

GENERAL'S WIFE ENDS LIFE AFTER RITES ARE HELD

Mrs. Winona Glasgow, Whose Husband Died Sunday, Commits Suicide After Service.

"LONELINESS TOO MUCH"

Beautiful Woman Shoots Self at Apartments, Climaxing Grief for General.

LEAVES BRIEF NOTE AND WILL

Husband's Ashes to Be Placed in Her Coffin at Own Request—"Taps" Will Sound for Both.

Mrs. Winona Glasgow, wife of Brig. Gen. Samuel L. Glasgow, who died Sunday, killed herself in her apartments in Falkstone Courts yesterday, a few hours after services had been said over her husband's body.

Mrs. Glasgow was 57. The general was 76. She had known him from her childhood in their town of Burlington, Iowa.

Prostrate with grief, Mrs. Glasgow retired to her room after the services yesterday and in fine writing that was unsteady at times, made her will, combining it with a letter to a brother and sister.

"I cannot endure the loneliness. Forgive me!"

Three hours after her retiring, a sister, Mrs. Charles Deits, went to the room to summon her for refreshments. The blinds were drawn and the chamber was dark. Mrs. Deits snapped on an electric light and saw her sister on the bed. She was dead from a bullet through her heart.

Gen. Glasgow died suddenly Sunday night in their Falkstone Courts apartments from paralysis. He wished to be cremated and requested his ashes to be interred in Arlington National Cemetery.

He wanted taps, but not a firing squad, over his grave. The Loyal Legion was to take charge of the burial. Services preceding cremation were conducted with Episcopal rites yesterday by Rev. Dr. Snyder, of the Church of the Incarnation, in the apartments.

Mrs. Glasgow's dying wish was that her husband's ashes be placed in her coffin. Her wish will be carried out. The "taps" for her "general" will be "taps" for herself.

Montenegro Ends Peace Parley, Reports State

Special Cable to The Washington Herald. London, Jan. 19.—Montenegro has broken off peace negotiations with Austria, according to an official statement issued today at the French Embassy.

The Austrian terms were so harsh that Montenegro even though at the mercy of the invaders, could not accept them. These terms, says a wireless dispatch from Rome, included the giving up of all railways and personal towns as well as complete disarmament which was to continue after the war.

WILSONS ARE HONOR GUESTS

Executive Couple Set Precedent by Officially Attending Pan-American Ball.

By MILDRED MARSHALL KOONCE. A new precedent in the official life of the National Capital was established last evening when the President and Mrs. Wilson were the guests of honor at a brilliant ball given at the Pan-American Union by the diplomatic representatives of the Latin-American republics.

For the first time in history, a President of the United States was the honor guest at a public reception with the Diplomatic Corps of all the American republics as hosts, and the occasion was quite as distinguished by its significance and unique interest as by its unrivaled beauty and brilliance.

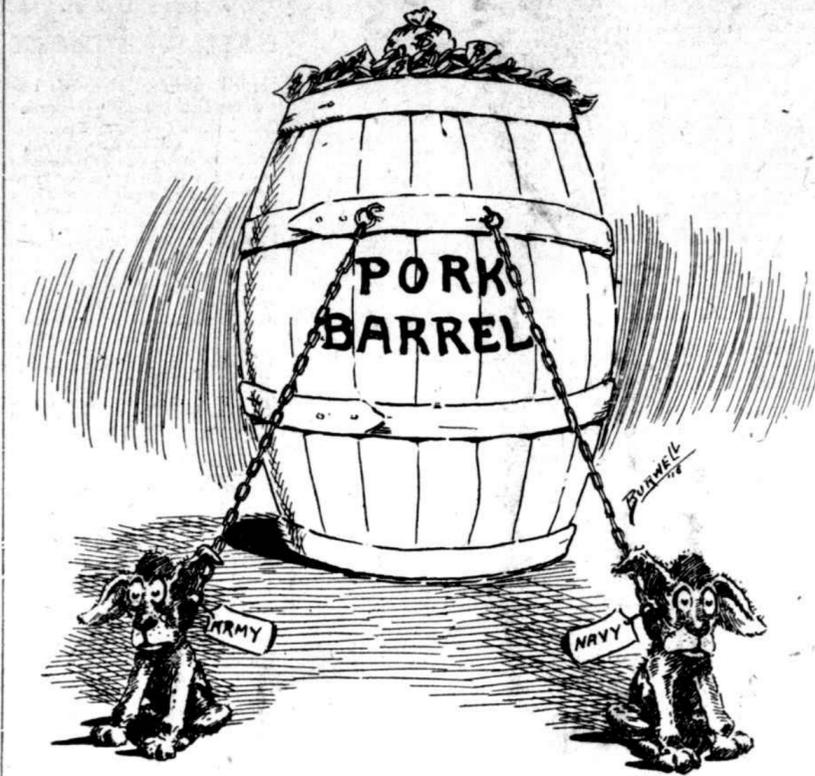

Though designed primarily as an expression of appreciation to the President of his courtesy in entertaining the Latin-American members of the corps and the distinguished visitors to the Pan-American Scientific Congress at a reception at the White House, the ball last evening served a dual purpose in indicating the closer social relation which cements the friendship between the two Americas.

Veritable Fairland.

The presence of more than 1,500 of the most fashionable members of Washington society, including members of the Supreme Court and their wives, the Cabinet circle, representatives of the Congress, and the army and navy sets, and prominent folk from the residential contingent, lent graciousness and distinction in keeping with the brilliancy of the occasion.

District Commissioners' Chief Argument For Changed School Plan Wins Converts To Side Supporting Board of Education

Existing Division of Authority Looked Upon as Wise Provision—Representative Focht, of Lloyd Subcommittee, Says Present Plan Is Best Conceivable—At Hearing Newman Proposes Substitute Plan Involving the Very Thing Against Which D. C. Heads Are Fighting—Another Session Today.

By JOSEPH P. ANNIN.

At the conclusion of the first day's hearing on the Commissioners' bill proposing to invest them with the powers of the present Board of Education, one fact stood out prominently in judging the progress made, viz:

The division of authority between the Commissioners and the Board of Education, which the former advance as the chief reason for desiring a change, had impressed a number of members of the committee as the chief reason for not permitting the change asked.

"That is the best arrangement I ever heard of," declared Representative Ben Focht, a member of the committee from Pennsylvania, after the meeting. "I'm going to try and have it installed in my own town."

The existing arrangement involves the handling by the District government—purchasing officer, disbursing officer, and auditor of all funds for the operation and administration of the public school system, while all authority and responsibility for the successful and efficient operation of the system is vested in the Board of Education.

Newman Compromises.

Commissioner Newman and Corporation Counsel Sime, for the Commissioners' plan, and President Blair, of the Board of Education, and former Senator Marion P. Butler, representing the Chamber of Commerce, both opposing the proposed change, consumed the morning and afternoon sessions of the Lloyd subcommittee of the House District Committee.

In an effort to meet the unanimous opposition of the District to the proposed change, Commissioner Newman at the commencement of the hearing proposed an amendment to his bill, vesting in the proposed director of education instead of in the Commissioners sole authority over the personnel of the school system. As a further evidence of the disinterestedness of the present Board of Commissioners, he declared later that they would be willing to postpone the operation of the proposed change until

"And the Poor Boob Believed Her Fairy Tales," Says Lawyer

But "He Woke Up in Time and Since Then Has Played a Man's Part," Declares Attorney in "Boo'ful Baby" Case.

New York, Jan. 19.—After having deliberated more than six hours, the jurors in the "Boo'ful baby" breach of promise action, reported at 6:30 o'clock tonight, that they were no nearer an agreement than when they began. Supreme Court Justice Lehman directed them to continue their deliberations, and report a sealed verdict tomorrow.

Corra Maud Clarke, plaintiff, in the action, who demands $25,000 damages, and John Leon Martin, the young defendant, sat in the court room while lawyers raked over the past of each.

"It is a dirty, sordid dollar and cents case," said Terence J. McManus, counsel for Martin, the defendant.

"They were engaged to marry and the engagement was broken, Martin says. He went to a salome ball and again met Mrs. Clarke. If he hadn't gone there, he would never have had this suit.

"The plaintiff wanted to coin her situation into dollars. She told him she was a good woman and this poor fool believed it, madly infatuated as he was. She used his letters as a club over him."

McManus turned and directed his gaze at Martin, dapper and impassive.

"She told him a lot of fairy tales, added the lawyer, "and the poor boob believed her."

"Well, he woke up in time. Since then he has played a man's part. He has seen enough of life to know that the great white way is not what it's cracked up to be. Since then he has lived the simple life."

By SOPHIE TREADWELL. Providence, Jan. 19.—These are some of the amazing bits of testimony brought into the Mohr trial today:

That she maintained an intimate friendship with Brown, and with Healis, the negro chauffeur.

That she took them into her confidence and discussed family troubles with them.

That she wrote letters to Healis about her private affairs, beginning them "Dear George," and ending "Yours respectfully."

That she invited them into her home as guests and that she prepared a meal for Brown at 10 o'clock one night.

That she taught her little son Charles to spy on his father, explaining to the boy all about her troubles and his father's practice.

Danbury Hatters Face Ejectment

Court Grants Foreclosure Against Homes of 141 Aged Union Labor Martyrs.

Special to The Washington Herald. Danbury, Conn., Jan. 19.—Unless organized labor at once comes to the rescue, 141 Danbury hatters who have made the twelve years' fight against D. E. Lowe and Company will be turned with their families into the streets.

Judge Thomas in the Federal Court at New Haven today granted the final motion of foreclosure against the homes of the 141 union labor martyrs.

This gives immediate effect to the order of the Supreme Court that, under the Sherman anti-trust law, the members of the hatters' union are liable for the $200,000 damages assessed in favor of Lowe & Co. for the alleged injury they suffered through the boycott growing out of the famous hatters' strike in 1902.

The 400 victims of the order live in Danbury, Bethel and Norwalk. Practically all of them own their own homes, which they have purchased through long years of toil and saving. Many of them are past 60 years old.

The attack at Lesars was on the German supply depot and did much damage.

Soldiers Desert; Won't Surrender

Montenegrins Flee to Interior Rather Than Lay Down Arms to Austrians.

By R. MACKENZIE. Rome, Jan. 19.—The Austrians are encountering serious difficulty in disarming the Montenegrins, who are hiding their rifles. While many soldiers and officers are deserting, others have refused to lay down their arms and have fled to the mountains, determined to resist attempts to disarm them.

Even those who have been persuaded to surrender are now indignant because the Austrians are supplying rifles to the Albanians, who are notoriously hostile to the Montenegrins. The Austrians will probably send punitive expeditions into the interior, helped by the Albanians. The Austrians are adopting defensive measures but it is not likely they will attempt to advance in Albania before spring.

STONE REVEALS WILSON'S VIEWS UPON OUTRAGES

Senator Says President Thinks Intervention in Mexico Would Cause New Revolution.

WOULD UPSET CARRANZA

Chief Executive Believes Massacre Was Planned to Drag This Country Into Situation.

DEMOCRATS TO BACK WILSON

Seven Enlisted Men of Seventh U. S. Cavalry Reported Captured by Mexican Bandits.

Senator Stone, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, yesterday laid before that body the administration's attitude regarding Mexico. He told the committee that President Wilson believes the recent outrages in Mexico were committed for the sole purpose of forcing armed intervention by the United States. Senator Stone said that the administration believes that if the United States sent an armed force into Mexico to punish the men responsible for the massacre of the seventeen Americans near Chihuahua it would bring about friction with the Carranza government. He said this would weaken the Carranza government and would result in another revolution in Mexico.

Bornah Will Wait.

Following Senator Stone's statement, Senator Bornah, Republican, said he would not assume the responsibility of immediately pressing the Senate for action on intervention resolutions. He stated he would instead canvass the Senate and ascertain the sentiment of his colleagues, so he will know how to proceed if further outrages are committed.

A. heated discussion took place before

Senator Bornah took his stand, in the course of which the Democratic members made it plain that they would stand behind the President and prevent the passage of intervention resolutions. Senator Marcus Smith, of Arizona, who has been outspoken in his demand that something be done, gave his support to Chairman Stone. Of the Democrats Senator Pomerehne, of Ohio, alone hesitated and expressed the opinion that a policy of further wrangling would be unwise.

HOLD GERMANS AS PRISONERS

Maine Authorities Capture Men Escaping from Amherst Detention Camp.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Calais, Me., Jan. 19.—Four men, alleged to be German prisoners of war, who escaped from a detention camp at Amherst, Nova Scotia, on Monday night, were arrested here today.

They escaped from the camp at Amherst after a brilliant piece of engineering work had been performed. A tunnel 150 feet long was excavated under the walls to a point beyond the sentry lines. Through this subway nineteen of the interned German prisoners made their escape.

Seven of the prisoners were captured in New Brunswick today, according to reports from the Dominion authorities. Four others were taken at St. Stephen, within a few miles of the American line, for which they were heading. Three more were captured at McAdam Junction, also close to the border. One man is still at large.

Formal proceedings will be started against the men seeking their return to Canadian soil.

U. S. WOULD BE AT FOE'S MERCY SAYS GEN. WOOD

Former Chief of Staff Tells the Senate Committee Nation Would Be Helpless in War.

PLEADS FOR BIGGER ARMY

Says Enemy Could Shell New York City in Perfect Safety and Land Forces Easily.

"STIFFEN LUCRE WITH IRON"

Militia System Called Vicious—Volunteer System Also Attacked—Reserve of Material Urged.

Major Gen. Leonard Wood, former chief of Staff of the army, portrayed before the Senate Military Affairs Committee yesterday the helpless plight in which the United States would find itself if confronted by war.

The task of raising an army he likened to the predicament of a man led up to a forest and told to build a glass house. The militia system he declared to be vicious and the volunteer system as little better.

He reiterated the assertion that with the country's present equipment for coast defense it would be possible for a modern battleship to drop up off Rockaway and drop shells in Seventeenth street in New York City without running the risk of being touched by shore batteries.

Called Theorist's Dream.

The theory that the nations of Europe will be exhausted after the war and unable to launch a campaign against the United States he characterized as a theorist's dream. The European war, he said, had demonstrated as a fact that a large army, far outnumbering the entire standing army of the country, could be landed in a single expedition unless the navy, under the leadership of the United States, is now in fourth place. Gen. Wood made the startling statement that Great Britain alone has launched more capital ships since the beginning of the present war than the United States possesses.

"After the war we may have all the gold," said Gen. Wood. "But we need to stiffen it with a little iron if we are to protect ourselves."

In reply to questions from members of the Senate committee Gen. Wood urged that the following steps be taken immediately to improve national defense:

- 1. The modification of the enlistment act to provide for a short term of service with the colors and service with the reserve corps.
2. All the increase possible in the regular army, especially in infantry and artillery.
3. Authority and money for the formation of an officers' corps of 45,000 men, a matter of imperative necessity.
4. The accumulation of a reserve of material.
