MACKAY-SMITH CALLED BY DEATH

Noted Churchman Victim of Heart Disease.

Philadelphia, Nov. 16.—Bishop Alexander Mackay-Smith, of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania, and one of the most prominent churchmen in the country, died suddenly at the episcopal residence in South Twenty-second street shortly after 3 a. m. today. Death was due to heart disease. He was sixty-one years of age.

Bishop Mackay-Smith had not been in good health for several years, and early this year signified his intention of resigning as bishop of the diocese. In carrying out his wishes the diocesan convention elected the Rev. Dr. Phillips Mercer Rhineland, of Boston, bishop coadjutor, and the Rev. Thomas J. Garland, suffragan bishop. They were consecrated on October 23 and Bishop Mackay-Smith was to have retired from his episcopal office in February.

The bishop was one of the wealthiest clergymen in the country. He was born in New Haven, in 1850, and came of a distinguished New England family. He was graduated from Trinity College in 1872, studied at the General Theological Seminary in New York, and in England and Germany. In 1877 he was ordained to the priesthood. He served as a city missionary in Boston, rector of Grace Church, South Boston; was assistant minister of St. Thomas' Church, New York, from 1880 to 1886, and from 1886 to 1893 he was archdeacon and missionary superintendent of the Diocese of New York.

In 1893 he became rector of St. John's church, Washington, and bishop coadjutor of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania. Bishop Whitaker being in feeble health, Bishop Mackay-Smith took up most of his duties, and when the former died on February 11, 1911, Bishop Mackay-Smith assumed the full duties of the office.

Bishop Mackay-Smith leaves a widow and three daughters. His wife was Miss Virginia Stewart. A half-brother, the Rev. Cornelius Bishop Smith, rector emeritus of St. James' Church, New York.

The funeral will be held Saturday, November 18, at 10 o'clock, in the church. Burial will be in Woodlawn cemetery, New York city.

CALL BY DEATH.

ALEXANDER MACKAY-SMITH,
Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania.

FRATERNITY SONGS ENLIVEN BANQUET

Delta Chi Recalls College
Days at Feast.

With fraternity songs and shouts echoing through the corridors of the New Willard, and with felicitous speeches recalling the old college days, the "home-coming banquet" of the Delta Chi Fraternity of Georgetown University, was held last night in the red room of the big hotel. About seventy-five members of the organization sat around a festive board while the olden times were recalled.

James F. Abbott was toastmaster. Vernon E. West spoke in answer to the toast, "Welcome, Old Boys," and Ben Malone responded to the toast, "How it feels to be a boy again." "The alumni" was the subject of a brief address by W. W. Birds, and R. Ross Perry, Jr., spoke on "The ideal lawyer." D. W. Baker responded to a toast to "Georgetown," and "Pro bono publico" was the title of a brief address by John G. Park. Charles A. Douglas spoke on "The law," and Thomas W. Branham, John J. Kuhn spoke on "Delta Chi."

The banquet was the latest, with one possible exception, ever held by the fraternity. All of the speakers dwelt on the value of fraternalism. The Virginia-Georgetown football game, scheduled for tomorrow, was mentioned a score of times. It was stated by the presiding officer that the series of football games between the two schools was the result of a brotherly influence of the Delta Chi. There was also a strong feeling of bitterness existing between the two institutions, but finally representatives of each college met on the common ground of Delta Chi and established a bond of friendship.

Lectures on Egypt.

More than 200 young women attended the lecture on Egypt, given last night by William K. Naulty, at the Inmaculate Conception Academy, corner Eighth and N streets northwest. The lecture was given under the auspices of the alumnae association of the academy. Mr. Naulty showed 150 views of Egypt, taken by him on his tour of that country, to illustrate his talk.

The committee in charge of the convention is headed by Dr. Charles E. Munroe of the George Washington University, who states that Dr. Harvey W. Wiley will be among the prominent speakers.

"Slammed" When Not Looking.

F. Tiffany Fairfax, colored, twenty-three years old, was found lying unconscious at Thirteenth and H streets northeast last night, with a gash on his head and bruises on various parts of his body. He was taken to the Casualty Hospital in the ambulance, and when revived told the doctors some unidentified person had assaulted him.
