days, stopping at Atlantic City, Philadelphia, and New York.

Mr. Marx Kaufman will return to his home shortly after spending several months at Camp Mondawmin, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

Mrs. Charles Frank will return this week after a stay of several months in Frank, Me., as the guest of Mrs. S. Frank.

Mrs. Sidney Straus is spending some weeks with relatives in Atlantic City.

Mr. S. Breslau, of Euclid street, has returned to his home after several weeks spent in Atlantic City.

Virginia Hot Springs.

Hot Springs is filled, and will be until the end of the month, when the mid-August throng will be replaced by early arrivals for the autumn season. The Homestead Hotel has not an empty room. Every cottage is occupied, and the hotels at Warm Springs and Healing Springs are crowded. Never in the history of Hot Springs has there been such an August crowd.

The younger set are entertaining almost nightly, and dinners and luncheons have been given this week by Messrs. La Motte and H. W. Cohn, Alexander Neave, Miss Judith Pole and Miss Hallie Davis, of Washington, who entertained, among others the Misses Eleanor Bright, Olive Graef, Margaret Treat, of Washington; Elise Mason Smith, Mary Sturtevant and Cecile Barnes and Messrs. Alexander Neave, La Motte and H. W. Cohn, Vincent K. Hilton, Charles Palma, Edgar Bright and William Mason Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cole-Scott entertained a large party at a dinner several nights ago at Fessenden Farm, and Miss Prudence Sterry gave a dinner at the Pillars in honor of her fiancée, George Watson Hall Smith, of Providence, who is making a short visit here.

Mrs. Daniel Manning, of Albany, left this week to spend several days in Philadelphia before going to Plattsburg for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Angier B. Duke, with their 5-months-old baby and a physician and nurse, have arrived and taken one of the Homestead cottages for the autumn. Mrs. Benjamin N. Duke and Miss Lucy Stokes, of Durham, N. C., are with them.

Gen. E. A. McAlpin arrived at the Homestead by automobile from New York this week.

Buckner A. Wallingford, of Cincinnati, has joined Mrs. Wallingford at the Homestead.

Commander Richard H. Leigh, U. S. N., and Mrs. Leigh, and Dr. W. R. Dubs, Medical Director, U. S. N., from Washington, arrived at the Homestead this week and will spend some days here.

Mrs. W. A. Boykin, Miss Mary Boykin and W. A. Boykin, of Baltimore, spent several days at the Homestead this week while making a motor trip through the Virginia Springs resorts.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Watts, of Baltimore, are spending the latter part of August at the Warm Springs Hotel, and W. Arnold Brinkman and A. Helmut, of Catonsville, Md., are among other late arrivals.

Mrs. Z. A. Tanner, of Washington, has joined the August colony at Warm Springs, where others of the Washington contingent are Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Davis and Mrs. A. V. Upshur.

Miss Margaret Treat, of Washington, who is visiting Miss Olive Graef, of New York, at Ingallscoote, has been a frequent guest during the week at luncheons and dinners given by members of the younger set at Hot Springs.

The fancy dress ball on Friday

MISS FRANCISE WILLIAMS, daughter of Col. and Mrs. John R. Williams, whose marriage to Mr. John Ballentine Pitney will be an event of the early autumn. Miss Williams is spending the summer at Beverly, Mass., where the wedding may take place shortly.

evening was one of the largest of the kind ever given here and the costumes were varied and beautiful. Mr. Thomas B. Paine, who has led the cotillions here for so many years, was presented with a silver loving cup by the ladies on the committee, Mrs. John W. Grant, chairman, Miss Ethel Barrymore was selected to carry the large flag and she led the march waving it and was lovely in a gown of green sequined chiffon. More than 300 participated and it was a brilliant success. Among the costumes noted were Mrs. John M. Slaton as "Carmenita"; Miss Isabelle Halderman as a Turkish woman; Mrs. Leroy Childs in an artist's suit of black velvet with the tam of shanter and long tie; Miss Katharine Ellis as Queen Isabella; Miss Alice Preston as "Folly"; her dress being very dainty in pale shades of pink and blue.

The second supper-dance on Saturday evening in the Greenbrier ballroom eclipsed all previous ones. Among those having guests were Mrs. Charles B. Howry, Mrs. Talmadge Lambert, Mrs. George P. Blow, Judge and Mrs. Priest, Mrs. E. S. Lattimer, Miss Gwendolyn King, who had forty of the younger set; Mr. Lewis Kaye, Mr. Scott Parrish, Mrs. Baylor Hickman, Mr. J. Eppes Brown, Mr. William Bumsted, Miss McClure and the Misses McLaughlin.

Tuesday evening the concert given for the benefit of the Christmas fund of the White Sulphur Sunday School, was one of the brilliant affairs of the season. Mrs. Pauline Donald, of Covent Garden, London, and opera comique, sang, and Lady Williams-Taylor accompanied here in her last two songs.

Mrs. W. L. Watson, of Baltimore, entertained at cards Monday morning in The White, when her guests included Mrs. Charles B. Howry, Mrs. F. B. Loring, Mrs. John M. Chisholm, Lady

R. Buist, Mrs. Arthur Carey, Mr. W. H. Washburn, Miss Sadie Fox, Mrs. J. C. Kohlhaas, Messrs. George J. Ledtke, Ernest Gittings, Victor McAdoo, and Dr. A. C. Crump.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Paine and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant, of Atlanta, gave one of the largest affairs of the season on Thursday afternoon, a garden party on the lawn of The White. The guests were seated at small tables and there was dancing from 5 to 7 o'clock.

The tennis tournament, which has been in progress during the week, will be finished on Saturday.

The annual cakewalk given by the colored waiters of The White will be given tonight.

Wildwood, N. J.

Wildwood, N. J., Aug. 26.—This has been the most successful August in the history of the "Twin" resorts, Wildwood and Wildwood Crest. During the past four weeks the beach, surf, and boardwalk have been crowded with visitors and at times, especially in the afternoon and evenings, considerable skill was necessary for locomotion on the great wooden esplanade. In many cases hotel proprietors were obliged to accommodate their patrons with cots. Both resorts report a most successful season which is expected will extend far into October, and will probably close with the annual pretty spectacle, Feast of Lanterns, which is always held on the great wooden way at the closing day of the season, and always attracts many thousands of persons.

The clear weather and comfortable temperature of the ocean have made moonlight bathing parties very popular during the past two weeks.

Many of those who are compelled to leave at this time of the year envy the fall visitors, for it is generally known that this and the months of September and October are the most pleasant of the whole year.

The opening of the schools means the going of heads of families to their city homes, but as nearly all the inland cities will delay the opening of them this year, it is not to be considered that the active season of the resort of this island is to wane. While there may be a thinning of the great multitude, yet there will remain thousands of visitors who like September to keep the resorts animated far into the month of October this season.

Two hundred voices, including the leading soloists of this island and near-by towns, will take part in the "Grand Summer Chorus" under the leadership and direction of Mr. Walter Pfeiffer and his orchestra at the Wildwood Casino Auditorium on Saturday evening, September 2. The evening's program will be a musical treat for music lovers on this beach, as the following numbers will indicate:

"By Babylon's Wave," by Gounod, for chorus and orchestra. "Lullaby," by Brays, and "Stars of the Summer Night," by Smart, for Capella chorus.

"Blue Danube Waltz," by Strauss, and "Hallelujah," from the Messiah, by Handel, both for chorus and orchestra.

City officials and the management of the Casino Auditorium, on account of the great reception and ovation tendered Miss Mary Barrett, the young lyric soprano, have made arrangements to have this favorite return, which she is promising to do. She will be the soloist on Sunday evening, September 3, at the special concert given at the Wildwood Auditorium by Director Pfeiffer's Orchestra.

Labor Day, with its two holidays preceding, promises to be one of the greatest days of the present season, and no doubt will bring down the largest crowd ever seen here on Five Mile Beach.

WHITMAN TO SHUN PRIMARY.

Predicts Hughes Victory—Fraises Calder and Bacon.

Rochester, Aug. 26.—Governor Whitman attended the Pioneers' Picnic at Manitow Beach yesterday and made a speech. The governor insisted that he would take no part in the primary contests next month, saying that he had all he could do in looking after the State's business and his own candidacy. "Both Bacon and Calder are excellent timber," he said. "After predicting that Hughes would carry New York State by more than 100,000 and that the Republican State ticket would be elected, too, Governor Whitman left for Albany."

A CORNER IN ANCESTORS.

The Hammond Family.

By FRANCES COWLES.

Aunt of William Penn Founded One Branch of the Hammond Family—Boynton Family Founded by John and William, from York, England—The First American Harlows Settled in Plymouth—The Glenns Are Probably Dutch.

Probably not fifty out of a hundred of those bearing the name Hammond in this country today realize that the name is derived from the personal first name of the Norman conqueror and found repeatedly in the Domesday book. The first forms of the surname derived from this personal name were Hamon and Hamond, but in this country, at least, the form Hammond has finally been agreed upon. If your name is Hammond you are probably descended from one of three worth colonists who settled in this country in the early seventeenth century. The first established of these three families really owe its existence in this country to a plucky woman. This was the wife of the first William Hammond, who, for the sake of her children, braved the hazards of the sea and came to Boston in the ship Griffin in 1634. No doubt she owes her remarkable courage to the fact that she was a member of the Penn family, a sister of the English admiral of the name and an aunt of the celebrated Quaker, in whose honor the State of Pennsylvania was named.

With her Elizabeth Penn Hammond brought her one son, Benjamin, and three daughters, Benjamin, in reality the male founder of the family, was born in England, probably in London, in 1621, and was therefore 13 years old at the time he came to this country. In the new world Benjamin married Mary Vincent and through his children the family was established in many parts of Massachusetts. At the present day, there are some of the name descended from this first settler in California.

The first known member of another early established American family of the name was Thomas of Lavenham, England, who died in that place in 1559. It may be that he was a son of a clothier named John Hammond, of the same place. At all events, he was married in his native town to Rose Tripp, or Tripp, in 1573, and they had a son, Thomas, who migrated to this country, settling in Newton, Mass. He brought with him his wife, Elizabeth Cason, or Cason, whom he had married in Lavenham, England, some time previously. This Thomas Hammond was a man of considerable wealth, his estate in Newton, Mass., at the time of his death being valued at $129,000, in shillings and pence, a considerable sum in colonial New England. Still another connection of the name was founded by one Paul Hammond, who settled in Montgomery County, New York. He was born in 1757, probably in England. Little is known of this settler, save that he was a soldier in the Revolution and that his wife's name was Mary Fuller, who was born in Easton, Mass.

THEIR DESCENDANTS ARE NOW LIVING IN various parts of New York state.

The coat of arms here depicted is described thus: Argent, on a chevron sable between three pellets, each charged with a martlet, of the field, as many escallops or, a bordure, engrailed vert.

Answers to Correspondents.

To Miss L. B., who asks for "as much information as possible concerning the Boynton family": Most, if not all, the Boyntons in this country are descended from two brothers of the name, John and William, who came to the New World from their home in Yorkshire, England, sometime before 1583. John Boynton settled at Rowley, Mass., where he was a freeman. He married Ellen Pell, of Boston, Mass., and had Joseph, John, Caleb, Mercy, Hannah, Sarah and Samuel. Joseph, who was born in Rowley, Mass., in 1645, was captain of the Rowley military company. His wife was Sarah Swan, and their descendants are now located in various parts of Massachusetts and New York state. One of the descendants of the first settler, John, was Caleb Sumner Boynton, who was born about 1738 and was a non-commissioned officer in the revolution and served at the Battle of Bunker Hill.

The name Boynton is derived from a parish in county York, England, from whence the first American settlers of the name and their origin. There also the baronetcy of the name lived in the time of King Henry III. To W. H., who asks for a history of the Harlow family: The Americans of this name are descended for the most part from a cooper who settled in Plymouth Colony in the early days of that settlement. He was born in England in 1624 and died at Plymouth in 1691.

The house which he built for himself and his family was one of the finest in the colony and is still standing. By his three wives he had a numerous family. These brides were, first, Rebecca Bartlett; second, Mary Faunce, and last, Mary Shelly.

In England the name is usually spelled with the final e, while in this country the final vowel is omitted. These names, however, are not the only ones of the name of the English branches of the name. It is impossible to determine which of these coats-of-arms are appropriate.

The name is derived from a hundred and a parish so called in Essex, England. There is also a township of the name in Northumberland from whence some of the name probably had their origin.

W. H. G. writes thus: "Please tell me if the Glenn family have a coat-of-arms, and something of the family who located in Pittsburgh and into which Agnes McBride, of New York, married."

The English family of the name Glenn have the following coat-of-arms: Ermine, three martlets in fesse sable. Crest, out of a ducal coronet, a hand holding a swan's head erased, proper.

I regret to say that I have been unable to trace the history of the Pittsburgh family of the name. It seems highly probable that the New York family so named are of Dutch origin. There was a Sander Leendert Glenn who was attached to the West India Company, at Fort Nassau, in New York state, as early as 1624. He received a large grant of land in 1651 in payment for his services to the company and from him are descended many of the name in New York state.

Can any of our readers help us to find information concerning the family, of which published records seem to be unavailable. A. H. B. asks for "something about the Hudson family." Another correspondent writes as follows: "Several centuries ago three brothers named Edden made their way to the new world. Time passed, the brothers died, the family drifted apart. In time the true origin of their name was forgotten. One branch claims to be of French descent, another English. True name is supposed to be Edden. Can you give any information of the origin of the name, the motto, also the coat-of-arms. Do you know anything of the Virginia Eddens?" Unfortunately there is no published record of this family available, nor any record of the name in books on nomenclature. Possibly it is identical with the English surname Eden, one of ancient origin derived from Castle Eden or Little Eden, Durham. We will be grateful if any members of the family can throw additional light on the subject.

PUSS IN BOOTS, Jr.

By DAVID CORY.

Puss and Two Little Girls Visit a Candy Shop.

"Git-up!" said Puss Junior, "git-up, my good steed, for we must hasten on. 'Tis yet a long way we must journey ere I find my illustrious father, Puss in Boots." The good gray horse quickened his pace, and mile after mile was left behind. At length Puss saw a little figure in the roadway some distance ahead.

"Lucy Locket! Locket her pocket! Kitty Fisher! Found it! Nothing in it. Nothing in it. But the binding Round it!"

"Whoa!" cried Puss. "Can I help you, Miss?"

"The little girl looked up. 'I'm so disappointed!' she cried. 'I thought there might be a bright penny inside, but there isn't.'"

"Isn't there?" asked Puss, sympathetically. "I'm truly sorry. Did you want a penny very much?"

"Yes, I did," replied the child. "Well, here is one," replied Puss, thrusting his paw into his pocket and bringing out a bright penny. Leaning over the side of his horse he handed it down to the little maid, who thanked him politely.

"What are you going to buy with it?" Puss asked.

"Peppermint stick," answered the little maid. "A peppermint stick with red rings all around it."

"It sounds pretty nice to me," said Puss. "Where's the candy shop?"

"Just over there," replied the little maid, pointing to a small shop on the opposite side of the street.

"Let's both go in," suggested Puss, dismounting and tying his horse to the hitching post.

The candy shop smelled very nice. Molasses candy in long yellow coils lay in the glass cases. Sticks of pink and white peppermint candy stood in big glass bowls with glass stoppers. Chocolate drops were ranged in long glass dishes. There were gumdrops and marshmallows, and goodness knows what all. Puss thrust his paw into his pocket to get more than a penny, for he knew that one little penny wouldn't go very far in a candy shop of this kind.

"What other kind do you like?" asked Puss. "Why don't you call me Kitty?" asked the little maid. "My name is Kitty Fisher."

"Just then another little girl appeared. 'Hello, Lucy Locket!' cried Kitty. 'I've just lost my locket,' said Lucy; 'did you happen to find it?'"

"Yes, I did," replied Kitty. "But there was nothing in it. Just a ribbon round it."

"That's 'cause I took out my penny," answered Lucy. "And I'm going to spend it right here before I lose it."

Soon both little girls, as well as Puss Junior, were eating peppermint candy sticks as happy as could be. Puss took to his good gray horse before he mounted and rode off.
