that it has more men than necessary at the present time and six weeks' leave of absence has been granted to the reservists of 1907, who number about 500,000. German sailors who were captured when the cruiser Maudslowi was sunk by Russian cruisers off the Gulf of Finland arrived here last night and were interned today in the fortress of Saint-Peter and Paul. No animosity was shown to them as they were marched through the streets.

The destruction of a German Zeppelin was confirmed today by a dispatch from Moscow. This stated that eight men, who had been taken prisoners when the airship was forced to descend after being badly damaged by Russian sharpshooters, had arrived there. Thirteen members of the Zeppelin's crew were killed.

Take Many Prisoners.

New York, Aug. 31.—Following is an official statement given out at the Russian consulate today by Col. Nikolai Golejewski, as coming from the war office at St. Petersburg.

"The garrisons of Thorn and Graudenz, with considerable heavy artillery are taking part in the battles in East Prussia. The Russian advance on this front continues. The Austrian troops in the province of Galicia are crossing to the right bank of the Vistula to take part in a general battle. The main effort of the enemy is concentrated in the direction of Lublin, near Tomaszow.

"Russian troops took nearly 1,000 prisoners. The Fifteenth Hungarian division was defeated and surrounded; whole regiments are surrendering.

"To the east of Lwow the Russians took nearly 2,000 prisoners. Similar successes were attained near Podhajce.

WALTON, S. ABOUT GERMAN VESSELS

England and France Oppose Purchase of Liners for Merchant Marine.

NEUTRALITY IS INVOLVED

British Ambassador Makes Situation Plain to Bryan that Deal Would Cause Entanglements.

The United States government now understands that it will meet with opposition from Great Britain and France if any attempt is made to purchase a fleet of vessels from the North German Lloyd or the Hamburg-American lines.

Gives England's Attitude.

This intimation of Great Britain's attitude, together with the more pronounced stand of the French government has brought the United States face to face with a situation which many here believed would develop when the proposal was first broached to have the government go into the shipping business.

importance to the French plan for the protection of Paris, which is preparing for a siege. One report is that the advisability of moving the seat of government to Bordeaux as a precautionary measure is being considered.

"The German vessels in the North Sea are being held in a cordon by British and French forces. The German fleet is being held in a cordon by British and French forces. The German fleet is being held in a cordon by British and French forces.

Prussia Gets Fresh Troops.

An official telegram received in London declares fresh forces of Germans have made their appearance on the Prussian frontier and that these are taking the offensive against the Russians at several points.

Whether these are the troops which Germany withdrew from Belgium and whisked away on 28 troop trains cannot be authoritatively stated. Nothing has been heard of his army since it entered every train in order to reduce to a minimum the number of non-combatants.

From St. Petersburg come reports that the Russians have routed the Austrian left near Samosce, northern Galicia. Thousands of prisoners were taken as well as many guns and the cossacks are reported to be in pursuit of the scattered forces.

Russian Victories Claimed.

Koenigsberg is reported to have been entered by the Russian troops, who now command the city and fortress. Other reports say the Russians hold only the outer defenses of the city.

The Austrian raid into southeastern Russian Poland is reported to have failed and the Polish soldiers of the Sixth Breslau Corps, serving against the allies on the western frontier, are reported to have mutilated and killed their officers.

The Germans are stoutly defending the towns of Graudenz and Thorn and to the south of Lublin so many Austrians have been slain that the Russians are obliged to pick their way over the bodies.

MUTINY REPORT DENIED.

London, Aug. 31.—The Russian Embassy today issued official denial of reports of a mutiny at Odessa and declared that perfect order prevailed in all cities of the empire.

Goldberg Gets Letter of Credit Changed, But, Oh My, at What Cost!

By R. L. GOLDBERG.

I AM sitting on the wharf at Havre, France, with no very definite idea of what I am going to do with it. My clothes are in Paris. The few odds and ends that help to put me outside the range of Anthony Comstock's wrath were gathered from the wardrobe of a French peasant who was too busy saying good-by to his wife to shoot me down as a looter.

As I slowly and carefully sponge off the celluloid collar that fits me better around the waist than the neck, and with which I expect to hide the abject poverty that has been thrust upon me by the gods of war, I mingle with the thousands of other unfortunate Americans who are waiting to be taken to the land where you can walk into a restaurant, order a dish of ham and eggs, and get ham and eggs.

As I gaze at the improvised fancy vest, which only a few days ago did service as a pillow case in my hotel, it all comes back to me in forcible reality. How, while going for my mail on the Rue Scribe, an excited countryman rushed up and told me that Austria-Hungary had declared war on Servia. Baron Koenigsberg and 10 miles east by north of Thorn, both of which, says an official announcement in St. Petersburg, have been invested by the Russians. It will be recalled that official announcements made in Brussels continued to report victories for the allies, but the German mood was steadily changing. The same course of action may be followed in St. Petersburg.

The baron said: "I declare war. You're it!" FIFTY FRANCIS WORTH OF TOSKA. I was mildly interested. I asked my informer who had been selected to write the music for a clear store in the Boulevard des Capucines and bought a smoke. I tendered the apparition behind the counter a fifty-franc note. She immediately burst into the last act of Tosca—with gestures. I assured her I had no intention of offering her any financial inducement to leave home, but she would not be pacified.

As I waited for the gendarmes to come and drag me off to the Bastille, a charitable Frenchman who had learned his English from a London time table told me the French shopkeepers were not changing any paper money. They were hanging on to their gold and silver. Government paper was not worth anything in time of war. "But Austria and Servia are only having a private twenty-round bout," I declared. "France is not at war!" "Sure he is," answered my English-speaking French friend, "and so is England and Germany and Russia and Italy and Belgium and Turkey and the Malay Peninsula and Montenegro and Mount Vesuvius and Count Zeppelin and all the rest of the uncivilized world!"

When the spots passed from before my eyes I bought a copy of "Figaro" from a newsboy who had served in the war of 1870. With the help of a French-English dictionary and the little French I had picked up fighting with taxicab drivers I understood. It was in black and white—and red. The whole map was about to be torn to pieces in a conflict such as has never been recorded in ancient or modern history.

Baron Whoola gets up on the wrong side and the whole world goes to war. That cannot be possible. That's why I know it is true! But why? SOUTH BEND, IND., STUDIES WAR. In front of the Cafe de la Paix I saw a man with a pair of pants that were loose to his shoes and a collar that was too far away from his neck standing in a few well-chosen words.

RUSSIA BEATS IT SAYS CERVANY

lin received here today. The dispatch follows: It was officially announced in Berlin today that about 20,000 Russians had been taken prisoner by the Germans in the fighting in East Prussia, particularly at Orliebun, Hohenslein and Tannen-burg. They include many officers of high rank. The German attack at those points was across swamps and lakes.

The Russian general staff last week announced the capture of Orliebun from the Germans without opposition. This town is eighty-five miles south by east of Koenigsberg and 10 miles east by north of Thorn, both of which, says an official announcement in St. Petersburg, have been invested by the Russians. It will be recalled that official announcements made in Brussels continued to report victories for the allies, but the German mood was steadily changing. GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS Bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought. In Use For Over 30 Years. THE CASTORIA COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

the Pathe Daily News and recent issues of Keystone comedies. COSMOS. A wonderful feat of magic is performed in the program at the Cosmos Theater this week when a "real living and talking" woman is constructed in full view of the audience, unscrubbed by curtains or cabinets, by a man with the assistance of a woman helper, a wire rack and a paper mache bust. Milton De Lora, Emily Lyon and Walter Barth present a charming little play called neighbors. Dolly and Mack have an excellent music number, and Friday night the Cosmos country store will be introduced and Thursday, beginning with the matinees, the bill will be changed.

BYJO. "The Gay Old Sports" opened the second week of the season at the Byjo. Washington's new burlesque theater, Ninth and Pennsylvania avenues, last night. The comedians, Jack Casper and George Allen, took the roles of the gay old sports, and Mike Casey and Ike Goldstein furnished no end of hearty laughter. The dancing, in the hands of Kelly and Keleinn, a street patter act brought applause. There were many brand-new numbers by the chorus. The show taken as a whole, was a very enjoyable comedy and musical number. BELASCO. Rainey African Hunt Pictures. The thrilling scenes of wild life in Africa recorded by the motion picture camera of Paul J. Rainey, in 1914, will continue to be shown this week at the Belasco Theater. The intimate view of the daily habits of giraffes, zebras, elephants and baboons, the exciting chase of the cheetah and the lion, the weird dances of the native tribes, and the many other fascinating features of the Rainey films will attract not only those who have not yet had an opportunity to see them, but many who desire to take a second or third look for interesting points, which are so numerous as to defy complete analysis. A great help to the spectator is the painstaking work of the capable lecturer, who distinguishes all the beasts by name and degree and gives forewarning of many exciting incidents in the animal drama. STRAND THEATER. "Cabrera." The second week of "Cabrera" began yesterday, attracting capacity audiences at both performances at Moore's Strand Theater. "Cabrera" appeals to all classes of patrons, and is a really remarkable exposition of the successive stages of the growth of plants and flowers are the educational portions of the presentation. The program was concluded by a run-away train picture, designed as a thrill which accomplished its purpose. GLEN ECHO PARK. Patrons of Glen Echo Park evidently intend to take full advantage of the few brief days of open season, for last night saw one of the largest Monday evening crowds of the summer at the popular resort. With the warm weather holding its own the attractions are as strong as ever. The weather was just right for driving in the open, and the big pavilion was crowded with people. The numerous thunder showers kept many away last week and last night many of the visitors appeared to be making up for lost time. German Total Loss Early In Fighting Was 6,230. Berlin (via Amsterdam), Aug. 31.—The total losses of the German armies, as shown by official reports received from the front, are 6,230, divided as follows: Killed, 1,142. Wounded, 3,388. Missing, 1,700. The German war office explains that this does not cover the losses to date, but probably relates only to the early days of the war.

POLFS. "The Heart of Maryland." Polfs Players made another timely selection in reviving David Belasco's romantic military play, "The Heart of Maryland," this week in the midst of the terrible conflict now raging in Europe. The horrors of war are vividly more completely by the master dramatist than by the pen of current journalists. The drama presents a concrete picture of how the grim visaged monster tramples upon home and the affections, whereas journalists primarily record a general effect upon nations rather than individuals. This drama tells the story of a young Southern girl's love for a beautiful officer, and receives full value at the hands of the concrete picture of the womanly love and indomitable spirit of Maryland Calvert, and her heroism in clinging to the swinging iron clapper of a church bell during the siege of Fort Mifflin. The love scenes between Marie Carroll and Russell Fillmore are most amusing. Walter von Bookman made a good impression as Lloyd Calvert, Maryland's younger brother, on his first appearance with the company. An excellent performance is to be recorded for Louise Kent, Stanley James, and William H. Evans. In fact, what really made the performance so interesting was the exceptionally good playing of every member of the company. Every one had a correct perception of the roles which they portrayed, and the atmosphere of the civil war period was always apparent. The scenic equipment has scarcely been surpassed in previous stagings of the play, and notwithstanding a largely augmented company, the opening performances yesterday moved with smoothness and spirit.

GAYETY. "Politics of the Day." "What Does the Public Want?" is the title of the attraction at the Gayety this week. The show itself is the best answer to the question. There is a little bit of everything injected into the program, the piece a touch of pathos at the drop of the curtain at the end of the first act and a riot of fun during the rest of the show. The plot of the entertainment is negligible and the follies of the day follow on top of one another in rapid succession. The show is brimful of catchy songs, humor and clever dancing. Sam Siden and Chester Nelson form a comedy team that is hard to beat and upon their shoulders fall most of the responsibilities. They were never at a loss yesterday to provoke a hearty laugh from their audiences. Ed O'Haus, E. D. Sedak, Billy Waldron, Jack McSorley and John B. Williams form the nucleus of the supporting company and contribute their full share towards its success. The feminine contingent led by Gertrude Hays and Martha Stewart is given little opportunity to "show off," but did their parts acceptably well. Miss Stewart had an excellent voice and was warmly applauded for the way she sang her two numbers. Several musical numbers of merit were introduced by Elsa May, and Gertrude Hayes and her dancing Bricks. The chorus is far above the average seen in a burlesque show, is unusually young and attractive and can sing and dance. It is given plenty to do and is on the stage most of the time, only being off long enough to make one of the fifteen changes of costumes worn during the performance. COLUMBIA. Lyman H. Howe's Pictures. The second week of the Lyman H. Howe travel and other pictures at the Columbia Theater is a complete change of bill, and is a miscellaneous variety of scenes, some of which are artistically perfect. The trip up the Thames affords an opportunity to see some of the charm of "Old England," the ancient castles and cathedrals, the rustic houses veiled with vines, and the verdure-covered country. In Italy is shown Lake Garda, glimpses of Naples, and curious Neapolitan customs and characters; Pisa, Tivoli and its cascades, and Rome. The covers of New Zealand present wonderful objects of photography, and the scenery and waterfalls with their great cliffs, ravines, and cascades, are pictured. Unusually interspersed through the travel films are a great many original, if not particularly fitting, comedy subjects which seemed to furnish some amusement. The pictorial description of the food industry, from the small and sweet, and a really remarkable exposition of the successive stages of the growth of plants and flowers are the educational portions of the presentation. The program was concluded by a run-away train picture, designed as a thrill which accomplished its purpose.

VITAL FORCE. Disease germs are on every hand. They are in the very air we breathe. A system "run down" is a prey for them. One must have vital force to withstand them.
