Buying economically might be described as buying wisely, and with full value for money expended. If this be so patrons who buy our remnant and Friday special and clearance merchandise are doubly economical, because every item possesses an actual value much in excess of the price it bears. This is our method of securing quick sales and an absolute and final clearance of all merchandise we do not wish to keep in stock or that we secured through unusual circumstances. There is not a single article offered that is not usable—some may be damaged, shopworn or soiled, but all of them are useful. And whatever the injury the reduction is sufficiently great to more than compensate the purchaser for accepting it.
