CHILD GETS SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED

"California Syrup of Figs" Can't Harm Tender Stomach or Bowels.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour. Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness. Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 2-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Adv.

REDFIELD LAUDS CHEMISTS' WORK

Lays Corner Stone of Chemistry Building to Be Completed in September.

SCIENTISTS ARE THERE

Director Stratton Recites History of Bureau From Time of Its Formation in 1901.

The corner stone of the Chemistry Building at the Bureau of Standards was laid yesterday afternoon by Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield, adding another structure to the group of buildings in Cleveland Park. Samuel W. Stratton, director of the bureau, recited the history of the bureau from the time President McKinley's signing of the bill in March 3, 1901, creating this branch out of the office of Weights and Measures in the Coast and Geodetic Survey. Secretary Redfield was the next speaker and said in part:

Opportunity of Faith. "I have often thought of this service as one which pushes back more and more each day the shades of darkness which limit our present knowledge. Nature does not readily surrender her secrets. They are extracted from her by toil, and of the tollers who draw them forth it may be said with truth, to him that hath shall be given and he shall have abundance. Such work is the triumph of the spirit of man and of the mind of man over material things. The progress that has been made seems slow when measured in its daily march, yet if we look back on the work in the perspective we can see that the road that has been traveled is long. It has not been an easy road.

"The occasion is one of opportunity and also one of faith. Hampered with many difficulties and with insufficient instruments, you have wrought well thus far, and now, through the wise provision of a Congress which has trusted you wisely to further use that which it has provided, the instrument you need is being created for your hands. Again the truth appears that to him that hath shall be given and that he who had the spirit of devotion to work and the record of loyalty doing that work this gift would not have been yours. You may justly, then, say that as you have wrought you have received, as you have given so it has been given to you.

"It is not yours to dissipate or to ignore. It is a trust and it expresses the trust in which the nation holds the service of which you are a part. You are trustees, each and all of you, in your several places for the wise and fruitful using of the structure which is here to be. It is an instrument for the further expression of yourselves in a larger outpouring of human knowledge in a further pushing back the darkness which surrounds the minds of men.

May Be Ready in September.

Upon the conclusion of his remarks Mr. Redfield placed the corner stone in position amid the cheers of hundreds of department employees and friends. William F. Hillebrand, chief chemist, followed Secretary Redfield, and in his remarks told of the contents of the hermetically sealed copper box, which was placed inside the corner stone, which is as follows:

Photographs of Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield, Director of the Bureau Samuel W. Stratton, Chief Chemist William F. Hillebrand, chemistry force at Washington, March 13, 1916; moving picture film of the ceremony of turning the first sod for the Chemistry Building, September 13, 1915; two stationary pictures taken just before and near the end of the sod-turning; two views of the chemistry building, March 18, 1916; specifications for the Chemistry Building; remarks of the Secretary of Commerce on the occasion of laying the corner stone; remarks of the chief chemist, following the Secretary of Commerce; two complete rosters of the chemistry force on March 15, 1915; autographic signatures (with a specimen on one copy; annual report of the director for the fiscal year 1914-15; the work of the national bureau of standards (director's speech at Dayton, Ohio); annual report of the chief chemist for the fiscal year 1914-15; seven circulars of information covering certain features of the chemistry work of the bureau; list of bureau publications; selected samples of standards for analysis and testing issued by the bureau, together with labels therefor, and certificates of composition or of purity; samples of paper and writing to test the lasting qualities of both paper and ink; copies of local newspapers, and a bottle of quinine to absorb moisture.

The building when completed will be four stories, with basement and attic; it is to be constructed of brick and stone. It will cost $300,000. Donn & Deming are the architects, and Wells Brothers & Company, of New York City, are the contractors in charge of the work. It is expected to be ready for occupancy by September 1.

Crisis at Hand.

The crisis is at hand, coming with the final day of the mammoth competition and it calls for renewed energy and determination. Those who expect to win are beating the bushes in their frenzied efforts to secure up still more new subscribers in order to make up the excess when the clock chimes out the stroke of 12 tonight.

"From the beginning the '50,000 Club' was accorded a most enthusiastic reception and it has grown more and more interesting each week, until the interest has spread to the remotest sections. It can be said, without fear of contradiction, that no contest of any kind ever presented a more even and prettier struggle than has the '50,000 Club.' Friend has worked against friend, neighbor against neighbor, in the most determined, yet good-natured way, until the big prize race has become the chief topic of conversation. It has overshadowed all war talk and put other current news in the background with the thousands of daily readers of The Washington Herald.

With such trophies hanging in the balance there is no wonder that there is a ripple on the surface, and all is not calm within the inner circle of '50,000 Club' prize aspirants. Every candidate in the race has many admiring friends who are anxious to see him finish with highest honors and the automobile as well. With everybody taking such deep interest in the campaign, the honor of being a grand prize winner means almost as much as the value of the good-natured way, until the big prize race has become the chief topic of conversation. It has overshadowed all war talk and put other current news in the background with the thousands of daily readers of The Washington Herald.

Burlesque to Have Brilliant Future, Declares Gayety Star

The burlesque is the coming form of amusement for all classes and ages is the opinion of Don M. Clark, playing a leading role with the Star and Garter Show at the Gayety this week. Mr. Clark, who has been in burlesque, musical comedy, and vaudeville for some fourteen years, is thoroughly conversant with the evolution of the burlesque form of entertainment which has taken place within the last decade, and in an interview yesterday described some of the reasons and effects of this change. "Burlesque originated in what was known as the Western box houses," said Mr. Clark, "where the women who performed on the bill sold liquid refreshment to the audience after each act. The box of the theater was filled with tables and the audience smoked and drank as they were entertained. In those days there were two swings or circuits—the Western swing controlled by a set of men and the Eastern swing controlled by another. Unlike conditions today, the audiences were composed mostly of men, and the theatrical companies had to play to taste. "Competition was spirited and the companies were constantly endeavoring to put over something that would keep their houses filled. The result of this was that if a house controlled by the Western swing put on a show that was some-

The sufferer is in constant dread; while it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist, and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days.
