

G. C. BEECH'S OFFICERS

S. W. Harris to Manage 1911 Baseball Team.

BATTISTE CHOSEN CAPTAIN

Buff and Blue College loses but One Player for Next Season's Team.

Will Enter for 1911 Intercollegiate Championship—Attractive Easter Schedule is Planned.

With the selection of Hume La Princes Battiste, the versatile Indian star, to captain the Gallaudet College baseball squad next season, and the choosing of S. W. Harris as manager of the Buff and Blue nine, the Kendall Green institution is mapping out plans for its 1911 baseball campaign.

The season just closed at the East Side college was one of the most successful in the history of Gallaudet, and the retiring manager, E. D. Talbert, and Capt. John T. Hower, one of the Washington Herald's pickers for the District of Columbia all-star college nine, deserve credit in bringing Gallaudet into the District intercollegiate championship race with Catholic and Georgetown universities for the first time in chronology of the Buff and Blue college.

Gallaudet will lose only one of the veteran players through graduation, but this one loss will be very severely felt, for the player who will depart into the so-called cold world is no other than Arthur B. Dillon, '10, who was on the Buff and Blue pitching staff ever since he registered as a student at Kendall Green, and is regarded as the best south-paw Gallaudet ever had.

His marvellous assortment of deceptive curves, together with a wonderful control and brainy change of pace, entitled the veteran flinger to a place on The Herald's selection as one of the three pitchers.

New Twirls for St. Paul Team.

Dillon is now pitching for the St. Paul team, the leading club of the Independence League, but will leave next week, after he gets his bachelor of science shopticket, for New York, leaving the box work for Gallaudet in hands of "Cotton" Birck, and probably "Scalper" Battiste, for next season.

It is not yet known what position Capt. Battiste will play next season. It depends largely on the material. At present the outlook for a successful season is very bright, as the reports from the high schools in the United States indicate a number of new students possessing baseball ability took examinations for admission to Gallaudet College.

Among the candidates for admission are one southpaw and one right-hand pitcher, together with an infielder of repute, and in case the Kendall Green aggregation is well fortified in pitchers department but weak in infield, Capt. Battiste may play an infield position. He played alternately at second base and pitcher's position this season, and in the intercollegiate games batted at a .273 clip and fielded at a 1.000 percentage.

Among the players expected back at Gallaudet next season is J. T. Hower, who played a steady third base throughout the season just closed and is conceded to be the cleverest difficult corner man Gallaudet ever turned out. He batted at .324 and leads his team in long-distance hits. The champion Kendall Green batter, First Baseman Craven, who got a percentage of .412 for half the season, also expects to be a varsity candidate next year. He did not finish the season owing to faculty regulations, and his absence weakened the team a great deal in batting department.

Gallaudet's strong outfield will remain intact if Blanchard, Arras, and Durlan return to college next season, but Shortstop Morris may be placed at his old position in center garden in event a new shortstop can be developed from the new material.

Walter Bell's leaving the college last winter made the shortstop position a difficult one to fill during the late season.

Walter Rockwell, the Connecticut youngster, who caught all the intercollegiate games for Gallaudet, is due to return to Kendall Green next fall, and will be expected to do the bulk of the catching. In spite of his seventeen years of age, he proved to be the most reliable behind-the-bat man at the Kendall Green institution for several years.

Experience should develop the youngster into a star. The other players intending to seek varsity positions next year are utility infielder Hughes and substitute outfielder Maxson.

As to Gallaudet's baseball schedule for next season, Manager Harris has only time to say about his plans at present, but it is expected he will follow a conservative policy, and it is hoped there will be a series of two games, possibly three games, if necessary, each with Georgetown and Catholic universities for the District of Columbia intercollegiate championship.

THE BEAUTIFUL MARE FLEXINA.

Louis Hodges, Washington, owner.

No mare, gelding, or other piece of horseflesh brought to Washington in a generation of men has excited more attention and admiration than Louis Hodges's sorrel mare Flexina, daughter of Flexo, 2:14, at the trot, and Mousset, by Jay Hawker.

Flexina is a finely proportioned mare, with a coat that shines like satin and of a color called a dappled sorrel. She carries four white stockings and has a blaze in the face. In the sunlight her coat reminds one of a field of ripened wheat waving in the summer breeze, which when she sweeps occasional shadows. Her limbs and feet are of the best, and which are expected to withstand the stress and strains of fast miles over all manner of tracks.

She descends from racing families, paternally and maternally, as Flexo, her sire, is a son of that Young Jim that stired the dam of Bingen, 2:08 1/4, and others offering very substantial sums to become her owner. As a three-year-old she was phenomenally fast, but never raced except in the matinee at this point.

Flexina was foaled the property of John T. Hughes, of Lexington, Ky. From the hands of Mr. Hughes she passed in her two-year-old form to P. D. Morrison, of Lynchburg, Va. Last March Mr. J. A. Jones, of this city, purchased her for Mr. Louis Hodges, a prominent Ninth street business man, who was looking for a Speedway and road animal. Flexina's manners are absolutely perfect, whether on the track or road or on parade. A breeder who can produce her kind with uniformity will never want for breeders and champions.

Flexina's beauty of form and carriage are inherited paternally and maternally, as well as Young Jim was raised as one of the handsomest sons of George Wilkes, 2:22, himself a champion stallion trotter in his day and generation. And it may be added here that Flexina is a trotter of high class herself, so much so that Mr. Hodges is almost daily pestered by purchasers, some trying to steal her and Storm Turns Track Into a Sea of Mud.

SIR J. JOHNSON IS BEATEN

Jockey Powers Gets Bad Start, and Restigouche Wins the Coney Island Handicap for Six Furlongs in Easy Fashion—Event Reduced to Three Starters—Summaries.

New York, June 18.—More than 8,000 persons attended the races at Sheepshead Bay to-day, only to have their day's outing marred by the storm which turned the track into a sea of mud and sent many visitors home before the sport was concluded.

The Coney Island Handicap, six furlongs, was reduced to three starters. The horses were sent away after the force of the wind had broken, but it was so dark that the spectators had difficulty in making out the colors.

When the gate went up Powers managed to be practically left with Sir J. Johnson, while Shilling got Restigouche off running. Restigouche was in high favor, and although Sir J. Johnson beat him easily the last time they met, the tables were this only reversed.

The Summaries.

"RUN IT OUT."

In the great and only pastime you will hear the cap-tain's best—run it out. When a batter hits a high one, "Run it out, Bill, and let the pitcher in." And the pitcher who is peevish and prefers to stand and choke, too late discover that he might have landed.

When the game has gone against you and the luck is breaking heavy, run it out. And you had a little pop straight toward the pitcher's groin.

Don't throw your hat, and, turning to the benches send your way.

Just pick up your spikes and beat it—he may miss one any day.

Don't give up the game as hopeless, for no game is as they come.

Till the last man's out, and shadows creep across the fielding sun.

G. W. U. LOSES TROPHY

Rifle Championship Won by Massachusetts College.

J. R. FEHR WINS INDIVIDUAL

George Washington Takes Second Place—Fewer Teams Attend Intercollegiate Match Than in Former Years—Three Colleges Prevented from Coming by Closing Exercises.

By 22 points the Massachusetts Agricultural College won the championship of the National Intercollegiate Rifle Association at a match held by that association yesterday evening at Congress Heights. The total score of the team was 782 points out of a possible 800.

The team making the next best score was George Washington University, which made 760 points out of a possible 800.

The scores of the teams follow: Massachusetts Agricultural College..... 782 George Washington University..... 760 University of Pennsylvania..... 728 Delaware College..... 712

The highest score made by any individual was made by J. R. Fehr, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, his score being 44, at 200 yards; 48, at 300 yards; and 49, at 500 yards, only missing the possible score by the phenomenally small margin of 3 points. In recognition of his excellent work, Mr. Fehr was presented with a gold bow by N. W. Searing, of Newark, N. J.

For the past three years the championship of the association has been held by the George Washington University, that team having won the trophy in 1907, and by excellent work, retained it until it was wrested from them by the Massachusetts college yesterday evening, by a score of 22.

This year's contest was composed of fewer teams than any other contest in recent years. Yale, Harvard, and Columbia were prevented from entering on account of the date conflicting with their closing exercises. Columbia was absent for the first time.

It
