Final Clearance Prices on Women's Suits

We have re-grouped the remaining lots of Spring and Late Summer Suits into five assortments and have marked them at prices that will be found unusually interesting.

Copies and adaptations of foreign models are included as well as the late conservative models not long received into our stock, and that will appeal to the woman seeking a suit for wear now or early fall.

The materials include: Poret twill, vigerole gabardine, silk and serge combinations, men's wear serge, and wool poplins. The colors are navy and black only; shades that are always in good favor.

Suits formerly up to $95.00. Now $45.00

Suits formerly up to $75.00. Now $35.00

Suits formerly up to $55.00. Now $25.00

Suits formerly up to $39.50. Now $18.75

Extra Size Suits for Large Women

We make a specialty of extra size suits for long-waisted or stout figures, and our remaining stock of these is also offered at greatly reduced prices.

The materials include: Mannish mixtures, gabardine, wool poplin, and French serge. The colors: Oxford, black and white pin stripes, navy and black. Sizes range from 40 1/2 to 52 1/2, but of course not all sizes in every style.

Suits Formerly $25 to $65. Now $14.75 to $45.00

President Host to Envoys and Friends at Informal Lunch

The President and Mrs. Wilson entertained informally at luncheon at the White House yesterday. The guests included the American Ambassadors to Great Britain, Mr. Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador to France, Mr. William G. Sharp; Mrs. Hugh Wallace, Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, the Misses Smith, of New Orleans, who are guests at the White House, and Mr. John Randolph Bolling.

An interesting event of last evening was the dinner given by Mr. Manuel Quezon, the Philippine delegate in Congress, at the New Willard. The dinner was in the nature of a farewell, as Mr. Quezon will not return to Congress as resident commissioner of the islands. Among the guests were: Representative William C. Adamson, Maj. George P. Ahern, U. S. A., Representative Alfred G. Allen, Mr. T. T. Anaberry, Senator Henry F. Ashurst, Representative Warren W. Bailey, Representative Alban Baskin, Senator J. C. Beckham, Representative William P. Borland, Representative Fred A. Britten, Commissioner Louis Brownlow, Representative Frank Clark, Representative Cyrus Cline, Representative Henry C. Cooper, Mr. Oscar T. Crosby, Representative Robert Crosser, Representative Jas. S. Davenport, Representative J. H. Davis, Mr. Ceferino de Leon, Mr. C. A. De Witt, Representative Dudley Doolittle, Representative H. Garland Dupre, Mr. Fred Emery, Representative Albert Estopinal, Representative Finis J. Garrett, Mr. Patrick Gallagher, Representative William Gordon, Representative Carl Hayden, Mr. W. L. Howard, Representative William A. Jones, Representative Edward Keating, Representative Claude Kitchen, Gen. Frank McIntyre, U. S. A., Representative F. W. Mondell, Representative J. Jamison Moore, Representative Martin A. Morrison, Commissioner Oliver P. Newman, Representative W. A. Oldfield, Representative L. Padgett, Senator J. D. Phelan, Representative Henry T. Rainey, Representative John E. Baker, Senator James A. Reed, Mr. Luis Munoz Rivera, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Representative Joe J. Russell, Senator John P. Shafroth, Mr. W. Morgan Shuster, Representative T. J. Sisson, Representative James L. Slayden, Judge James F. Smith, Justice Covington, Representative T. J. Steele, Senator William J. Stone, Representative Clyde H. Tavenner, Representative Joseph B. Thompson, Senator Robert T. Van Dusen, Representative Horace M. Tower, Col. Charles E. Wyatt, U. S. A., and Representative E. W. Webb.

PHELAN WANTS CADET SCHOOL IN CALIFORNIA

Senator Phelan, of California, has not given up hope of having a United States naval academy located on the Pacific Coast. A resolution introduced yesterday by him asks the Secretary of the Navy to furnish information as to the number of midshipmen at Annapolis, the facilities for accommodation, the new cadets that will enroll in 1917 and the preparation for the care of those in excess of the capacity of the Annapolis school.

HOROSCOPE.

"The stars incline, but do not compel." Wednesday, August 30, 1916. Those who read the stars find today's aspects lucky. Venus, Mars, Mercury and Saturn are all in friendly phase.

Women have the best direction under this configuration. Whether in love or business affairs they should profit by the sway of the planets. Artisans have reason to make the most of this day's influence. It is a most auspicious time for the signing of contracts.

Mars gives good help to soldiers, police officers, and government employes. Medicine, pharmacy and surgery come under the most auspicious sway, and hospitals have the agency of extraordinary benefits in the shape of endowments.

Soliciting and canvassing should be successful today. Agents of every sort should profit. There is a sign, however, that is read as rather unfavorable for intermediaries in the future of business as well as the indications appear to point toward a simplification of business as well as social customs.

Success through personality, resourcefulness and enterprise is believed to be easily attained under this government of the planets. Plumbers and sanitary engineers have the prospect of great activity. Cities will have cause to safeguard the health of residents and many reforms in civic housekeeping are prophesied.

The new Moon of this date falls when Uranus is in sinister phase and Saturn is threatening. It presages renewal of hostilities wherever there has been any cessation of severe fighting and terrible loss of life.

The indication is not good for our relations with England, and Canada may find cause to send us sharp messages. Uranus foreshadows disturbance in the labor market. Strikes and troubles that complicate international affairs. Persons whose birthdate it is have a happy augury for the year, but they should watch the health of the family. Financial affairs should be satisfactory. Children born on this day probably will be very successful in business. Girls should make advantageous marriages. These subjects of Virgo are likely to be industrious, serious and resourceful.

PERSONALITIES I HAVE MET---GAIL KANE.

Copyright, 1916, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate. Entered at Stationers Hall, London. All rights reserved, including rights of translation. No part of this article in whole or in part is expressly prohibited except by special arrangement with The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

GAIL KANE has a merry, roguish twinkle in the largest and loveliest brown eyes I have ever seen and the most welcoming smile that ever accompanied a hearty handshake.

We met the other afternoon at the Claridge for tea and enjoyed a pleasant, chatty hour talking about our work, moving-picture studios, the fall's fashions and the promise of the stage productions for the scurrying-on winter. There were many groups of attractive young girls sitting around the small mahogany tables, sipping their lemonades or drinking tea, and they, too, were chatting about the fashions of yesterday, today, and tomorrow.

"Doesn't it amuse you," Miss Kane leaned over to whisper to me, "when you look at these young girls on a sweltering hot day with their throats swathed in furs just because the fashion artists, encouraged by the furriers, decree it is stylish for women to be seen in white fox all through the summer?"

As she spoke, three portly and very uncomfortable looking women puffed as they passed our table, their faces lobster red with the heat, while little beads of perspiration tumbled down their cheeks and nestled in the large, upstanding ermine collars of their coats. Miss Kane picked up her fan and leisurely whipped a cool breeze which carried a reminiscent hint of the seashore.

"It makes me almost sizzle to look at them," she laughed, turning her back upon the three miserably uncomfortable, but ultra-fashionable women.

"I have certainly had a full, round year," Miss Kane remarked, "with never an idle moment."

"Have you enjoyed your seasons of pictures?" I asked her, eager to hear her impressions of her life at the studio.

"Enjoyed it—but worked hard." Then she added, "I am still working hard—and if I do not go back on the stage, I shall be working harder all next year, for, as the months go on, especially during these torrid summer days, it means real labor to spend from six to eight hours under a sunbaked glass roof. Why, do you know—and her eyes were wide as she said it—"until I became a moving-picture actress I did not dream of just how beautiful the dawn really is."

"You know how it is, Mary, after years on the stage—we could almost become astronomers, we see so much of the stars and so little of the daylight. It was several years before I would let my maid awaken me until the sun was high in my country home in Great Neck, L. I., and have to get to the studio in Fort Lee, N. J., by nine o'clock. The old roosters in the neighborhood have only begun crowing when I have been jerked almost rudely from my bed. Then, with half closed eyes, I tumble around the room, trying to hurry into my clothes so that I can snatch a bite of breakfast and be on my way."

"I have been trying to give young girls and young men serious, straightforward advice before they enter into this already overcrowded field. It really requires talent and patience, but if you are really ambitious, do not intend to make pictures a foolish and frivolous pastime, are willing to work hard and devote your life to the making of your goal, you are bound to succeed."

"But the girl who is always eager to step into leading roles without being willing to climb slowly from extra girl to star has very little
