GOING AWAY ON BORROWED MONEY

Why Stay at Home When a Loan Is Offered You?

USURERS AT YOUR SERVICE

Tempting Bait to Those Eager for an Annual Outing, but Who Have Not the Ready Cash—Easy to Get Into the Clutches of the Loan Sharks, but Difficult to Get Out.

The suave and persuasive loan shark is at it again. All seasons look alike to him. In the winter he offers to loan you money with which to buy your coal; in the spring he has the cash to let you have—for a consideration—a new suit of clothes; in the autumn he has money to lend you—at about 38 per cent—for your winter's clothes, and in the summer he can let you have a little change to take away on your vacation.

And talk about the devil citing Scripture for his purpose! There is one loan company in Washington that is quoting The Washington Herald in its printed matter as if this newspaper had given it an unqualified indorsement. This is following the precedent established by the theatrical manager who, in a two-column "roast" of his show, finds a sentence like "This play has no chance of a big success," and puts enough of that sentence on the bill boards to read, "A Big Success.—Herald."

A Hostile Recommendation.

Says this particular usurer, "What better recommendation could be desired than that of a hostile newspaper?" and then it quotes from an article in The Washington Herald a line or two to the effect that this particular usurer occupies a handsome set of offices, lends money on almost any or apparently no security, and the extract ends with this most favorable comment on the usurer's honesty: "There is no charge made except for the time one actually has the money."

That is the commendation of The Washington Herald. It is printed on a little card which is being sent out to individual addresses, accompanied by a table of rates and a copper-plate letter, printed. This is the letter. We don't mind printing it, even if it is an "ad."

Enger to Advance Money.

A pocketbook full of money for vacation purposes. Vacation time has now arrived, and no doubt you are now contemplating your annual outing. You have been looking forward to getting away from the humdrum of everyday existence and to a thorough enjoyment of some of the pleasures of life either in the mountains or at the seashore. You are in need of a vacation, and nature demands a rest. Perhaps you are one of those fortunate ones who have accumulated sufficient funds during the year for such a vacation, or perhaps you are one of the many who have been prevented from laying aside enough ready cash for that purpose. Perhaps your bank book says you cannot afford it. We say you can, and you will so decide if you consider our proposition.

We will advance you all the expenses of your vacation and you may repay us in small monthly payments, commencing two months from the day you get the money. We charge nothing for the extra time and ask no payment whatever until a month or more after you have returned from your vacation. Payment can be made to suit your convenience—we arrange the matter entirely at your discretion. We make only a nominal charge for the accommodation—about 3 per cent per month—and make no charge for drawing up papers. Interest reduced with each payment. All your transactions are handled in strictest confidence. We are a company of private officers for ladies, to whom we cater especially.

If you have a loan now with any other company, you are paying too much interest. Why not let us pay it off and advance you more money at the rates on the enclosed card?

Call and let us explain in detail.

Counting the Cost.

The rate card shows that if you can take a $15 vacation, you can borrow the amount of money and only have to pay 37 cents a month interest. You can figure that out while you are fishing. As you bait your hook and send your line curling out into the stream, you, breathing in health at the loan shark's expense and just having an awful poor time, paid-for time, may, just about the time you get a bite, realize that 37 cents a month amounts up to only $16.44 a year. It isn't quite 100 per cent per annum, but it is close enough to it to make you fish with industry so as to get your money's worth.

Or, if you care to go to the seashore, as the usurer's letter suggests, you might even have to have $25. In that case, all you would have to pay would be the mere trifle of $1.22 per month. On a beautiful moonlit evening, as you sit on the sand with the summer girl you met that afternoon, you can deafen your ears a moment or two to the music of the surf; you can hold her hand lovingly in yours, and you can use her dainty fingers to count with, never minding her diamond rings. Looking up into eyes as if you were intent on nothing but love, but love and moonlight and the beating waves, you could twiddle her finger and instead of love thoughts, could soliloquize:

A Seaside Soliloquy.

"Let's see! Twelve threes are thirty-six; six and carry three; twelve twos are twenty-four, and three are twenty-seven; twelve ones are twelve, and two are fourteen. How's that? Let's see, a six and a seven. Oh, was I hurting your finger, dear? Fourteen dollars and seventy-six cents. I make it. By ginner! That's a bit over 50 per cent a year. Honey, I must leave the seashore to-morrow. This is our sad good-by. I've got important business back in town."

Mr. Punch, of London, when an anxious contributor asked him for some advice on getting married, answered, locally, "Don't!" It would be pretty good advice in the matter of borrowing money for vacation purposes. You may need a rest, it is true, but borrowing money at 50 per cent a year—no, not borrowing it, that's easy—paying back money at 50 per cent a year, is one of the most unprofitable occupations that has ever been invented.

MANY ARE POVERTY-STRIKEN

Woman of Seventy, Living on Disputed Land for Thirty Years, Tells Pitiful Tale of Hardships—Veteran of Civil War Not Resigned to Action—"Squatter" Is Patriotic.

Consternation was created among the poverty-stricken "squatters" who have located upon the land lying south of K street and west of Twenty-eighth street northwest, by a summons received yesterday, to appear before the District Supreme Court in defense of their claims to the land.

The summons was the result of Attorney General Wickersham's application to the court for a writ of ejectment to determine whether the United States is entitled to the land or whether the present occupants have lawful right of possession.

"I don't know what I shall do if my old home is taken from me," said Mrs. Mary E. Hughes, seventy years old, one of the "squatters." "We have been living here for nearly thirty years, and have been very comfortable. After Mr. Hughes died we eked out an existence by raising poultry and keeping a small vegetable garden. I cannot believe the government will do anything that will impose a hardship upon us. But if the government says so, I guess we will have to go."

Mrs. Hughes has two sons and a daughter, who live with her in the little cottage on the disputed land. When she moved into their present home the property was practically a swamp, which has since been converted into habitable land. Mrs. Hughes, old and withered, was busily chopping wood with which to cook the evening's meal when seen yesterday.

"Squatter" Is Patriotic.

John Shore, another of the "squatters," is not so resigned. From the wall of his comfortable dwelling he took an old battle-stained flag, and, shaking out its folds, said:

"My boy, through many death struggles and on long, dreary marches I have followed this flag in defense of the nation that would now take my home from me. Through the long years that have passed since North and South were at war I have lived in peace on these bottoms, going to sleep at night with the river noises sounding in my ears. The whistle of the river tug has supplanted the call of the trumpet in my affections. I cannot believe that Uncle Sam will turn old John Shore out of the home where he has lived in happiness so many years."

Shore served under Gen. McClellan in his Peninsula campaign, and later under "Fighting Joe" Hooker.

"I don't care where I sleep, just so's de mosquitoes don't bother me none," said Andrew Lewis, a negro, who is numbered among the "squatters." "Many's the time I slept out in de field under de bushes, and I guess if de Lord wills it, I can do it again. Oh course, my old woman an' de kids can't do that. There's just de trouble—what dose seven peckin' stables are gwine to do, in de worst comes, I expects I'll have to eat it out down at Ocoquan; but I don't know what dem kids is gwine to do."

Marshals May Act.

The squatters are given twenty days in which to appear before court, but it is doubtful whether they will make the trip without the persuasive efforts of the marshals. All were given their homes by the company whose right to the land is now being questioned by the government. Proceedings were instituted by request of the War Department, which has been seeking for a number of years to acquire possession of the property.

HEIRS FIGHT SETTLEMENT.

Clarke Estate Mixed Up in Waggaman Bankruptcy Tangle.

Ellen M. Morse, Juliana Rachel Waggaman Daniel, Daniel B. Clarke Waggaman, and Mary Agnes Waggaman Willett, as heirs-at-law and next of kin of Dr. Daniel B. Clarke, yesterday filed a protest to the proposed settlement between H. Rozier Dulany and the Catholic University regarding the latter's claim against the bankrupt estate of Thomas E. Waggaman, its former treasurer.

The Clarke estate has a claim of $140,000. The university under the compromise was to receive about $50,000 in cash and securities in settlement of its claim of about $200,000, which had been held by Waggaman in his capacity as treasurer of the institution.

Neighbor Petitions for Injunction Against Riding Academy.

Elizabeth M. Hill, of Twenty-second and P streets, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to enjoin proceedings with the remodeling of the Washington Riding Academy, under a permit given by the building inspector.

The petitioner alleges that the academy would be a public stable, where the horses owned by members of the club will be housed.

She declined to join in the consent of other owners in the vicinity, and names as defendants the District Commissioners, the building inspector, the Washington Riding Company, and its agent, Benjamin McCaully, and Arthur Cowsell, the contractor.

EXCURSIONS.

It cannot be questioned that the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Company's week-end trips to Old Point and Ocean View are the most popular short outings available for local residents. They give two nights' sail on fresh and salt water, and a stay of one or more days at the famous resorts mentioned above. Some of the tickets are only for transportation; others include steamer expenses and full board at hotels at the resorts. The Norfolk and Washington company also offer single-day and round-trip tickets to New York and Boston by sea, staterooms and meals included, from Norfolk, where connections are made with Merchant and Miners' and Old Dominion Lines. Ticket offices are located at 720 Fourteenth street and at Seventh street wharf.

The fact that Chevy Chase Lake is so easily reached is a great point in its favor. Concerts by a large section of the Marine Band are nightly features, with dancing as the next most popular attraction. The musical programme is over by 9 o'clock, the remainder of the evening being devoted to dancing and other amusements.
