BILLBOARDS MAY GO
Corporation Counsel's Decision on Old Issue.

UP TO THE COMMISSIONERS

Authorized to Revoke Right of Company if Public Protests, but Doubt Arises in Case Company Does Not Comply with Order if Permit Has Been Granted Them to Post Bills.

"The District Commissioners are authorized, if they find that the public interest requires such an action, to revoke the right to use a billboard, but the right to enforce such a revocation is not free from doubt."

This was the gist of a decision handed down by Corporation Counsel Thomas on an interesting case which came before the Board of Commissioners with respect to the right of the District government to demand that a billboard be torn down, once the permit for the same has been granted.

Complained of Eyesore.
It seems that a billboard on K between Seventh and Eighth streets north-east and on Eighth between K and L streets was erected at a time when there were few residents on that square. Since then that portion of the city has grown, and the Commissioners received a petition from D. D. Brewer on March 7 last, asking that the billboard be done away with because it was an eyesore.

On March 23 the Washington Bill Posting Company was notified to remove the billboard within seven days. In the meantime the company appealed the case and went to Corporation Counsel Thomas for a decision.

"His report was received yesterday, and shows that, while the Commissioners have the power to revoke the right to use this board if the interest of the public demands it, it is doubtful whether they have the power to enforce this right if the company does not comply with the order."

He further adds that he has found no case authorizing the revocation of a license to erect a billboard on private property when it is not asserted that the structure is dangerous.

What the outcome of the matter will be is problematical, but it is thought that the company will cease the use of the board rather than fight the case.

HERE'S A COOP STORY.
Chickens Borrowed Fifteen Years Ago Returned to Owner.

On a dark night, fifteen years ago, somebody borrowed sixteen chickens from James Craven's coop back of his house at 319 O street, of this city. Yesterday morning when Mr. Craven opened his front door a box was lying on the porch. Attached to it was this note:

"Dear Mr. Craven: I herewith return to you the chickens that I stole fifteen years ago."

The sixteen chickens in the box were all fine, large Plymouth Rocks. Mr. Craven has no idea who the thief with the conscience is.

BOY FIGHTS FOR LIFE
Seriously Injured by Fall from Roof.

SKULL OPERATION SUCCESSFUL
Sixteen-year-old Raymond C. Holt Bears Ordeal Wonderfully—Hand, Terribly Crushed by Accident, Will Be Useless, Say Physicians. Lad's Endurance Puzzles Doctors.

Fighting bravely against death, sixteen-year-old Raymond C. Holt, of 2060 Wisconsin avenue, is at Georgetown Hospital as a result of a forty-foot fall Wednesday.

His skull is fractured, several ribs broken, and every bone in his right hand is shattered.

Physicians at the hospital said last night that the boy's condition had improved somewhat and there is a chance for his recovery.

Operation on Skull.
The lad underwent a trepanning operation at the hospital yesterday, and appeared much brighter after the ordeal, which he bore wonderfully. Should he recover, physicians say he will never be able to use his hand, which is terribly crushed.

Holt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Holt, Jr., and was employed as an apprentice cornice maker. He was working near the roof of a building in Second street southeast early Tuesday afternoon.

In moving about he missed his footing and was hurled to the pavement, forty feet below. He lay stunned for some minutes and then managed to gain his feet.

With blood streaming from his head and face, he staggered down Second street in an effort to reach Providence Hospital. He had gone a whole block when a man in an automobile saw his condition and hurried him to the hospital.

Puzzle to Doctors.
At the hospital a hurried examination was made and the extent of his injuries startled the physicians. How the lad ever regained consciousness after his fall and managed to walk puzzled the doctors.

He was removed to Georgetown Hospital yesterday afternoon. He was resting easily late last night.

DOG CATCHER IS BUSY
He'll Get Your Nero if Nero Isn't Tagged.

Has your dog a 1910 license and tag on him?

If not, he is liable to be taken up by the dog-catcher to-day and sent to the land where all good dogs go. The days of grace allowed the owners to obtain licenses expired yesterday.

Up to date there have been about 3,500 licenses issued since the time for licenses came around, whereas the number last year exceeded this figure by some 200.

It is estimated there are between 11,000 and 12,000 taxable dogs in the city, which means that the dog-catcher will have a lively time in the next month if some of the people that have pets of the canine persuasion do not get them tagged in a hurry.

Last year there were 4,529 dogs impounded, and of these but 500 were claimed by their masters. All the rest were disposed of.

DISTRICT MEANS BUSINESS.
East Washington Traction Company Must Pay Bill for $2,255.

Capt. E. B. Markham, acting Engineer Commissioner, yesterday recommended that steps be taken to collect the money due the District from the East Washington Heights Traction Railroad Company for one-half of the cost of the repairs to Pennsylvania avenue bridge.

Unless the sum of $3,254.99 is paid in the near future, the Commissioners will sell property of the road to the extent necessary to collect this amount. The repairs used up about 15,000 feet of lumber and also labor to the cost of $1,000.

Two letters have been sent to the company stating the District's side of the case, and no satisfactory answer has been received.

GUDE SUGGESTS WAY
Invites Conservationists to Come to Washington.

TELEGRAM SENT TO PINCHOT
Chamber of Commerce Would Welcome Congress in Capital, Where Possible Political Clash of Radical Speeches Would Not Have Effect That is Feared in Minnesota.

William F. Gude, president of the Chamber of Commerce, yesterday suggested to Gifford Pinchot by telegram a way out of the squabble over the conservation congress in St. Paul.

Mr. Gude communicated to Mr. Pinchot an invitation from the convention committee of the Chamber to hold the convention in Washington on neutral territory, where the possible political consequences of radical speeches would not have the effect that is feared in Minnesota.

The conservation congress is scheduled to meet in St. Paul September 1, and the friction regarding speakers and what they may say has become so acute there is danger the congress may not be held in that city.

Freedom for Speakers.
The Chamber of Commerce committee conceived the idea that it might be a good thing all around to invite the congress to Washington, where its delegates and speakers would be guaranteed freedom of speech without fear of political consequences in a State election.

Mr. Gude's telegram was sent to Gifford Pinchot in Chicago, where yesterday he was engaged with the governor of Minnesota in an effort to patch up a plan by which the congress could meet in St. Paul by the elimination of a few of the insurgent speakers.

FRAUDS IN INDIAN LANDS.
Federal Bureau is Determined to Get Those "Higher Up."
Chief Inspector E. P. Halcomb, of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, and United States Attorney Frank Howell, of Nebraska, have begun preparations for a sweeping investigation of alleged Indian land frauds in Nebraska.
Their determination to investigate those "higher up" in the alleged irregularities was prompted partly by a visit the Omaha Indians recently paid the President in search for relief.
The frauds extend over a period of twelve years.

OUR MONEY GOING FAST.
Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor show that the United States is scattering its money to all parts of the world, in much larger quantities than is being returned. The excess of exports over imports was $187,111,249, the smallest amount in a number of years.
Tourists are responsible for a great deal of this, as it is estimated that Americans spend $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 abroad each year. Added to this, as much as $100,000,000 is sent abroad yearly by foreigners in this country.
