KITCHENER SEES WEST POINT DRILL. Cadets Like Machinery on Sun-kissed Parade. WARRIOR IS PLEASED "Smartest Body of Young Men He Ever Saw."

Scene Amid Hudson Hills with Throng of Spectators and Military Colors Is Minus Only of Demonstration Which Might Have Greeted Famous General but for His Request that "No Fuss Be Made."

New York, April 15.—The Hudson hills along the horizon formed the rim of a sort of saucer this afternoon around West Point, and down in the center of the saucer was to change the figure—the green billiard table, better known as the parade grounds.

USES OF OLIVE OIL. "A spreadsheet with oil, a mixer with vinegar, and a dash of salt." Olive Oil is chiefly known as the essential ingredient in any well-made salad dressing. TO-KALON WINE CO., 614 14th St. N. W.

the post over. But the general sent word to cut out the salutes and things. "I am really coming up merely as a private British citizen. I shan't wear a uniform."

His Wishes Respected. Wherefore Lord Kitchener's wishes were respected. Nobody made a fuss over him during his stay at West Point to-day; in fact, none of the cadets and only two or three officers knew he was to be present when the corps marched out on the turf this afternoon for the regular Saturday drill and inspection.

Col. Scott was at the station to meet the general with a noisy automobile. Col. Scott walked right down the cinder path prepared to raise gloved fingers to salute. The colonel's right glove got half way up when he saw that Lord Kitchener was stretching out a bare right hand to shake the colonel's, and that his lordship was almost on the point of smiling a greeting to his friend. Whereupon Col. Scott stopped his right hand before it had gone too far, and he stuck it out and shook the British soldier's hand heartily. Nobody saluted anybody.

Guests at the Luncheon. Straight up to Col. Scott's red brick house chugged the machine. Only Lord Kitchener, Mr. Danneberg, and Col. and Mrs. Scott were present at the luncheon.

Lord Kitchener and Col. and Mrs. Scott came out on the veranda right after luncheon. Just as the post band was tuning up for the corps' inspection, Col. Scott and Lord Kitchener lined up side by side, first of all to be photographed. The proceeding seemed to gird the British fighter, and he fidgeted until it was all over. Then, bareheaded and minus the "great coat," he lighted a cigar and awaited the coming of the straight lines of gray cadets. But before they came out into the sunlight it grew too chilly for him, and he ducked inside to get his coat and brown felt hat.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C., Saturday, April 16. A strong high area that developed during Saturday over New England has effectively retarded the movement of the northern disturbance, and it has remained practically stationary since Friday night over Wisconsin, but with increasing intensity. The rains have therefore not advanced eastward beyond the Allegheny Mountains, but they have continued in the central valleys and Upper Lake region, and extended into the Lower Lake region and the interior of the South Atlantic States. There was also snow in the Missouri and Upper Mississippi valleys, and snow was still falling Saturday over those districts. In the extreme West the weather had been fair.

It is decidedly colder in the central valleys and the Upper Lake region, in the Middle Atlantic and East Gulf States, and from the central valleys westward through the Plains States, except in the Upper Ohio Valley, temperatures from 10 to 25 degrees below the seasonal average. West of the Rocky Mountains temperatures are high.

There will be rain Sunday generally east of the Mississippi River, except in the Middle Atlantic States, with some snow in the Upper Lake region, continuing Monday in the Atlantic States. Snow flurries are also probable Saturday in the Lower Lake region, and the Middle Atlantic States, and will continue Monday in the Atlantic States and Lower Lake region, but they will be in the interior.

Cold weather will continue Sunday in the Mississippi and Lower Ohio valleys, the Upper Lake region, and the Middle Atlantic States, and will extend into the Ohio Valley and Lower Lake region and the South Atlantic States. Low temperatures will continue Monday in the Atlantic States and Lower Lake region, but they will be in the interior.

Storm warnings are displayed on the Lower Lakes. The winds along the New England and Middle Atlantic coasts will be moderate to brisk east east to southeast; on the Middle Atlantic States, and will be brisk southerly, possibly thunder squalls Sunday on the East Gulf coast light to moderate northwesterly; on the West Gulf coast light to moderate southerly; on the Lower Lakes lake to high south to southwest; on the Upper Lakes lake to high southwest to northwest over southern portion, with probably dangerous squalls, and brisk north to northwest or northwest portion.

Local Temperature. Midnight, 79; 2 a. m., 67; 4 a. m., 59; 6 a. m., 57; 8 a. m., 65; 10 a. m., 66; 12 noon, 66; 2 p. m., 70; 4 p. m., 64; 6 p. m., 59; 8 p. m., 53; 10 p. m., 46. Maximum, 79; minimum, 46.

DISARMAMENT NOT SAFE.

Young Men's Forum Holds Debate at Pythian Temple. That disarmament of nations would be beneficial to the world was debated by the Young Men's Forum last night in Pythian Temple.

The affirmative contended that the vast amount of money necessary to keep the nations armed would eliminate all suffering caused by poverty, and that it would be sufficient to establish a fund for the infirmed and aged. The negative side argued that mankind need to evolve further before it would be safe for even a mutual agreement of nations to disarm. They won their contention.

E. F. Lindsay, R. W. Richardson, and A. R. MacMahon argued for the affirmative, and W. L. Helms, H. M. Burton, and F. A. Millott the negative.

Christopher Dice was hit on the head by a bale of hay while passing through an alley in the rear of 144 P street northwest yesterday afternoon, and while it was at first thought that his skull had been fractured, after treatment at the Emergency Hospital, he was able to go home.

Dice, who is sixty-nine years old, failed to notice men handling the bales in an upper window of a stable and unfortunately for him the bale fell out of the window just as he was passing. He said that he lived in G street between First and Second streets northwest.
