At the Hippodrome. No period in history has so much fascinated as the latter part of the seventeenth century—the age, indeed, of golden acts of bravery; the days when gallant knights rescued the weak and performed valiantly for fair ladies both on field of battle and in the friendly rooms of the tournament.

The work is being undertaken by the civic section war relief committee of the club.

Home Celebration of Wonder Interest. The arrival of a baby in the household completely changes the entire aspect of the future. But in the meantime, during the anxious period of expectancy, there is a splendid remedy known as "Mother's Friend" that does wonders. SNAPSHOTS.

Leon Kent is well along with his production of "The Quarter Breed," a three-reel story of the West written for the Universal by himself and in which he plays the feature role.

Joseph De Grasse has completed a five-reel feature for the Universal entitled "Love, Thing Enemy," with a stirring plot, remarkable cast, and settings which are up to De Grasse's high standard. This feature will be a beautiful one.

Jack Barrymore will not admit that there is any truth in the rumor that he spent weeks practicing duelling with sword before the taking of the sword-play scenes in "Nearly a King," a Paramount picture. But those who faced the Famous Players comedian in the scenes and who now bear the marks of his skill on their respective persons, are inclined to doubt the truth of the statement.

UNIVERSAL STARS SELL $2,000 WORTH OF DOLLS

Nearly $2,000 was raised in Los Angeles on Saturday, December 11, for the children's hospital of that city by the sale of more than 150 dolls, the majority of which had been donated by the many of the leading filmologists of the community. The dolls in most cases were the exact replicas of the donors—actors and actresses all well known to the screen fans, and there were also dolls representing Mayor Sebastian and members of the city council of Los Angeles, Gen. Martin, aviator, and others.

FAMOUS DOG MUSHER IN ALASKAN DRAMA

One of the most interesting persons appearing in the forthcoming Mutual Masterpicture, "The Deathlock," which was made in the Klondike, district of Alaska, is John Johnson, the "Iron Man of Dawson," who is the world's champion dog musher, and his team of Siberian dogs, which have won the last three Alaskan Sweepstakes, making Johnson the best dog musher in the world. One scene of this fascinating story of the land of snow, is the finish of a race between Johnson's team and several other prominent mushers. Johnson is a prominent part in a long chase to a gold mine which the villain gambler, "Dal Daroux," is trying to secure by foul means.

He will never consent to intervene for peace unless Belgium at least is reconstituted in the plenitude of her former rights. These must include every title of her European and African territories restored, and indemnity given for the complete reconstruction of her ruined lands, monuments, arts and industries.'"

DAILY TALKS By Mary Pickford HOPE LONG DEFERRED.

YESTERDAY I stopped just before I was to trip into Mr. Belasco's office and have the Monday morning interview promised me.

Never had cars crawled so slowly. It seemed an endless ride. I burst hopefully into his secretary's office, but there was a wait of an hour or two before I was even called to be interviewed by him.

"You promised I should see Mr. Belasco today," I reminded him, looking into his eyes for a glance of recognition. "I came here last Monday to see him. My name is Mary Pickford."

"Yes, yes, I remember," he replied formally. "But Mr. Belasco is very busy this morning, and I am afraid he cannot be interrupted."

"May I come back this afternoon?" And there was something clutching at my throat which simply refused to be swallowed. He looked at me for a moment.

"No," he replied thoughtfully. "I don't think you can see him this afternoon. But you can come again next Monday."

"But that is a whole week to wait." And I could not keep the disappointment out of my voice.

"I am very sorry, but I will see what can be done for you Monday. Be here about eleven." He turned from me to the next girl, who in turn was to be as bitterly disappointed as I.

The following Monday I was there at the appointed hour of eleven, but again I was told that Mr. Belasco was far too busy to see me—I would have to return in a week.

Disappointments. As "manana"—which means tomorrow—is the slogan of the Mexicans, so "the Monday following" became the one threat of hope which was ever held out to me. Week after week I went up there to meet my fate. Week after week I was sent away without even a peek into that office where sat the genius whom I longed to meet. Like all deferred hope, it began to magnify until it seemed almost as if my very life depended upon this interview. I had waited so long I could never give up now, in spite of the weeks which were sidling into months as the summer came tripping fast upon the heels of spring.

I did not write home to mother telling her what was keeping me. I was afraid to build her hopes too high only to have them shattered as mine had been during these weary months of waiting. I merely said that all prospects were favorable and that I should not come home empty handed.

It was hot and uncomfortable during the summer, but Aunt Kate and Aunt Min made a happy little home for me. They encouraged me as my spirits drooped, and I felt as if I should not have the fortitude to continue.

BURTON HOLMES TALKS ON "THE GRAND CANYON"

Auditors at National Theater Pleased with Beautiful Pictures of Scenic Wonder.

The travogue-lecture season was officially inaugurated yesterday afternoon at the National Theater by Burton Holmes, when his large audience made an imaginary journey through Mexico and Arizona to spend many delightful moments in the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. For two hours his auditors were mystified with wonderful pictures of the Grand Canyon and the great Southwest, and enthralled with descriptions which only this gifted lecturer could expound.

The talk began in a facetious picturing of the "canyons" of Chicago, thence to Kansas City, whence, significantly, began the real journey over the Santa Fe trail, as they did in pioneer days under which may be expected from this celebrated travogue, the propaganda in the interest of "Seeing America First" will have made great and convincing strides. Mr. Holmes will lecture about the Panama-Pacific Exposition on January 25 and about California on February 1.
