Overworked, Tired-out Men and Women Should Take Vinol

Because their strength has become depleted by over-taxing their vitality. Therefore, the three great tonics so successfully combined in Vinol are just what is needed to create strength and build them up.

Read this interesting letter of how a school teacher was made strong by Vinol. We could publish lots of such letters if we had the space:

Key West, Fla. "I am a teacher and became anaemic, nervous, run-down, no energy or desire to do anything. I could not sleep and had that languid, nervous feeling that made me a burden to myself. I had taken various tonics without benefit. I heard of Vinol and tried it. Soon I had a good appetite, could sleep all night and it built me up so I have the ambition to do any kind of work." Mary L. Baez, Key West, Fla.

OUR GUARANTEE

If Vinol fails to build up and create strength for overworked, tired-out men and women, we return your money.

Alaska Purchase Price Also Paid Russia for Aid In War

Charles C. Glover Reveals Unpublished Story of How $7,200,000 Payment Reimbursed Czar for Sending Fleets to U. S. When Britain Threatened.

"Murder will out." And so will state secrets and inside stories of international dealings buried deep in the archives of the State Department, and known only to a select few who were concerned in the negotiations. For instance, when the United States paid Russia $7,200,000 for a barren waste of ice and rocks now called Alaska, which a few years previous had been on the market for $4,000,000, the world gasped, commented, nearly drove Secretary of State Seward into a decline with severe criticism, and then promptly forgot the incident. And later, when it was discovered that the United States had purchased a veritable treasure chest of all minerals for what now proved to be a mere pittance, there was less reason to inquire into the incident. But here's the real story, printed now for the first time, of how the United States paid Russia $6,000,000 to keep England from recognizing the Southern confederacy during the darkest days of the civil war.

A large bank in a metropolitan community is a human clearing house. In Washington it is able to do a clearing house through which pass State as well as less important secrets. A bank president in Washington who commands the confidence of his clients, and who is a "good listener" is able to learn, not only the "inside" of national politics, but of international politics as well.

Glover Handled Check for Alaska. Charles C. Glover, president of Riggs National Bank, a few years ago noticed an elderly man of military bearing apparently undecided as to what window in the Riggs' lobby would best serve his purpose. Mr. Glover offered to assist him, and found him to be one of his clients, Gen. Simpson, first military governor of Alaska.

"Well," said Glover, "I had something to do with the Alaska purchase in a small way. About the time the negotiations were completed, Mr. Riggs, then president of the bank, came to my desk and handed me a Treasury warrant.

"Prior to the outbreak of the civil war arrangements virtually had been completed for the purchase of Alaska from Russia for about $4,000,000. The civil war intervened and negotiations necessarily were suspended.

"Now, it is a well authenticated fact that at one time Great Britain was on the brink of recognizing the Southern confederacy. The published letters and state papers of that period show it. Also about that time a powerful Russian fleet appeared off New York harbor in friendly demonstration, and a second Russian fleet showed up at San Francisco, almost immediately thereafter, in friendly demonstration of the British recognition of the Southern confederacy.

"Those fleets did not appear by accident. When the danger of British interference became apparent the State Department carefully canvassed neutral governments in search of a possible ally against Great Britain. Finally Russia was determined upon as the most likely ally. Russia agreed to send fleets to both New York and San Francisco harbors as a warning to Great Britain that any act unfriendly to the Northern union would be construed as unfriendly to Russia. In return, the United States agreed to bear secretly the expense of the mobilization and movements of the fleet.

Shortly after this, the war terminated rather abruptly, and, of course, without any open break between the United States and Great Britain. The United States had not paid for the mobilization of the Russian fleet; there were large contingent funds from which so large an amount of money could be drawn, and it would have been obviously impossible to obtain the money from Congress publicly by an appropriation measure.

"Still, Russia had fulfilled her part of the secret agreement, and looked to Secretary Seward to do his share. The good faith of the government of the United States was, however, finally Seward hit upon the expedient of resuming the negotiations for the purchase of Alaska and including in the purchase price the nearly $6,000,000 owing for the Russian fleet. The government of England from virtually entering the war as an ally of the Southern confederacy."

Story Verified Later. "That story was told me nearly ten years ago," continued Mr. Glover, "and since then I have had opportunity to check the matter over. Those are the facts, and they have been verified from a number of absolutely trustworthy sources, among them a daughter of James G. Blaine, who, after I had told her the story, said that her father had given it to her under an injunction of secrecy. Of course the story was not given to me in confidence, nor was it told Gen. Simpson in confidence, so there is no reason why I should not tell you.

"It goes to show as far as the public knowledge of state secrets carried, there are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamt of in your philosophy."

Judge—"You let the burglar go to arrest an automobilist?" Policeman—"Yes. The autist pays a fine and adds to the resources of the State; the burglar goes to prison, and the State has to pay for his keep."

ALMOST EVERYONE TAKES S. S. S. IN THE SPRING

Almost everyone takes S. S. S. in the Spring because there are few systems who do not require a tonic at this season, and no other medicine is so valuable for building up the constitution. We all feel badly in the Spring. Some have no particular sickness, but are debilitated, run-down and weak, and their systems are in a state of general disorder. Others are troubled with poor appetite, imperfect digestion, nervousness, etc. These symptoms show that the body is not receiving a sufficient amount of nourishment from the blood; that the thin, watery circulation is unable to meet the demands of the system.

This is a condition which should not be neglected. If the impure blood is not purified and strengthened, the foundation may be laid for more serious physical disorders or diseases later on. Health is our most valuable possession, and its preservation is a matter which vitally concerns everyone.

The healthful botanical ingredients of which S. S. S. is composed, and the method of combining and preparing them, make it the best of all Spring tonics. S. S. S. is nature's medicine, free from strong minerals or any harmful drug. It is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks; a safe and pleasant tonic for everyone.

The value of S. S. S. as a tonic and blood purifier is universally recognized. It builds up the depleted system in the natural way, by purifying the blood and supplying an increased amount of nourishment to every portion of the body. S. S. S. tones up the stomach and digestion, rids one of that tired, worn-out feeling, improves the appetite and in every way contributes to the upbuilding of the entire system.

S. S. S. has been known as the greatest of all tonics for fifty years. Each year sees an increase in the number of persons using and recommending it until now almost everyone takes S. S. S. in the Spring. Don't feel badly and "mope around" this Spring; take S. S. S. and enjoy perfect health. S. S. S. is sold at drug stores everywhere.

PENN GARDENS SOLD TO BIG SYNDICATE

A. F. Fox Company Negotiates Deal, Consideration Being $225,000. Improvements Planned.

Deeds were placed on record yesterday by Penn Gardens, Inc., conveying one of Washington's largest and finest motion picture theaters to a syndicate composed of New York and local amusement managers. The property is located on the northeast corner of Twenty-first and I streets and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, and occupies a site about 124 feet front by 157 feet deep, covering an area of 20,000 square feet.

The property includes a large winter garden for motion pictures with private boxes and manager's office, etc., and a very handsome and large lobby with refreshment room and an arcade adjoining. Through the arcade one enters a large hall, which is used for dancing and for the summer garden, which seats about 750 persons and contains a refreshment garden for the dispensing of refreshments to the summer patrons. The building is built of cement, brick, stone and steel, and is entirely equipped for the operation of a high class motion picture enterprise. The gardens were built originally by Edmund K. Fox and operated by him until incorporated nearly a year ago, when it went into the hands of the company now selling it. Jerome Hubbard of the A. F. Fox Company, made the deal with the representative of the New York syndicate, the consideration being stated at $225,000, which was paid for in cash, notes and out-of-town real estate. The new company contemplate the enlarging of the present winter garden and making numerous valuable improvements to the property, after which time Penn Gardens will be the largest and finest motion picture enterprise in America.
