MEMORIAL BRIDGE A SHATTERED HOPE

Corner Stone All Remaining of Noble Endeavor.

ABANDONED ON VACANT LOT

Tribute of the Stone Cutters to G. A. R. Plan of Connecting Washington and Arlington Revives Discussion and Opens New Possibility for Beautifying Capital Landscape.

Designed and presented by the Stone Cutters' Union of Washington, D. C., as the corner stone of the Memorial Bridge, which, in connecting the nation's Capital with Arlington, shall ever stand as a monument to American patriotism.

Since that day eight years ago this handsome memorial has occupied a hole in the corner of the vacant lot adjoining the Belasco Theater. The bridge may never be built. This has been practically decided since the completion of the Highway Bridge, which is now designed as a part of the general parking scheme that will make Washington and her suburbs more beautiful.

The next Congress is expected to determine whether that magnificent boulevard from the Grant statue through the Mall to the Monument and through the Zoo to the National Park is to be built. The plans are in the hands of the proper people, and will be presented for the final determination.

Across the river from Washington Monument is the beautiful Potomac Drive and surrounding flower beds through which those going to the Arlington Cemetery would need pass if the main entrance were on the east side. Potomac Drive is beauty going to waste, in the opinion of some, because there is not sufficient attraction beyond to draw the crowds that should be permitted to gaze upon its grandeur.

Matter Lost Sight Of. S. S. Burdett, past commander-in-chief, Department of the Potomac, G. A. R., when seen yesterday afternoon, said that he had often seen the corner stone in the vacant lot and had wondered how it came there, as he could not remember any of the services connected with its dedication.

O. H. Oldroyd, assistant adjutant general, Department of the Potomac, G. A. R., stated that he remembered the stone being given, but the G. A. R. was getting to be an age when its vitality was pretty well spent and it had not been pushing the matter. If a bill had been introduced in the session of Congress just closed, said Col. Oldroyd, it would be a foregone conclusion that resolutions would be unanimously adopted by the coming national encampment at Atlantic City next month, but this department alone would not be able to bring the matter before Congress in a way to induce them to make the appropriation, as it would take the concerted action of all the posts and departments of the G. A. R. throughout the breadth of the land to interest Congress.

MALADY ATTACKS ADULT.

Georgetown Merchant Is Suffering from Infantile Paralysis. Infantile paralysis has attacked Joseph Rosendorf, merchant of 373 M street northwest, who is in a critical condition at Washington Asylum Hospital, where he was taken after being denied admission to several other institutions on the ground that he was suffering from a contagious disease.

Rosendorf conducts a second-hand clothing store, and it is thought he contracted the disease by handling old garments. He gradually lost the use of his limbs, and a diagnosis of his case revealed that he was suffering from the baby malady.

Two infant cases were reported to the health department yesterday. Dr. Woodward said that if mothers would only follow the instructions of the department they would save their children much suffering.

Sears; 75-yard dash, open to all, C. Gibson; relay race, boys under fourteen, Reds; volley ball, Reds; baseball, Blues, score 4 to 2.

Two dozen dainty girls in a German clap dance, and eighteen others in a game of baseball, topped off a programme of unusual interest at the open-air entertainment given under the auspices of the Washington Playgrounds Association on the Rosedale playgrounds, Seventeenth and Kraemer streets northeast, yesterday afternoon.

The clap dance consists of beautiful evolutions in which the costumed participants allow their hands over their heads, behind their backs, at their feet, and otherwise, moving at the command of a leader. They had been carefully trained for this occasion and carried it through with uniform success.

Girls Play Baseball. There were nine girls under fourteen years of age on one side and nine under twelve on the other in the baseball game, in which the bases were full of runners nearly all the time and every moment furnished excitement.

The exercises were under the personal direction of Miss Edith Grosvenor, head teacher, and Miss E. L. Murray, assistant, in charge of the girls, and H. C. Byrd and P. H. Zinkhan, assistants, in charge of the boys.

The Washington Playground Association will open a playground for girls and small boys at Fourteenth street and Columbia road to-morrow. It will be especially for little children, and will be open each day from 9 o'clock until dark, except Sundays. Special provision will be made for children accompanied by nurses. James E. West is secretary.

SYLVESTER GIVES WARNING

Police Captains Instructed to Look After Children. Action Follows Complaints of Custom of Playing in Street and Destroying Private Property.

Supt. Richard Sylvester, of the police, issued the following general order to precinct captains yesterday:

There has recently been discussion concerning children playing in the streets and public parks, and in many instances erroneous impressions have been had regarding the attitude of the department on this subject.

You and your command are so doubt familiar with the several orders and admonitions advanced as to the desire of the department that the children should be cautioned when they gather in and about school premises during "taking in," "letting out," and at recess times, so that the end that those of tender years should have every friendly advice as to their good conduct in public places, and when not heeded, that parents should be advised to correct them.

The hundreds of complaints made by citizens regarding the destruction of property by children, playing of ball in the streets, jumping on and off street railway cars, and other vehicles, leading in and about downtown places, have each had your careful attention and at times firm action, in the face of the refusal of children or parents to act as requested; but your course has generally been kind and sympathetic, and it is urged that in doing for the protection of life and limb and property, members of your command exert every influence for betterment to that end.

When firm action must be had which encourages criticism, the court must be appealed to in order to correct that which is wrong and which you find impossible to remedy through avoidance of official action.

Urgo the abandonment of the dangerous streets as playgrounds, and a friendly intimation will often accomplish the end desired.
