CONGRESS MEASURES OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO DISTRICT CITIZENS

District bills and proposed laws of particular interest to residents of the District are thickly scattered among the thousands of bills which the opening days of the Sixty-fourth Congress has produced.

With the big printing working night and day at the Capitol and H street, first prints of the proposed laws are beginning to find their way into the House and Senate document rooms. The following were among those printed and distributed yesterday:

By Representative Buchanan, of Illinois: H. R. 114—"Amending the building regulations of the District of Columbia by providing for the better protection of persons engaged in and about the construction, repairing, alterations, or removal of buildings, bridges, viaducts, and other structures." To District Committee.

By Representative Clark, of Florida: H. R. 72—"Conferring police powers on all conductors and motormen on all electric and other street railways in the District of Columbia." To District Committee. Permit street car crews to carry police weapons while on duty.

By Representative Cary, of Wisconsin: H. R. 65—"For the creation of the fireman's relief fund of the District of Columbia to provide relief for members of the fire departments, and for other purposes." To District Committee.

The bill provides that at any time when to fund, created therefrom, fines imposed on firemen, and gifts and prove not sufficient for the expenses of the fire departments, the bill, the deficit shall be made up from District revenues, other than liquor licenses. In addition to providing for the payment of extraordinary medical or surgical services to members of the department for disabilities incurred in line of duty, the bill provides for the following schedule of benefits:

Permanent disability incurred in line of duty (per month): Chief engineer, $150; deputy chief engineer, $125; battalion chiefs, fire marshals and superintendents of machinery, $100; deputy fire marshals and captains, $90; lieutenants and assistant superintendents of machinery, $75; engineers and drivers, $60; assistant engineers and assistant drivers, $55; all other members, $50. Pensions also are provided for surviving relatives upon death, after retirement, from injuries received in line of duty.

The same schedule of benefits apply to members who retire after 25 years' service and after reaching the age of 50 years. A retired board, composed of the chief engineer and two other officers, and two privates, to be appointed by the Commissioners, is provided for in the bill.

By Representative Vinson, of Georgia: H. R. 13—"A Jim Crow" bill. To District Committee.

By Representative Stephens, of Texas: H. R. 325—"To prohibit in the District of Columbia the intermarriage of whites with Ethiopians, Malays or Mongolians." To District Committee.

By Representative McGillicuddy, of Maine: H. R. 67—"To provide compensation for employees of the United States suffering injuries or occupational diseases in the course of their employment, and for other purposes." To Employment Committee.

By Representative Smith, of Illinois: H. R. 66—"To provide a system of compensation for employees of the United States suffering injuries, resulting in disability or death to employees of common carriers subject to the regulatory power of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and for other purposes." To District Committee.

purpose." To Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Representative Austin, of Tennessee: H. R. 58—"For increasing the salaries and for the retirement of employees in the classified civil service." To Committee on Reform in the Civil Service.

The measure provides for a horizontal increase of fifteen per cent in all civil service salaries, and a contributory pension fund.

By Mr. Clark, of Florida: H. R. 72—"Provides for the construction of a building for the Department of Justice on the square purchased by the government south of Pennsylvania avenue and between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, the cost of the building not to exceed $2,000,000." To Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Representative Platt, of New York: H. R. 3—"Provides that vacancies in the United States Military Academy notified by regular annual entrance examinations, shall be filled from the list of alternates selected in their order of merit, established at such entrance examinations." To Committee on Military Affairs.

CHASE 20 CENTS 20 YEARS.

St. Louis Man Again Presents His Claim Against Bank.

St. Louis, Dec. 12.—A claim of 20 cents against the Mulanphy Bank was presented in Circuit Judge Kinsey's Court by Gottlieb King, who declared that the money has been due him since the bank went into the hands of a receiver in 1885.

United States Senator W. J. Stone, receiver for the bank, was present to listen to claims presented, in order to make a final settlement. Three claimants appeared. They were King, Mrs. Christine Meyer, who claimed $102, and Mrs. Mary Schwartz, who claimed $22.90.

Paymaster C. J. Peoples, U. S. N., and wife have returned to their home in Chevy Chase from a trip to the Coast.

Majorities, mind you, not pluralities! The majorities have returned to their first love. Where they formerly made nominations their support all went to the Republicans. In the entire State but few Progressives offered for anything. Their most noted leaders in the campaigns preceding the last worked comparatively unobtrusively, giving the heartiest kind of indorsement to the Whitman administration. Interest in the success of the party was shown by the fact that the combined Republican vote for the legislative tickets was 15,000 greater than that for governor in 1910.

Incapable from the success or failure of his administration, the governor had many important appointments to make. His conduct in that respect is likewise reflected in the increased Republican vote.

"Look at the official returns of the last election. They show a plurality for the general assembly tickets of 118,000, which was 22,000 greater than the total vote of 70,000 as against a total vote in 1910 of 65,000.

Petty Criticism Without Effect.

"Criticism of Gov. Whitman's administration that has mainly come from the Democratic independent press in New York were based almost invariably upon small matters of local complaint. The results of the election show how little they affected the mass of Republicans in the State. The combined vote of assembly tickets in ten of the big up-State representative counties show how solidly the Republicans rallied to the governor, and emphasized the assurance of the return of the party to power. These ten counties are Albany, Chautauque, Erie, Jefferson, Monroe, Niagara, Onondaga, Oneida, Rensselaer, and St. Lawrence. All of them went Republican by substantial majorities in 1910, but this year they increased their majorities in a campaign pitched to indorse the governor and the general assembly working with him by over 5,000 votes, in words the majority for the total of public tickets in these ten counties alone aggregated 59,000 as against 61,000 in 1910. These figures are official and the significance can in no wise be gained.

SHELL WAS IN CIVIL WAR.

Shows It by Exploding When Thrown Into Molting Pot.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Dec. 12.—A civil war shell, picked up on one of the battlefields around Chattanooga and sold with a lot of other scrap iron to a foundry company, exploded when dropped into the molting cupola, being a lot of iron. No one was hurt and the damage done the cupola was immaterial.

The manager of the concern says that shells are frequently found in scrap iron. He says they are usually very careful to see that they are not thrown into the cupola.

Rep. Snell Believes Party in The Empire State Firmly Re-established.

CREDIT TO GOV. WHITMAN

To His Mastery Control of Affairs is Due Party Rehabilitation—Belittles Criticism.

"The brightest prospect in all the Union for the return of the Republican party to national power is furnished by the Empire State of New York," said Representative Bertrand H. Snell, of the Thirty-first New York District, yesterday. "In the face of facts—significant facts of election figures, of the party's record in the administration, Democrats—indulge in vain imaginations when they assume the victory for them will follow the foreordained remoteness of President Wilson by a perfunctory convention at St. Louis.

"Take a look at these figures and see what they inevitably mean," said Snell, in the first place, that the Republicans in New York, under the leadership of Gov. Whitman, have re-established the reputation of the executive and legislative branches, not through chance as a minority party profiting by division in enemy ranks, but by a narrow margin, but a militant majority party, growing in strength, as the subsequent election of Governor Whitman, and the success by Whitman swept the State against all opposition in 1910.

Gov. Whitman's Big Share.

"Gov. Whitman's share in the restoration to power of the Republicans in New York is a big one. It is questioned for a moment. A fair test of a governor's force of character and popularity is always afforded in his relations with the legislative branch of the government. The New York legislature elected with Whitman was strongly Republican and worked harmoniously with him. Witness the success of his administration and his influence with the legislature was furnished by the last election. Their generous indorsement at the polls cannot be mistaken. It consisted of a Republican lead in fifty-seven counties outside of Greater New York of 200,000 votes. A figure never equalled by any candidate. Whitman, for himself, and but twice equalled by a candidate for President.

"Gov. Black, the year McKinley was elected by 175,000; Roosevelt led in 1908 was 161,000; Odell's in 1910 was 152,000; Higgins in 1904 was 140,000; Hughes in 1906, 152,000, and in 1908 it was 12,000. The record of the Republican branch of the party legislative ticket in Greater New York. Then came his responsibility and record as governor.

Pay-as-You-Go Plan Wins.

"Next was the issue for the last campaign. It was the direct tax plan. To draft the tax, the duties of his predecessors in office, besides the expense of his own administration. Standing firm on the governor's pay-as-you-go plan, seventy-five per cent of the voters were renominated, and of that number sixty-six were re-elected, the six who fell losing in Greater New York by very small margins. The result was a triumph for the party. The plan was carried in twenty-three Congressional districts. In the twenty-third New York district, in the City of New York, the plurality of 4,000 was overturned for the plurality of 1,000, a gain of 7,000. In the thirty-first and thirty-sixth, representing the city, the plurality of 4,000 was overturned for the plurality of 1,000, a gain of 7,000. In the thirty-first and thirty-sixth, representing the city, the plurality of 4,000 was overturned for the plurality of 1,000, a gain of 7,000.

"Republican gains for the year extended to local tickets throughout the State, giving the party more mayors, aldermen and supervisors than at any time for ten years, some of the cities reaching record Republican majorities.

"Majorities, mind you, not pluralities! The majorities have returned to their first love. Where they formerly made nominations their support all went to the Republicans. In the entire State but few Progressives offered for anything. Their most noted leaders in the campaigns preceding the last worked comparatively unobtrusively, giving the heartiest kind of indorsement to the Whitman administration. THE MERCILESS CAMERA.

Incidental to the publication of this article in whole or in part is expressly prohibited except by special arrangement with The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Do you know that I am still afraid of the camera? It seems an awful confession from one who has faced a camera every day for a good many years, but I am like a horse afraid of fire—once burned, twice shy.

In reading the old legends of Ulysses I came across a description of the Cyclops. It was listed as a demon with one eye in the middle of its head and nothing escaped that eye. If it was a Cyclops yesterday, it certainly is a camera today.

I think you know the feeling if you have ever been to a photographer. It is self-consciousness, but sometimes it makes me quite giddy and I almost resent the insolent way the camera eyes me. When the director tells me to look into the lens I look just above it, or below it, as if I were scanning its forehead instead of gazing into its pupil.

One who has never been in moving pictures has no idea how many things we have to remember at once.

If we make a mistake the merciless camera catches it and it is there, registered and held against us. That is why the smallest details must be perfect in costume and manner.

When there are four or five actors playing leading roles and a mob in the background, this faithfullest to the smallest detail causes innumerable rehearsals. I have had very dramatic scenes taken over and over because in the background one of the extra people had looked into the camera or had made a false move.

The audience may not be conscious of it, but it detects every flaw. Sitting behind some people at the theater, I overheard them saying, as if a grocery store was flashed upon the screen, "They try to tell us this all happened in six days of water, just like it is in those boxes of apricots, pears and peaches."

Now in "Madam Butterfly" I had to do five different things at once besides listening to the director and keeping my eye on the camera so I would not overstep the bounds outlined. I had to remember, first of all, that I was no longer an American girl, with an American girl's manner and mannerisms, but a little daughter of old Japan. Then they gave me a strange Japanese music instrument which had to be held and strummed a certain way.

Now must I forget my Japanese walk, the customary low bow which is so difficult because we sway to the ground; the Oriental mannerisms, and the Japanese music instrument which the Japanese girls never show their teeth when they smile, but cover their mouths with their hands. I had a cute little kitchen exactly fitted as they are in Japan, and I had several lessons before I could master the many odd little kettles and bowls. Those are the details that make moving-picture acting so difficult.

The camera, too, serves to delight in showing up the crew's feet and the lines around your mouth. A wrinkle may be cold-creamed and powdered out of sight for the stage-folk, but it shows up pitilessly on the screen. A freckle, if it is not well covered with grease paint, looks large as a ginger snap when the film registers it. This is why I headed this article "The Merciless Camera."

It really makes one look older and less attractive than in real life. It sees only your features and cares not a whit if your eyes are violet and your hair red gold. Your complexion may be like a rose leaf, with a sprinkling of tiny little freckles across the bridge of your nose. On the screen, as all red photographs black, your rosy cheeks become hollows and the freckles give you the appearance of a turkey's egg. Also, if you ever had any vanity the camera will steal it away from you.

Answers to Correspondents.

Virginia D., Portland, Oreg., wishes to know what I think about women driving automobiles.

I should not reason why a woman shouldn't drive her own car. I drive mine, and I drive it through the crowded streets of New York. You know the men say that women shouldn't drive cars because they can't keep their heads in time of accident. I don't believe that. If a woman has poise and is not nervous she is ready for any emergency.

Alice B. writes from Grand Junction, Colo., to ask if I plan my clothes for the characters I take in film work.

Mother and I together plan them, and the right sort of a costume for a poor girl of the slums is harder to get than the attire of the wealthy. One can always get the latter at the stores, but we find that to secure better effects it is best to buy the materials and have our dresses made. It is sometimes difficult to find a dress, a hat and a coat to suit the character, say, of a founding, particularly when the founding was supposed to have lived fifteen or twenty years ago.

Meeting at Poli's Seeks Amendment Prohibiting Saloons—Cry Is "John Barleycorn, Good-by!"

A mass meeting under the auspices of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union was conducted yesterday in Poli's Theater, at which a resolution favoring national constitutional prohibition was adopted.

Miss Anna A. Gordon, national president of the W. C. T. U., presided at the meeting. She was introduced by Senator Thomas Sterling, of North Dakota. The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock, the invocation being pronounced by Mrs. Margaret Dye Ellis, national W. C. T. U. legislative representative.

A feature of the program was the appearance of nineteen girls, gowned in white, and intended to represent the nineteen States which have adopted prohibition.

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, of Georgia, a lecturer of the union, said: "The W. C. T. U. has scored several thousand victories since I last appeared here, but not one defeat has it suffered. Perhaps you will point to California and say it went down at the recent election. But California already was 'wet,' so how could it have gone that way at the election?"

The speaker denied that the refusal of California, Ohio, and other States to adopt prohibition at the last election was defeat. She declared the District of Columbia program will include within a short time, in fact, that in a few years not only would there be national, but world-wide prohibition.

"John Barleycorn, Good-by."

"Europe already is going that way," she said. "Many of the warring countries have declared for prohibition. The King, the Kaiser and the Czar have climbed on the water-wagon. The cry now is 'John Barleycorn, good-by!'"

A collection was taken for the union's campaign fund and Mrs. Ella A. Boole, vice president-at-large of the national organization, and Mrs. H. H. Hoag, assistant national recording secretary, were introduced. Mrs. Ella Hoover Thacher, associate national W. C. T. U. legislative representative, submitted a resolution, adopted by acclamation, as follows:

"Resolved, That we are in favor of national constitutional prohibition and urge Congress to submit the question to States for ratification."

A short address on prohibition in China and the influence there of Americans was given by Dr. Mary Stone, president of the W. C. T. U. of China.
