COLLEGE BOY SHOULD BE "GOOD SPENDER"

President of University Discusses Undergraduates' Finances at Meeting of Washington Alumni.

The annual meeting of the Washington Alumni Association of Western Reserve University was held last night. Frederick C. Bryan, '78, president, and R. S. Gehr, '90, secretary of the Washington association, arranged the meeting. Mr. Bryan presided. President Charles F. Thwing, of the university, was present as honor guest and said, in part:

"The question of how much money the college boy should spend is one to which, in Western Reserve University, we give much attention. In general, a boy should spend, if he is able, about twice his necessary expenses. His books, both textbooks and those for general reading, his traveling expenses, his fees to undergraduate undertakings, literary, fraternal, athletic, dramatic; his contributions to help the other fellows not so well off as he, form a proper part of his expenses, if he is able to meet them. The proper use of the golden mean between parsimony and extravagance."
