Cloister Gate," by Grieg, that the club rose to heights seldom attained by any chorus, and especially by women's choruses, which are apt to be thin and unsatisfying. Their singing of the choral part of the work, a small portion of it, was impressive to a degree, the magnificent chorus following after the dramatic singing of the soloists. Mrs. Fanny AlLee Gage and Mrs. Blanche Muir Dalgleish, both members of the chorus. Their respective parts was most beautiful, suiting their respective voices particularly well. Mrs. Gage sang with dramatic fervor and thrilling effect in many places. Mrs. Dalgleish's sympathetic voice was delightful in the quaint phrases, which, sung without color would be monotonous.

The soloists were Miss Aileen Miller, soprano, daughter of Mr. Douglas G. Miller, the well-known tenor; Miss Helen Crennan, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dubois; Miss Anna Brett, contralto soloist in the Church of the Ascension; Mrs. William Bruce King and Mrs. Emma Prall Knorr, pianists. One of the most effective numbers was the magnificent composition of Grieg's "The Romance," for two pianos, played by Mrs. King and Mrs. Knorr with beautiful finish, technique, and temperament.

Mrs. Miller's sweet, telling voice was charming in Mrs. Beach's "June." She also sang Nevin's "The Rosary" with style and finish. Miss Crennan displayed a rich lyric soprano voice of much cultivation and timbre and sang with beautiful style Grieg's "One Summer Night," Lohmann's "L'Heure Exquise," and Liza Lehmann's "Roses After Rain." Her French diction was excellent, and she sang this song particularly well. Her voice is full of color and is under perfect control. Miss Brett has a voice of exceptional richness and power, and has a future before her with proper study and industry. She sang Brahms' "Sappho Ode" and Mascagni's "He Loves Me, He Loves Me Not," and elicited much applause from a critical audience.

The programme closed with "The Lost Chord," by Sullivan-Bartlett, sung by the chorus with splendid shading and sentiment, which brought tears to the eyes of many. Mrs. Blair, as a conductor, stands unrivalled among women, and few men ever attain her success with a large body. There are ninety-two singers, and they hang upon the baton of their leader and respond to its every move. The accompanying was by Mrs. E. Pendleton Dickinson, who had a difficult and trying duty, which was discharged with much credit to herself, especially in the "Cloister Gate," where her work was splendid. Miss Mamie Mully also accompanied on the organ in the "Cloister Gate" and in "The Lost Chord."

The Princeton Triangle Club, the Princeton University Triangle Club, the dramatic organization of the Princeton University, will make an extended trip this season, visiting besides Washington, New York, Newark, N. J., and Pittsburg, the cities of Indianapolis, St. Louis, and Chicago. The Triangle Club in the last two years has not gone further West than Pittsburg, but this season almost the same itinerary will be followed as in 1908. The schedule follows: March 23, Newark, N. J.; Kruger's Auditorium; March 24, Washington, D. C., Belasco Theater (matinee performance); March 25, Indianapolis, Ind., English's Opera House; March 26, St. Louis, Mo., Odeon Theater; March 27, Chicago, Ill., Orchestra Hall; March 28, Pittsburg, Pa., Alvin Theater (matinee); April 9, New York (matinee and evening), ball room, Astor Hotel.
