CONGRESS ASKS DATA OF INAUGURATION FATALITIES

Information Wanted to Strengthen the Movement for Change of Date from March 4.

In prosecuting his search for important data bearing on the advisability of changing the date of inauguration from March 4 to the last Thursday in April, Chairman Henry, of the House Committee on Rules, has called upon the last inauguration committee for complete compilation of fatalities due to weather exposure in Washington in the months of March and May for the last twenty years. He has also asked to be supplied with data concerning the weather conditions during that period and in the months mentioned.

Moving steadily forward with his plan to provide a better weather period for inauguration, Chairman Henry proposes to show in as graphic manner as possible the dangers to which persons are subjected when they brave Washington March weather for the purpose of witnessing open air ceremonies, and he believes that a comparison of the ordinary number of deaths which occur in March to those which occur in May will show some startling facts, especially in the years when Presidents are inaugurated.

"I am confident that the figures of the past twenty years will disclose some strong argument for abandoning March 4 as the date of the Presidential inauguration," said Representative Henry yesterday. "The weather in Washington at that period is almost invariably dangerous to persons who invite exposure. The list of fatalities from complications arising from lung affections, I am sure, will be found to be very large in March of each year. The date for the inauguration which I propose occurs close to the mid month of May. Therefore I have asked Mr.

MacFarland to supply me with the fatality record in regard to colds and lung trouble in that month also. In order to compare the exact temperatures of the two months, I have asked to be supplied with the weather records for a twenty-year period. I am satisfied that it is a matter of absurdity for Congress to cavil longer concerning the change of inauguration date, and I promise to show that the maintenance of March 4th means a downright sacrifice of human life.

MISS HOUGHTON LEAVES HOSPITAL

Successful Skin Grafting Operations Performed.

After three and a half months of suffering and submitting to numerous operations of skin grafting, Miss Alice V. Houghton, who was scalped at the Census Office on the afternoon of January 31st, was discharged from the Emergency Hospital yesterday morning, and, in company with her brother, Alfred Houghton, a patent attorney, was taken to her home, 2011 Kalorama road northwest.

During her stay in the hospital, Miss Houghton has submitted to no less than ten skin grafting operations. In nearly every case the cuticle was given up by relatives, but in one case a girl friend submitted to an operation.

The first operation, in which her brother Vernon and a girl friend gave some of their skin, was successful, but the second operation, in which another of the injured girl's family gave up cuticle, was not as successful as had been expected. All the later operations were to a large degree successful. The last operation was performed about six weeks ago. Miss Houghton's physical condition is all that could be expected.

Since the first warm day, Miss Houghton has taken daily carriage rides with her family in the early hours of the morning.

HEYBURN URGES COLORED PEOPLE TO LEAVE THE CITY

Points Out Their Success in Farm Industries.

APPLAUDED AT CHURCH

Laborer as Good as Preacher, He Tells Big Audience.

"Spread yourselves in the fields, remove to the farms where you are needed most, because there are too many of you in the District," Senator Heyburn, of Idaho, last night, in an address in Cosmopolitan Baptist Church, earnestly advised the colored people of the District of Columbia to scatter themselves, to locate in other places, and take firm hold upon the business and industrial affairs of the nation.

Senator Heyburn, of Idaho, last night, in an address in Cosmopolitan Baptist Church, earnestly advised the colored people of the District of Columbia to scatter themselves, to locate in other places, and take firm hold upon the business and industrial affairs of the nation.

POINTS TO SUCCESS.

The words of the Senator were vigorously applauded. Senator Heyburn had asserted that unselfishness is the chief aid to success. Previous to the meeting he had been urged by a negro painter in the ante-room of the church to ask Congress in his position as Senator, for an appropriation for the maintenance of an industrial school for negroes. Having his subject on this plan, Mr. Heyburn said that in order to make an industrial school a success, some time must be devoted by skilled artisans toward the free instruction of pupils.

"You must first look toward the preservation of your lives, then toward your own success," said Senator Heyburn. "But you must leave a margin for your fellow-man. When I see the heap of unselfishness, I will cover it with a heap of gold."

"Also, do not be ashamed of labor. The man who digs with pick and shovel is as honorable as the man in the pulpit. If you give up your race for success, as near as you are to the goal, you will have it away. Spread yourselves in the fields, remove to the farms, where you are needed most. Washington is a great city, but there are too many of you here."

URGES VARIOUS INDUSTRIES.

"I am interested in seeing your race in the fields of farm and labor industries. Honor is to the man who engages in some kind of pursuit, where he is independent. My words are intended principally for the girls and boys among you. It is their duty to see that people reach for higher and nobler things."

The last principle for you to remember, and one of the most important, is that stand together as a race you must. It is the first law of preservation. Following the law of providing for yourself, but also providing for your fellow-man. I am glad to see you urging an industrial school, as near as you are to the goal, you will have it away. Spread yourselves in the fields, remove to the farms, where you are needed most. Washington is a great city, but there are too many of you here."

HARPER SEEKS ACCOUNTING.

Banker Files Suit Against Former Partner, J. Miller Kenyon.

Robert N. Harper, president of the District National Bank, yesterday filed suit for an accounting against J. Miller Kenyon, former partner with plaintiff in the banking firm of Harper & Co. Plaintiff asks that the Washington Loan and Trust Company be designated as receiver to take over the assets under dispute pending an adjudication.

The bill alleges that Mr. Kenyon is liable for one-half of a note for $15,000 given by Thomas L. Hume to Harper & Co. when Mr. Hume withdrew from the partnership on March 1, 1909. The note, according to plaintiff, was guaranteed by Harper & Co. and Kenyon, but was called on to pay the note, the firm of Harper & Co. had been dissolved, and Mr. Harper says he requested Mr. Kenyon to contribute his share of the note.

BENEFIT IS GIVEN FOR WORKING BOYS

Society Enjoys Entertainment at the Playhouse.

That Washington society is always ready to give a helping hand to a deserving cause was demonstrated last night at theatricals given for the benefit of the Working Boys' Home, which pushed the playhouse and realized a goodly sum for the institution.

The entertainment was given under direction of the junior auxiliary and proved a thorough success from every point of view, financial as well as histrionic and social. A splendid programme entertained and amused the audience and those who participated deserve every encomium of praise for the clever manner in which they handled their parts.

"A Tragedy Deferred" was the title of the opening number. It is a stage version of a story by E. P. Elliott, adapted and staged by F. W. Evans, who appeared before the footlights in his capacity as stage manager just in time to prevent Mr. James F. McKee, who took the part of "He," from doing bodily injury to Miss Arline Pretty, who appeared as "She," by trying to strangle her because "She" assured "He" "She" had no idea of securing a divorce from "He." The whole thing was carried out very effectively and proved highly amusing.

George O'Connor made a hit with his coon and dago songs, and so did Miss Saxton, with her graceful execution of the Danube dance.

"Breaking Into Society," a comedietta by Granville Fortescue, formed the second part of the programme. The characters were taken by William Merriam, Miss Anita Parker, Edward Cady, and Ford Thompson. The little skit was received with loud applause. Music was furnished by the Marine Band under direction of Lieut. Saintamant.

Dalgleish Expected to Go on Stand This Afternoon.

The hearing in the now famous Sully-Hammond case will be continued this afternoon at the office of Attorney Philip Walker, counsel for John Hays Hammon, who has been sued by Daniel J. Sully for $150,000 damages for alleged defamation of character.

G. Scott Dalgleish, of London, one of the co-defendants, is expected to go on the stand this afternoon.

Attorney Walker yesterday notified the District Supreme Court of Hammond's appointment by President Taft as special ambassador to the coronation of King George V of England, and asked the court to excuse him from further testimony in the Sully case until after his return to this country, next November. Hammond must sail for England on May 27.

Transcripts were attached to the motion, according to which Attorney Gittings, counsel for Sully, is alleged to have passed the lie.

"You are stating a falsehood," Gittings is quoted as saying to Hammond, who in the mining expert declared the attorney was trying to entrap him with questions.

"I mean to say you are another," Hammond answered, according to the transcript.

Notice of the motion for a postponement of the cross-examination until next fall was served yesterday on Attorney Gittings, as counsel for the former "cotton king." The notice specifies tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. as the time of calling the matter to the attention of the court. Mr. Hammond, who left Washington last night, is expected to be back by Friday, to be on hand to hear what disposition the court has made of his motion.
