HOROSCOPE.

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

Sunday, March 5, 1916.

In the early hours today, Neptune rules for good. Later the Sun and Jupiter are in benefic aspect, while Uranus and Mercury are slightly adverse.

The government is fortunate for visiting friends or seeking the support of persons with influence. Political aspirants should make the most of this configuration.

Neptune is in a place held to be conducive to inspirational ideas, psychic investigation and new-thought healing. The spread of all theories based on the dominion of thought is forthwith advanced and a great growth in religious interest along old lines of faith is prophesied for this year of 1916.

This week should be a lucky one for all who are engaged in mercantile or commercial occupations.

Bankers have a direction pressuring many anxieties and activities. Foreign loans will occupy attention in an unexpected manner, the seers predict.

Fraud in connection with some branch of public revenue is prophesied, and a high official may be discredited, and Railway accidents are indicated for this month, when explosions and fire will be frequent.

Rioting in various Italian cities has been foretold, but this month will precipitate serious internal troubles. It is predicted.

Diseases of children are likely to be so prevalent this spring that schools will suffer seriously.

Large benefactions for reforms in orphanages are prophesied, and again a great increase in the number of adoptions is foretold.

The rise of new methods in conducting theatrical affairs, so long proscribed, will enroll many persons of financial and social prominence among producers, the seers declare, and women will be conspicuous as managers and directors.

Persons whose birthdate it is should be careful of letters and writings. They have the augury of a prosperous year.

Children born on this day will probably find few obstacles to progress. Both boys and girls should be exceedingly bright in mind and persevering in character.

C. Hadden Chambers, who has rewritten his play, "The Idler," which is shortly to be presented by Joseph Brooks has renamed it "The Great Pursuit." The original theme has been retained by Mr. Chambers in making his play meet present-day conditions, and the characters have remained unchanged.
