

The Calvert Sale Is Unparalleled.

'Tisn't so much the reduction as the value that kindles interest in a special sale.

For that reason the Calvert Sale has no equal. We have made radical reductions in the regular prices—because we cannot afford to have a Suit of this season hold over. We must keep the store consistently up to date. Washington has never had another Store like this—so our methods—like our Clothing—are new. And it gratifies us that both are appreciated.

The choice offered is of the Fancy Cheviots—Cassimeres—Homespuns—Worsteds—the Plain Serges and the Self-striped Serges—of the Calvert exclusive patterns and models—

- The $35 Suits—for $22.00.
- The $30 Suits—for $26.00.
- The $25 Suits—for $18.50.
- The $20 Suits—for $14.50.

COX NEW HEAD OF SCHOOL BOARD

vote was heard, surrendered the chair, taking his place as an ordinary member of the board.

The board again heard the recommendation of the principals of the high schools that football be allowed this fall, with a report from Principal Wilson, of Centennial, asserting the rules had been changed so danger on the gridiron is practically eliminated.

Without a dissenting voice the board moved to allow football, but they adopted a resolution, introduced by President Cox, putting the game on its good behavior. If it is discovered this fall that football is still dangerous to life and limb, it will be forbidden again.

The board recommended that the new normal school No. 2 be built on the Ballou property, in Seventh street, adjoining Howard University. There was considerable discussion of the matter, but Commissioner Judson will endorse this site, and the board determined to fight it out with him if he differs with them as to the choice.

Tributes for Members.

The school board room at the Franklin was fairly swamped with huge bunches of flowers, appreciations from the teachers and other employees of the schools for Capt. Oyster. Capt. Oyster graciously thanked the donors of the fragrant testimonials.

Following is the way President Cox moved that the board extend its thanks to the retiring member of the board, to Capt. Oyster, more than to any other member of this body, is due the credit for bringing order out of the chaos into which our schools were thrown.

"I therefore have great pleasure in moving that we give expression to our appreciation of Capt. Oyster's splendid services to the public schools of the District of Columbia, and that the same be spread upon the minutes of the board of education while Capt. Oyster is still president thereof."

QUITSG. W. U. FACULTY

Prof. Mitchell Carroll Has Accepted New Offer.

BOARD ADOPTS THE CHANGE

College of Political Sciences to Be Maintained in Future as Separate Institution, Unless It Is Decided to Dissolve the Branch, in Which Case Property Would Revert.

At a meeting of the George Washington University trustees yesterday, the resignation of Prof. Mitchell Carroll, of classical languages, was accepted and a proposition was made to charter the College of Political Sciences as a separate institution.

Prof. Carroll's resignation was submitted a few days ago. He said he had another offer, and desired to take advantage of it. The financial difficulties of the university, he said, had not prompted his action. His intention to accept the other position, he explained, had been practically formed before the close of the school year.

Prof. Carroll has been at the university for the past seven years, and was one of the best known members of the faculty. He had previously been professor of classical archaeology at Johns Hopkins University. He is a M. A. of Richmond (Va.) College, and a Ph. D. of Johns Hopkins. His works on Greek archaeology, Greek art, and other Greek subjects have received considerable praise.

Detach Political Sciences.

Prof. Howard Lee McBain, assistant professor of political sciences, proposed the official segregation of the college of political sciences. The proposition was approved by the trustees, and the counsel of the board is to put the matter in shape for official action by the trustees and presentation for legal acknowledgment.

In its essence, the plan provides for the separate incorporation of the College of Political Sciences under the university's charter. Control is to be retained by the university, by having at all times on the board of trustees of the college a majority who are members of the board of trustees of the parent organization. It is additionally provided that the college can be dissolved by a majority vote of the board of trustees. In this event, all property of the college and its endowments are to revert to the university.

The advantage of such a course is to specially secure to political science the specific endowments for that branch. The consequence will be a lessening of the drag on the university proper, while at the same time allowing broader freedom of action for the college.

As Affected by the Law.

This chartering of a subsidiary college is legalized by a supplemental act of the charter of the university, obtained five years ago. The act provides for at least five incorporations, and gives it practically the status of a wholly independent institution, but it prevents it from conferring academic or honorary degrees.

The details of the proposed incorporation will, it is expected, be worked up within a month for the trustees' action, and the incorporation may be concluded by the opening of the coming school session.

The general sentiment of the trustees at the meeting as to the rehabilitation of the university was a hopeful one. The trend of the financial agreements seemed of an optimistic nature, and it was stated that while no definite action could yet be announced, considerable progress had been made.

PHYSICIAN HONORED.

Arthur MacDonald Honorary Member of Medico-Legal Society.

Dr. Arthur MacDonald, of this city, was recently elected honorary member of the Medico-Legal Society of New York in recognition of his services to science in criminological investigations.

This honor to Dr. MacDonald comes on the heels of a victory in the courts of New York, in which his reputation as a scholar and expert in criminology was the question at issue. The language of the resolution adopted by the Medico-Legal Society is congratulatory of the victory, and it is declared to be a fitting occasion to bestow the honor of making him an honorary member of the body.

Dr. MacDonald has been a resident of Washington for twenty years. He was formerly connected with the Bureau of Education, where he pursued special lines of investigation upon school children, several thousand of them in this city and elsewhere being subjected to skull measurements and other tests to show that criminals are the creatures of training and environment rather than of hereditary trait.

Dr. MacDonald's investigations have gone far afield, and he has probably collected a greater amount of data with reference to criminals and their physiological peculiarities than any other in this country. His writings on the subject have been extensive and have been widely published in this country and Europe.
