

Jumpers Add Thrills to Second Day of Horse Show

Keen Competition and High Class Shown in Both Saddle and Harness Classes—Several Come Croppers in Open Event for Hunters.

By JOSEPH P. ANNIN.

Lovers of horses as horses and of horses for sport sat through the greater part of an excellent program at the second day of the National Capital Horse Show yesterday. Showers chopped off the last three classes on the program, but these will be added to today's program, which will commence at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Yesterday's "bill" offered a good assortment of harness and saddle horses, with features in both departments. Keen competition between both horses and stables was found in harness and saddle events, and the hunting classes presented the best sport in this department of the show to date.

The entrance of Miss Constance Vaulchain continued yesterday to develop the rivalry between her stables in the harness classes and those of Judge Moore, Mr. Bushnell and Mr. Lieber, and Miss Vaulchain had nothing to apologize for in her showing. In addition, her saddle entrants met with success. Miss Vaulchain, a prepossessing young lady, handled many of her own entrants, and the victory of Lady Ditham over Judge Moore's Mogul in the heavy harness novelty class was one of several popular triumphs.

Jumpers Offer Thrills.

The class for fox hunters, for the cup presented by Miss Ethel Murray, in which there were twenty-six performers, offered the first real series of thrills, and the class for hunters, open to all, with performance only counting, developed the keenest competition of the show. There were forty-three performers in this event, and three falls, due to the disproportionate spacing between the in and out of the final jump, W. C. Skinner's meeting with two falls, one of which he narrowly escaped serious injury.

A second heat or jump off was required to determine the winner in this event, which was finally captured by Nancy Fanny, a bay foal bay mare, now owned by the Glen Riddle Farms, and which, until recently, was the property of Ned McLean. Confidence, a big bay gelding, owned by S. S. Norton, and ridden by Dick Donnelly, who holds the high jump record by putting Heatherblow over 52-1-2, came a close second.

Summery Frocks Lend Color To Crowd at Horse Show

Smart Parasols of Varied Shapes and Hues Replace Furs of Opening Day and Fashionable Visitors Wear Light Sport Suits.

By MILDRED MARSHALL KOONCE.

All avenues led to the horse show yesterday afternoon, when a fashionable assemblage witnessed a series of events only a shade less interesting (to some minds) than the distinguished folk who occupied the boxes or were scattered through the grandstand. Eighteenth street was a lively thoroughfare, filled with motor cars and other smart equipages and most of the interesting visitors to the show stopped en route for a cup of tea in the garden of the Octagon, where one of the most artistically staged fetes of the season is in progress.

The boxes were filled yesterday and the summery frocks were very effective against the background of green-and-white awnings and Eucalyptus flowers. Smart parasols of all shapes and shades, replaced the furs of Saturday and tailored suits gave way to light sheer fabrics. Sport suits were much in evidence and Mrs. Richard Townsend of taffeta and chiffon models to claim the feminine attention.

Mrs. Littauer Smartly Gowned.

Mrs. William Littauer wore one of the smartest gowns at the show; it was of cream cloth combined with midnight blue, the coat rippling in the prevailing mode and the skirt, which was finished with three circular bands of the blue, was short and very full. She wore a large taffeta hat trimmed with a taffeta ornament. Mrs. Littauer entertained several guests in her box during the afternoon.

The Rev. and Mrs. Ward Denys and Mrs. Arthur Bryce, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Andrews, Mrs. Andrews wore a charming frock of wistaria taffeta and a large wistaria hat with a rippling brim. Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, Jr., was very handsome in a white cloth suit combined with black and white taffeta. The chiffon bodice had a small shoulder cape, and a black hat trimmed with geese completed her costume.

Will Meet in Chicago to Force Adoption of Suffrage.

Chicago, May 8.—A new woman's party, which expects to wield sufficient influence to turn the balance in the national election next fall, will be born in Chicago June 5-7, at a national woman's party convention, to be held under the auspices of the Congressional Union for woman suffrage.

Miss Clover in Sport Suit.

Admiral and Mrs. Clover and Miss Eudora Clover were in their box late in the afternoon. Miss Clover was very charming in a sport suit of white and mustard stripe, worn with a mustard-colored coat and a sport hat of the same shade. Mrs. Pendleton had with her Mrs.

WOMEN PLAN CONVENTION.

The union, which has for its sole aim the passage of an amendment to the national constitution, giving women the right of universal suffrage, expects to bring suffrage leaders of the unfranchised States of the East and South into contact with those of the "free" States of the Mississippi Valley and the West. By such contact it is expected to direct the enfranchised woman vote of the West in the national election so that national suffrage will become a fact.

Mrs. Pomerene Wears French Silk.

Mrs. Alice Pomerene, wife of Senator Pomerene, wore a charming gown of French blue silk with a tiny design in white. Her hat was of black straw trimmed with a French blue feather. Mrs. Henry Cleveland Perkins was gown-trimmed with a black and white taffeta with a black and white striped taffeta with a black tri-corn hat ornamented with a white wing. Mrs. Loren Johnson wore gray silk combined with French blue and flesh-colored chiffon. Her black hat had an osprey for trimming. Mrs. Theodore Tiller, who entertained Mrs. Champ Clark, Mrs. Francis Berger Moran, and Mrs. Elanor Tiller, of Atlanta, wore a smart suit of white cloth and a large wistaria-colored hat.

Hunt Slater, Miss Alexandra Emory, of New York, and Miss Harriet Peckham, Mrs. Pendleton wore black and white chiffon and a small black toque trimmed with a gaura. Mrs. Slater was in pale gray with a black luster straw hat ornamented with a white wing. Miss Emory was gown-trimmed with a black and white taffeta and wore a black chiffon hat. Mrs. Peckham's gown was of dainty blue-and-white striped chiffon worn with a lace hat trimmed with blue velvet and pink crush roses.

Mrs. Harry Wardman had as her guests in her box Mme. Hussein Bey, wife of the charge d'affaires of the Turkish Embassy, and Mr. and Mrs. Yturbe. Admiral and Mrs. Brownson occupied their box. Mrs. Brownson wearing a black taffeta gown with a small hat of black luster straw ornamented with several smart ribbon loops. Capt. and Mrs. Theodore Baldwin had with them Miss Richmond Judge and her house guests, Mrs. Arthur Callaghan and Miss Edith Bull, of San Francisco.

ARGUES PREPAREDNESS

President Wilson delivered an address at the White House yesterday in which he emphasized the need for adequate preparedness by the United States against the possible time of trouble. He made a distinction between "military service" and "military training," declaring "that it is not inconsistent with American tradition that everybody should know how to shoot and take care of himself." The President expressed the opinion that in the final analysis the peace of society is obtained by force.

THE IMPORTANCE OF SKIN CARE IN THE SPRINGTIME

Infectious skin diseases are irritating, unpleasant, unsightly and dangerous. There never was a greater mistake made than trying to cure such disorders with pastes, lotions or creams, rubbed on the outside. You can't cure skin diseases that way, because they are the direct result of infected blood, and you can't rub or soak poisons out of the blood.

There is but one infallible measure of newspaper advertising value, and that is the Want Ad. Pages.—William Nelson.

Members of the union has just completed a tour of the country, and brought the report to the President that the people as a rule are opposed to "militarism" as exemplified in the preparedness bill. The President was told further that "the country is facing a shrewd propaganda in favor of compulsory military service," that he was represented as "demanding the greatest navy in the world," and he was asked, "at this crisis, to clarify the discussion and make articulate the fundamental principles of the country."

President Wilson was asked the direct question whether he favored "compulsory military service."

"I did not say I believed in it," replied the President. "To use the phrase of a friend of mine, my mind is to let on the subject. I would say merely that that was not contrary to American tradition."

It was suggested by one of the delegates that possibly the President did not know the mind of the country on the question of preparedness. "I want to say this," said the President. "I do not think I have been deceived about the mind of the country. I have never dreamed for a moment that America as a whole, its rank and file, had got any military enthusiasm or militaristic spirit, and I think that it is very necessary, in order that we should work this thing out wisely, that we should carefully discriminate between reasonable preparation and militarism."
