CITY DEMOCRATS WELCOME WILSON

After March 4 People Will Be His "Home Folks," They Tell Him at Seagirt Home.

"I LIKE THAT SPECIMEN," SAYS GOV. WILSON IN REPLY

Association Plans to Solicit $1 Subscriptions from Teachers to Aid Campaign Fund.

By C. S. PARTRIDGE.
Seagirt, N. J., Aug. 1.—District of Columbia Democrats brought to Woodrow Wilson at Seagirt to-day a message from the Nation's Capital, giving him hearty welcome from the people whom they told him would be his "home folks" after March 4, 1912. The Governor sent "back home" the message: "I like these specimens of the home folks."
The special train of the Wilson and Marshall Democratic Association, upon which the District people came to Seagirt, arrived at 1 o'clock, and the delegation, headed by the officers of the association, proceeded at once to the little White House. Gov. Wilson met his visitors with cordial but informal hospitality. E. Benton, Jr., planned an association badge on the Governor and formally enrolled him as a member.
His gravity, as of a man who feels an inspiring responsibility, was lightened by a manner which at once won the respect of the people. Both President Charles A. Douglas and Vice President Henry E. Davis of the association had known for several years, and he had met other members of the association, and National Committeeman John F. Costello, who marched to the little White House with Charles W. Darr, treasurer of the association. There were no speeches, only informal though quite serious conversation.

Plans for Campaign.
The spokesman of the delegation proposed several plans of the campaign to be conducted by the association, and Gov. Wilson evinced the keenest interest. One of these plans is one to ask contributions of $1 each from the teachers of the country. The Presidential candidate was reminded that this appeal had never before been made.
"Teachers have precious little to contribute," the Governor said. "I have been in the profession and know it is dry."
Dr. Owens and Mr. Douglas left tonight for New York to discuss with William F. McCombs the plan for soliciting subscriptions from teachers.
The association's plan to send speakers into States adjoining the District and to see that Democratic voters residents in Washington go to their homes to vote greatly attracted the Governor.
"That is practical work," he said.
The association's work, it was explained, is to be done under the direction of the national campaign committee in New York, and the Governor seemed to like that proposed arrangement.
Fulton R. Gordon discussed with Gov. Wilson the Democratic platform, and the Governor said he would make an appointment with Mr. Gordon later for a fuller discussion.

Confers with Owens.
The Governor talked with Clarence J. Owens, secretary of the association, and managing director of the Southern Commercial Congress, about the planks placed in the platform by request of the congress, one favoring an investigation of foreign systems of agricultural credits and the other favoring vocational education.
J. Fred Kelley, himself a historical Democrat, it might be said, because Mr. Kelley has for so long and with such enthusiastic consistency been a Democrat, presented to Gov. Wilson a historical cartoon issued as "campaign literature" by the Democrats in the campaign which elected Grover Cleveland President in 1884.
Mr. Kelley's copy of the cartoon, at the per of its issuance a famous picture throughout the country, is one of the few extant, and forms a part of his fine collection of Democratic documents, pictures, "doggers" and other forms of written and printed appeals for votes. The cartoon is modeled upon the noted painting by Kaubach called "The Fall of Jerusalem," and in the place of each of the characters of the original painting is portrayed some person prominent in the politics of 1884.
Only One Still Alive.
And of all the persons so portrayed but one is now alive—Belva Lockwood, then a candidate for the Presidency. Mrs. Lockwood is depicted as trying to comfort two frightened women, symbolical of members of the Republican party, whose "destruction" is represented by the cartoon. Mrs. Lockwood occupies in the picture a prominent place near the center.
The other figures one and all stir the memory. Grover Cleveland is leading a triumphant procession. Close behind him are Thomas A. Hendricks, the Vice Presidential candidate, and Carl Schurz, representing the independent sentiment of the country, and William R. Morrison, of Illinois, once chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.
Angels, symbolic of the Democratic press, are hovering about the group, and near the angels, Samuel Tilden, bearing a shield emblazoned 1876, stands defiant, as one who has been in the forefront of the triumphal procession.
Near Tilden Rescues Conkling stand, severely watching James G. Blaine slaying the Republican party to death. At Blaine's feet are the famous Mulligan letters and Little Rock bonds.
Kelley is Foreground.
Gen. J. Warren Kelley, former speaker of the House of Representatives, is one of the prostrate figures in the foreground. John A. Logan and George M. Robeson, also felled to earth, are near Gen. Kelley, and near them are a "navy ring" and a policeman's club labeled "monopoly."
Henry Ward Beecher is seated upon an ass, and close about him is a happy chorus singing hallohuas.
The picture contains several allegorical figures representing the independent press of the country. One of the journals so represented is Harper's Weekly, whose amiable support of Gov. Wilson has been notable.

Abroad Special Train.
The following members of the association composed the delegation: Charles A. Douglas, John E. Lasky, Charles R. Newman, Charles W. Darr, J. J. Horigan, Crandal Mackey, Maurice Connors, Levi H. David, Geo. R. Larkin, Howard Dockett, L. P. Shoemaker, Benjamin Sherman, Charles Hendheim, Daniel O'Connell, D. K. Jackson, Harvey M. Friend, B. W. Parker, J. C. Brooke, Raymond A. Heiskell, Cox, A. E. T. Giddie, E. T. Benton, Jr., W. J. Neale, David Wolf, Dr. Elmer Jackson, E. D. Siggers, W. H. Saunders, W. R. Blum, W. G. Carter, J. J. Staley, Ernest H. Daniel, L. E. Harlow, E. E. McCalmont, W. B. Hardy, Walter A. Johnston, C. V. Sparrow, E. S. Brahears, George H. Lamar, H. C. Stewart, J. Finley, W. Winship Wheeler, C. W. Huake, Dr. C. J. Owens, George P. Hoover, Walter Costello, E. C. Bryan, John Schwartz, Frederick M. Peisman, John A. Saul, F. J. Rice, H. E. Davis, William W. E. John, F. Costello, Dr. Andrew Stewart, Lisle S. Lipscomb, H. C. Davis, C. S. Partridge, Harry Peyton, J. A. Heany, W. J. Martin, Claude N. Beaght, Earl Godwin, J. Stewart Price, Jeremiah O'Connor, R. A. Ford, W. S. Riley, and G. O. Montgomery.

PERFECT PLANS FOR WILSON NOTIFICATION

Seagirt, N. J., Aug. 1.—Plans for the official notification of Gov. Wilson on August 7 were perfected to-day at a conference between the Governor and Ollie James, who is chairman of the notification committee. The committee is to meet at the Hotel Imperial in New York and journey by special train to Seagirt, where they will have lunch with the candidate.
The notification will take place at 3 o'clock. Gov. Wilson and Chairman James will stand on the veranda while the members of the committee and the visiting Democrats will stand on the lawn below or sit on camp stools provided for them. It is expected that about 5,000 Democrats will attend the ceremony.
Though having a natural prejudice against the presence of police or militiamen on such an occasion, the Governor was finally persuaded by Adjt. Gen. Wilbur F. Sadler to consent to the assignment of a company of militiamen to keep the crowds in order.
Gov. Wilson inadvertently let fall a remark to-night that indicates that Henry Morgenthau, a wealth real estate operator of New York, would be named as treasurer of the campaign committee.
O'Gorman with Governor.
The Governor had been in conversation with Mr. Morgenthau. Afterward he remarked that Mr. Morgenthau was going with his family to the Adirondacks, "but," he added, "he will be back ready for business in ten days."
Senator O'Gorman was with the Governor for a time and his remarks later seemed to indicate that Mr. Morgenthau will be the financial backer. The Senator was asked if he had discussed with the candidate the political situation in New York.
"Yes," he replied, "that was one of the questions we discussed."
"Will there be opposition to the nomination of Gov. Dix?"
"There are several candidates," was the reply.
"Will Gov. Wilson intervene in the State fight?"
"No."
"Is the situation in New York State such as to give encouragement to Gov. Wilson?"
"New York will be carried by Gov. Wilson, and the State ticket, undoubtedly. Conditions in the State could not be more encouraging."
If the plans of the Jersey City Democrats are carried out, the notification ceremonies may be turned into a Donnybrook Fair. Mayor Witpen, of that city, will be a candidate for the nomination for Governor, has gotten together a delegation to attend the ceremonies.
Sheriff Weder, who is a bitter opponent of the Mayor, has organized an opposition delegation. The Mayor will call a parade separately in Jersey City, and come to Seagirt on separate trains. Each will strive for recognition from the Presidential nominee. Weder's plan is to minimize Witpen's gubernatorial bid.

"DAGO" FRANK BREAKS DOWN AND CONFESSES

According to the authorities, Hart's testimony showed that Becker was in constant communication with Rose, who has confessed to having been a tool of Becker in the murder plot, at a time when the police official should have been arresting Rose instead of parleying with him.
"Dago Frank" testimony explicitly states that the money for the killing was paid over by Sam Scheppie, who is the man named by "Dago" as "Bridger" Webber as Becker's agent in the matter. The links of the cabin fit as if forged, and they are binding closer and closer the accused police officer, Hart's admissions being especially convincing of Becker's guilty knowledge of the conspiracy and the resulting assassination.
An interesting incident was Hart's statement that he had conferred frequently, as Becker's attorney, with William Travers Jerome, former district attorney. The grand jury now wants to know if Jerome really was an attorney for Becker and Hart or only a blind.

Foedick to Give Testimony.
Commissioner of Accounts Raymond Foedick, who resigned to Mayor Gaynor, refused to deny that there had been "passive friction" in the form of lack of cooperation between himself and the mayor. Mr. Foedick will turn over to the district attorney all the evidence he has secured in the graft investigation.
Corporation Counsel Watson issued a statement this afternoon in which he said that he will not be deprived of his right to conduct the graft probe proposed by the board of aldermen. Alderman Curran, who forced the aldermen to start the investigation, replied by saying: "We might as well send a bucket of whitewash to police headquarters as to have Watson conduct the investigation. Inspectors have been stationed in front of gambling houses, and Commissioner Waldo has practically turned the police department into a Russian secret service by forwarding the most reliable reports and withholding the reporters from the general department except on business, when they must not enter in the halls nor talk to the men on duty."
Gangsters of the Tenderloin to-day tried to kill Mrs. Mary Bassi, a white slave investigator who claims to have been the wife of George W. Pullman, nephew of the founder of the Pullman Palace Car Company. After Pullman's death she converted and married "Spanish Louis" Bassi, a white slave trafficker in an effort to reform him. He would not stay reformed, however, and now Mrs. Bassi is in New York to tell the District Attorney what she knows of the underworld. She claims each of these women says it is right to the police for permission to walk the streets.
Tickets to a picnic and outing, which it is said will never take place, are being sold in "East Side" to raise funds for fugitive manhunters. The gang which killed Rosenthal, and the same attempt is being made to raise funds for Becker's defense. Despite the worry of his friends, however, Becker is taking life easily, and among other good things, enjoyed smoking sixteen perfectos in his cell in the Tombs to-day.

Still another graft came to light to-day when tentative announcement was made that the saloon business in certain boroughs paid as high as $80,000 a year into the pockets of members of the ring.
Val O'Farrell added to the general mystery of the Rosenthal case to-day by saying that weeks before the tragedy Rosenthal told him that he expected to be shot.

Waldo Bitter.
"If District Attorney Whitman performs his duty in this investigation, he will call me before the grand jury to explain how, under my system of handling the 'strong-arm squad' it was impossible for Lieut. Becker or anybody else to give protection to gamblers to say nothing of selling them that protection."—Police Commissioner Rhineclander Waldo.
"Commissioner Waldo can not serve the city, the county, and the district attorney's office just now by seeing to it that his 15,000 policemen catch the three murderers in this case who are still at liberty. Every additional day these three men are permitted to remain at large is a moral indictment against his department."—District Attorney Charles S. Whitman.
The above statements, made to-night by the men whose names are attached thereto, show the feeling which as Commissioner Rhineclander Waldo, the police and the district attorney offices, which might have been expected to cooperate on the Rosenthal murder investigation and the probe of the graft conditions which this killing revealed.

To Go Before Grand Jury.
It is extremely improbable that Police Commissioner Waldo will be called before the grand jury. All the force of William J. Burns' band of detectives has been turned into the case in behalf of the district attorney, and this is taken to show how much confidence Mr. Whitman has in his ability or willingness of the police department to bring the murderers and the graters to justice.
The most important thing accomplished to-day was the capture of Frank Muller, alias "Whitey" Lewis, one of the four Zelig gangsters and gunmen, charged with having fired the shots which ended the gambler's life. He was arrested at Fleischmann's, N. Y., and carried in an automobile to Kingston, whence he will be brought to New York early to-morrow morning. This is the second of the men who are alleged to have fired the bullets into Rosenthal's body to be captured, the first being "Dago Frank." The two men still at large are "Lefty Louie" and "Dyp the Hood," who are reported to have been seen in company with "Whitey Louie" during the past twenty-four hours, and are believed to be still in the neighborhood where he was arrested.

Prices Paid to Police.
Based on the confession of Jack Rose to the District Attorney, it has been figured out that 20 high-grade gambling houses paid $1,250,000, 35 small games, $50,000, 100 poker rooms, $25,000 and 165 saloons and craps games $150,000 annually to the "system" for protection. This 60 separate and distinct gambling places paid $2,500,000 a year into the pockets of those supposed to preserve the law.
According to Commissioner of Accounts Foedick, who was forced to resign, it is said, because of obstacles put in his way by Mayor Gaynor, more disorderly houses are running in New York than before the days of the Lexow investigation and the graft is collected monthly by the police.
Graft permeates every section of the police department. There is a price for appointment to the force and there is a price for retirement on pension before the applicant has reached such age that retirement is legal, and there is graft in the sale of policemen's uniforms.
The price for retirement on pension through "physical disability" is $400, of which $200 is declared to be set aside for one of the civilian attaches of the department.
There is a probability that Commissioner Foedick will be appointed assistant district attorney so that he can aid Mr. Whitman in the prosecution of the graft inquiry.

Within the next few days the grand jury will hear the stories of some of the best known and wealthiest gamblers in America. They have signified their intention to tell all they know about the graft ring in this city. They are moved by revenge because they claim the police department became extortionate in its demands during the past year or two. They know who got the money and they have stated that they will be waiting to be before the grand jury when the process servers arrive.

agents under one head at Washington. For several years the question of abolishing them has been an issue between the House and the Senate. The House has repeatedly legislated abolishing them, in the pension appropriation bill, but when the measure would reach the Senate the appropriation for continuing them would be restored, and in the conferences heretofore the House has prevailed. This year the House has been persistent, and a deadlock ensued.

has been standing out against the proposal to abolish the pension agencies, because of his interest in one that is established in New England. He is being supported by Senator Gallinger. But for Mr. Burnham's attitude, an agreement would probably have been reached on a compromise amendment to abolish the agencies at the end of the present fiscal year, instead of at once, as the House contemplates.
Some of the Senators believe that it is only a question of time when their must be a consolidation of all the pension
