WOODWARD & LOTHROP.

THE COLONEL AT HOME.

Oh, Tumbo, Bwana Tumbo, we are glad you're back again, with the lion that you slaughtered in its cheap but useful den; with your crates of ahacondas and your sack of crocodiles—we are glad, indeed, to see you, and the land is wreathed in smiles! For we missed you, Bwana Tumbo, when you roamed the distant field, killing camels with the weapon that no other man could wield; and the rust of peace was on us, and our martial spirits fell, and our lives grew stale and stagnant, and we got too fat to yell. Oh, the land was like a homestead when the boss is gone away, when the women sit and mumble and the kids refuse to play. But you're with us now, B. Tumbo, with the skins of beasts you slew, with the bones of bear and walrus and the stately kangaroo, and the gloom has left the shanty, and we moon around no more, for the colonel's quit his hunting, and his face is at the door!

The wardrobe of the summer girl who hasn't one or more little dresses on the order of the one sketched here, is decidedly incomplete. This is of light blue handkerchief linen, plentifully trimmed with Irish lace, but carried out very simply. The style is one that is not extreme but always dainty and becoming.

The Greek Minister, Mr. L. A. Coromilas, bids farewell to Washington yesterday for a considerable time. He went to New York, en route to New London, Conn., to be married Wednesday to Miss Anna Ewing Cockrell, daughter of former Senator Cockrell, now on the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Minister, who has just returned from a flying trip to Chicago, was accompanied by the first secretary of the legation, Mr. Alexander Vouros, who will be charged with affairs during the absence of the Minister, which bids fair to be a permanent one, as he expects to be promoted in the diplomatic service of his country as soon as he arrives in Athens with his bride. They will leave for England, and will make visits in London and on the Continent before proceeding to Greece.

Mr. and Mrs. Evan Sinclair Cameron, the latter formerly Miss Frederica Morgan, spent the week-end in Baltimore with Mr. Cameron's mother and sister, and are staying over the Fourth of July. Cards have been received for the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Clarke and Ashton Devereaux, of Philadelphia. The ceremony will take place next Thursday in the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Matthew S. Clarke, at Scranton, Pa., to which only a small company of relatives and friends have been invited. Archbishop Ryan, an uncle of the bride-to-be, will perform the ceremony. The bride and bridegroom will sail on Saturday for a wedding tour abroad.

Miss Frances Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben de Mier Miller, and one of the interesting debutantes of this season, has gone to Pittsburg to be a member of the house party for the month of July which Miss Anne Dorrie is entertaining at her country place near Pittsburg. Later Miss Miller will visit friends for three weeks on Long Island, and about September 1 will join her mother and sister in New York, whence they go to Atlantic City for the month of September. Mrs. Miller will close their Washington home late in July and spend the month of August in Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Knox will have Mrs. Harry Smith Berry, their recently married daughter, about July 20 for a few days' stay, after which they will go to Atlantic City for several weeks' outing. AT THE THEATERS

THE BELASCO.

"The Palace of Truth." "The Place of Truth" was a castle in the air last night, for the Ben Greer Players have moved to the cooler and more delightful atmosphere of the Belasco Theater roof, where the audience was swept by cool breezes last night, and enjoyed a real novelty in the shape of Washington's first roof garden theater. That the change was highly appreciated was evidenced by the large number of people who came to take advantage of the opportunity to be amused and keep cool at the same time.

Manager L. Stoddard Taylor and Mr. Greer, having laid their heads together for the benefit of their patrons, have certainly struck the popular fancy, and deserve full credit for having devised something that hasn't been tried before.

A stage has been erected at the eastern end of the long, a veritable forest of foliage being introduced to form the background. There is plenty of room for the chairs, and wide aisles between, with the audience promenade at the back. The big auditorium, with its balcony, augurs well for the success of the enterprise, considering the many counter attractions of the Fourth of July. During the week the Belasco roof garden theater should be the mecca of amusement seekers.

No pains have been spared to make this spot attractive, and every one who has enjoyed it from the heat of the interior of the theaters in summer will be glad that Washington has gone in for the roof garden fad, which its more pretentious sister cities have enjoyed for years. It is a chance for some amusing episodes, which, in the capable and experienced hands of the Greer Players, are as artistic as they are funny.

Mr. Greer was cast as the sly old King Phinor, and Miss Mills was very good indeed as his jealous spouse, Miss Violet Vivian, as the Princess Zeolide, was a vision of loveliness, and acted in her usual charming manner. Her sister, Miss Ruth, as the bride, brought out all the points of a part representing a coquette, who, under the influence of the spell of the palace of truth, divulges the secrets of her heart.

There is a great temptation to praise these two talented sisters to the point of being suspected of exaggeration, but never tires of their delightful youthfulness, the fervor of their efforts and their many-sided charm, and above all, they have that facility, lacking in almost every other stock company performer, of subordinating personality to the assumed character, and thus avoid becoming monotonous to the patrons who see them week after week.

Mr. Greer read with a good deal of unction and seemed to appreciate fully the requirements of his part, and the scenes in which Mr. Crawley and Mr. Seymour appeared were excruciatingly funny. Both acted with animation and discretion. Mr. E. Yeadeker was the perfect character, and his slight tendency toward declamatory delivery was otherwise very satisfactory. Miss Ethel Van de Veer has done no better work during the engagement than her acting as Mirza. Both Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Grayle were well cast, and gave able characterizations of courtiers of King Phinor. W. O.

THE COLUMBIA.

"Miss Hobbs." The offering by the Columbia Players is "Miss Hobbs," the engaging comedy by Jerome K. Jerome, and yesterday two large audiences were present, a holiday matinee performance being given, and the entertainment was very enjoyable, as demonstrated by the hearty expressions of approval.

The comedy is in Jerome's best vein, involving the bringing to her senses a young woman who imagines she belongs to the "higher," or "newer," type. The lesson is taught by an experienced man of the world, and the whole course of instruction is highly amusing, Mr. Jerome's intangible satire being at the root of the comedy. The lines are clever and the situations humorously interesting, and the moral is a fact known to every intelligent man, and woman, too, since there was such a thing as knowledge, and that is that the "new" woman and the "old" woman, and, in fact, all kinds of women, are all very much alike as regards basic elements, and that to successfully handle them there must be

THE CASINO.

Holiday Vaudeville. Manager Mayer entertained a succession of well-pleased audiences yesterday afternoon and evening at his popular little F street playhouse, the special added attraction being the fight returns, which were read from the stage at various stages of the programme. This feature was one which attracted practically a capacity house.

The vaudeville part of the programme yesterday included the Eto Japs; the Londo Quartet; Howard and Limer, in the sketch "What Father Said," and Arthur Jones, with songs and dances. The moving pictures, which are changed daily, proved to be up to the usual excellent Mayer standard.

GERMANY FEARS SOCIALISM.

Conservatives of the Fatherland See "Red Deluge" Coming. Berlin, July 4.—With forty-eight Socialist members of the Reichstag, of whom five have been elected since the last general elections, the conservatives of Germany stare in horror at the sword of Damocles over their heads. The "Red Deluge" grows apace, and the "Burgerliche" political parties seem powerless to arrest its progress. There is little doubt that the working classes throughout the country are seething with discontent. They see a combination of Clericals and Conservatives united to oppose even the most modest of their social aspirations with regard to the franchise.

They see taxation mounting steadily, mainly in support of bloated military and naval armaments. They see the prices of the prime necessities of life mounting far beyond any compensatory rise in wages, and are eager to pull down the system of government which would perpetuate these evils.

Were a general election to take place to-morrow, it is computed that nearly four million German laborers would vote "red"—a state of affairs difficult to reconcile with the affirmation that Germany is the El Dorado of the workmen.

GUDE'S ASHES ON WAY HOME. Late Norwegian Minister's Family in Baltimore at Cremation. The ashes of the late Minister Ove Gude, of Norway, whose body was cremated yesterday in London Cemetery, Baltimore, will be taken to Christiania, Norway, on the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II, sailing from New York next Friday.

Accompanying the ashes will be Mrs. Gude and her daughters, Miss Ingeborg and Miss Sigrid Gude.

The members of the dead minister's family will remain in Baltimore as the guests of Senator Almeida, first secretary of the Cuban legation.

coupled with this knowledge a certain amount of intelligence and diplomacy. The acute interest of the play is centered in Miss Hobbs, as portrayed by Julia Dean, and Kingslear "Major," as presented by Paul McAllister, both giving good accounts of themselves. The fact has become apparent during the last three weeks that Mr. McAllister is something more than a mere creator of transient comedy effect. He can put character into his work, and create good effects by a method of repression, the characters he has brought out are not only better opportunity than those previously attempted. Miss Dean also continues to grow in popularity, her work in yesterday's play in the scenes when she was masquerading as a servant maid being very clever.

Good work is also done by Everett Butterfield, as Kingslear "Minor," and Florence Huntington, as his wife, Susan Abbott, the go-between and pacificator. She makes it appear from the first that she, although a maiden lady, is possessed of the knowledge heretofore mentioned, and she makes the whole character very interesting and lovable.

The remaining roles were agreeably sustained by Frank Shannon, George Jessup, Phyllis Sherwood, as Millicent Farley, Walter Wilson as Capt. Sands, Arthur Richie as Charles, and Pearl Havin as the maid. The performance moved with smoothness, the efforts to shorten the long act were well being palpable, the same being reduced yesterday to normal intervals.

WILL CELEBRATE JULY 14.

France Will Have as Guests King and Queen of Belgium. Paris, July 4.—The great national fête of France, the fall of the Bastille, to be celebrated July 14, will have added interest in Paris this year by reason of the intended visit of the King and Queen of Belgium, who are to come as the guests of President Fallieres.

They are to witness the review of French troops at Longchamps, which is the greatest demonstration of its kind each year, tens of thousands of soldiers taking part, and all branches of the army, cuirassiers, dragoons, hussars, infantry of the line, zouaves, and colonial troops, participating.

The sight of all these men at arms is a most inspiring and impressive one and well calculated to confirm one in the opinion of all loyal French men and women that when another conflict with a foreign power comes the French arms will be victorious.

RECITATIONS AND SPEAKING ON JULY.

At Friendship Heights, Md., the Citizens' Association conducted a "safe and sane" celebration of the Fourth in the park adjoining the trolley station. An assembly call was sounded by Bugler William Collins, and there was singing and a programme of recitations by the children of the neighborhood.

Tyler Page delivered the patriotic oration, and the Declaration of Independence was read by J. R. Swanton. In the evening ice cream and cake was served, and the celebration was concluded with a pyrotechnic display at night. Grant Leet, Tyler Page, Henry Lattner, and C. W. Rippey were the members of the committee of arrangements.

A Buttermilk Luncheon.

From The Boston Herald. At a certain lunch room in New York, where numerous members of the "old" go to break their fasts, there is a buttermilk lunch menu; and as any and every other food does not go well with this sour drink, the things they put with it at this little inn are worth considering. The buttermilk, like cold, is served in tall glasses like unto those offered at the dairy with the same fluid. It is flanked by plates of gluten or brown bread, a dish of sweet butter, and one of some cooked fruit—prunes prepared with baking and much sugar till they are almost like candied—baked apples or very sweet stewed pears. This light lunch is as sustaining as it is refreshing, and since talk of the helpful side of buttermilk always goes on, every woman departs, you may be sure, with the feeling that she has been wise in her choice of menu.

BOYS DONATE FLAG

Feature of Celebration at Rosedale Playground.

PARADE FROM THE CAPITOL

"Old Glory" and Pole Realized from Pennies Saved by the Junior Woodmen—Interesting Programme of Music and Addresses—Girls of Noel House Present Parade of $40.

Independence Day was celebrated at the Rosedale Playground in Northeast Washington yesterday morning under the auspices of the Washington Playground Association. The feature of the exercises was the presentation of a large American flag and flag pole to the playground by the Boys of Woodcraft, Junior Order Woodmen of the World.

In their enthusiasm, the several hundred boys and girls present lost all thought of the crackers and other explosives which have marked their celebrations ever since they could remember, and all joined in the spirit of the up-to-date "safe and sane" Fourth.

At 10 o'clock the parade was formed at the east front of the Capitol, consisting of about 150 of the Boys of Woodcraft and a number of the playgrounds children, many of whom wore fancy costumes, and were led by the boys' band. Upon arriving at the playground, the little folks could hardly restrain their impatience for the programme to begin.

Declaration of Independence Read.

The first number consisted of the reading of the Declaration of Independence by William F. Gude, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who was accorded an ovation by his youthful auditors.

Following the reading the flag was hoisted to the top of the sixty-foot pole by a little girl in the garb of the "Goddess of Liberty," while the assemblage of children cheered as "Old Glory" fluttered in the breeze. Then followed a chorus of voices singing "America." Formal dedication was made of the flag to the playground under the ritual service of the Order of Woodmen.

The flag and pole were realized from the saving of pennies by the Boys of the Woodcraft for months past, under the direction of Maj. George Sunday, and represented the loyalty and good will of the children of Northeast Washington to the playground association.

Addresses at Presentation.

The flag was presented in the name of the boys with their heartfelt wishes by Maj. George Sunday, who stated in his remarks that he appreciated the honor of being their representative upon such a commendable occasion.

William H. Baldwin, of the executive committee of the Washington Playground Association, accepted the flag and pole in behalf of the playground. Mr. Baldwin laid stress upon the marked appreciation of the Playground Association for the friendly and good wishes of the children of Washington, and especially the Boys of Woodcraft, who by their gift showed that the work of the playgrounds was not in vain.

The flag, Mr. Baldwin explained, meant more than the mere money spent upon it, as it symbolized the power of the government and the obligations due it by its citizens.

Mr. Baldwin urged further help for the association in its work of bringing out the highest qualities in the American youth and thanked the Woodcraft boys for their assistance.

Mex. William Judson, Engineer Commissioner of the District, made a brief address in behalf of the District, referring in especially gratifying terms to the spirit of the District youth.

Salute to the Flag.

Following the addresses, the salute to the flag was given by the children, and the exercises concluded with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

Another feature of the exercises was the presentation of a gift of $40 by the girls of Noel House to the playground, which was realized from a recent entertainment at the House.

Upon the conclusion of the programme the boys and girls were given the freedom of the playground, where they spent several hours in amusing themselves with the facilities accorded by the grounds and in athletic games.

CHILDREN DANCE AT FOURTH FETE

B Street Playground Scene of Exercises. Fancy dancing was a feature of the celebration yesterday afternoon at the playground, Seventeenth and B streets northwest, under the auspices of the Washington Playground Association.

Shortly after 4 o'clock the grounds were filled with children, accompanied by their parents and friends.

The dancing was under the direction of Mrs. Walter Binley. More than 250 boys and girls, dressed in some bright and dainty costumes, performed. The dancing caused so much enthusiasm it was necessary to repeat each number.

Rosedale, Georgetown, Garfield Park, New York avenue, Neighborhood House, and Virginia avenue were represented.
