

New Manager for Washington Club Will Be Selected To-day

Looks Like Griffith Will Pilot Nationals

Veteran Manager Likely Choice of Washington Club Directors at Meeting To-day—Cap Anson Praises Walter Johnson.

By WILLIAM FEET.

It seems to be the opinion of those closely identified with the affairs of the Washington baseball club that Clarke Griffith, former manager of the Cincinnati Reds, will be the man selected to fill Jim McAlleer's shoes and will pilot the Nationals next summer.

The club directors will meet this afternoon and announce their selection—a wise move, inasmuch as the new leader should be chosen at once, instead of waiting until winter.

Just what Griffith can accomplish toward giving Washington a team which will finish higher than seventh or eighth place is hard to say. Griffith has a harder problem on his hands than he encountered during his service in Cincinnati, because there is no nucleus around which to build a team as awaited in the case of the charge in the Ohio city two years ago.

The Reds did not set the National League off the past summer, but during the last end of the season they put up a mighty good game and a number of promising players were uncovered.

Griffith has had considerable experience as a manager, and has the faculty of being able to handle his men in such a manner as to get the best possible results. He might be able to take hold of the local club, and if any of the new recruits look promising, mold together a team that will finish near the top of the first division. If such happened to be the case, Washingtonians would hail him as the greatest ever. Griffith surely could do no worse than did McAlleer during the past two years.

The writer had the pleasure of riding out to Shiloh Park in Philadelphia last Thursday in the same automobile with Adrian Anson, the famous former National League.

The subject of pitchers came up, and during the discussion, Walter Johnson's name was mentioned. "I've seen Johnson pitch," said Anson, "and I consider him the best in the world. He has more speed than anybody I ever saw, and with easy graceful motion should enjoy a long life in the big league; there is one criticism or rather one fault about Johnson's work, and that is, that he is not a pitcher, but a ball player. I think he would be much more effective."

Chief Bender Insisted on Working in Decisive Game

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 29.—Hidden beneath the story of the final game of the world's series is a tale that should be bruited to the world, the tale of personal confidence that made the Athletic success and crowned the gallant Bender with the title of victor. It was the original intention of Connie Mack to have Plank pitch the contest that proved to be the final chapter in the world's series volume.

However, managerial craft led the slim strategist to send Bender, Plank and Krause to go through the necessary preliminaries. Still confident that Plank would be his ultimate choice, the manager of the Mackmen watched his pitcher.

The hour of activity was drawing nigh, and the big chief, his face stern and set, walked over to his manager and said: "I will pitch for you." The chief's face was stern and set, and his eyes were fixed on the manager. "I will pitch for you," he said, "and I will win for you."

STICKS TO M'GRAW.

Jennings Admits He "Pulled" for Old Pal.

Hushey Jennings, the Detroit's manager, rooted for the Giants in the world's series and made no secret of it. His partisanship was wholly due to the fact that he and McGraw have been close friends since they played side by side on the champion Baltimore. "Friendship always cuts a big figure with me," says Jennings, "and that's why I couldn't turn my back on McGraw. I do not see why I should be scored by American League men for expressing my feelings. I didn't tip off the Athletics' weak points, because they didn't have any to speak of, and the charge that I advised the spiking of Baker was absurd. McGraw is my pal and that's all there is to it. He'd root just as hard for Detroit if we played a world's series with any other National League team."

Satisfied to Let the Team Remain Intact.

Do not get discouraged at strong opposition. Keep your courage and determination when the game seems to be going against you. The team that has met and surmounted strong opposition and difficulties is the team worth while.

Think, be versatile. Take advantage of every opportunity. Clear your mind, cloak models, and boundary monuments have their uses, but not on the football field.

Use your "sneaklights." A universal rule for tackling—Never let anything get away from you.

Do not hesitate. "Go to it." Carry the fight into the enemy's country. Remember it is not what you did in your last game or last year that is going to win the day, but what you do now. You will get out of the game just about what you put into it.

The spirit of the contest is half the battle, so have plenty of spirit, but "No spirits." A man without courage and confidence is looked before the game begins.

The man who can "come back" after he has encountered difficulties is made of the right stuff. The rules say "keep one foot on the ground when making a tackle," but this does not mean you should grow there.

Eleven men make a football team now as in the early days of the game. But modern requirements make it necessary that the eleven play constantly together and to the one end; if one man lags, or is inefficient it is almost impossible for the others to get good results, no matter how well directed may be their efforts. Individual strength, wit, courage, and ability must be there. But they must weld themselves into a chain that makes every advantage possessed by one member of the team a common asset.

It is team play, and only team play, that will yield success. And no eleven can succeed without it.

Triple Tie May Result If Western Trims Tech

Whether or not Western High School's football team will be a contender for the District high school championship will be learned on Tuesday when the Red and White stack up against the Technical team.

Since suffering defeat at the hands of Central by a 6 to 0 score the boys from Georgetown have had the advantage of more than a week of practice, which should make them even better than on their last appearance, when the battle they gave their conquerors was a distinct surprise to many who looked for Central to run up a much larger score. If the light Western team is able to put one over on the Manual Trainers they will still be in the running for the measure of the Central aggregation, and by some they are conceded to have a chance, a three-cornered tie would result, providing no unlooked for surprise from the weaker teams eliminated either of the aspirants for the title.

YALE TO ADOPT SECRET PRACTICE

Plays Will Be Taught Men Behind Closed Doors.

New Haven, Oct. 29.—The beginning of permanent secret football practice at Yale has been set down for this week. It may be ordered for to-morrow, at the latest it will begin on Tuesday.

Yale has shown nothing in the line of progressive attack. Its scoring has been in simple plunging or dodging runs, and no attempt to perfect a scoring play that is an innovation has been made. All that is novel in the Yale attack is the interference which has been built up of some line splits that are along original lines.

Plays gathered by Springer Brooks, the Yale end rush coach, during his three weeks' stay in Minnesota are among those it is supposed the Yale coach will teach in secret this week. Capt. Tom Shogren is also coming back to remain till the close of the season, with all the Western gridiron scoring styles in his traveling bag.

His tripping of Merritt, quarter back and acting captain, yesterday was a keen disappointment to the coaches. After weeks of plunging, Merritt was just rounding into brilliant form. He will be benched for two weeks, possibly longer.

VIGILANTS VICTORS OVER TROOP A

Down Soldiers in Good Game by 10 to 0.

Southeast is joyful to-day over the double victory scored by two of the favorite football teams of that locality. The Vigilants, who have not been scored upon in the last three seasons, and Troop A, of Port Myers, were the contesting teams in the final number, which was billed as the attraction, and Capital City League Park was filled with a good-sized crowd, which thoroughly enjoyed the sport. Two touchdowns were scored by the Southeast boys, while the Soldiers had a hard time penetrating the winners' defense, and were unable to count.

The first game was between the Waters' and Hall's Stars, and resulted in victory for the latter, by a 5 to 0 score.

In the final game, Troop B, which was scheduled to appear, was unable to be present, owing to the illness of several of their star players, and the team from Port Myers was forced into the conflict.

The game was a fine exhibition, each team struggling until the final whistle. The Vigilants, although outnumbered twenty pounds to the man, displayed a more thorough knowledge of the fine points of the game, which was responsible for their victory over their heavier opponents. Both teams played a fast and clean game, the work of Lacroix and Gielbel being especially noteworthy. Craft, of Troop A, also did well. Line-up and summary:

CORNELL IN GOOD SHAPE. No Serious Injuries Result from Pittsburg Game.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 29.—When the Cornell football coaches looked over the players to-day to see how they came through the Pittsburg game, they were pleased to find that there were practically no serious injuries, and the whole squad went out for a five-mile walk. Although the coaches are satisfied that the two weeks since the defeat by Pennsylvania State has shown considerable improvement, they say the game proved that in team work Cornell was very ragged, and there is a lot to do before the game with Michigan.
