

ORGANIZED BASEBALL TALKING TO BE HEARD

Word War Between Presidents Need Not Be Taken Seriously.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 29.—Since the collapse of the Federal League organized baseball finds it more difficult to maintain perfect harmony within its ranks. Things that could readily be overlooked now loom as the big league had a mutual enemy stand out in bold relief and seem greater now that money-making is the main thought, with no common ground for action without rivalry.

Every club owner in the National and American leagues considers that the time has come for getting even for losses sustained during the two years' baseball war and the ball players who, while looking to their own interests, in which they added to the difficulties in battling the independent organization, must work for no favors now.

Many stars secured long-term contracts, but most of them expired with the close of the past season and now the moguls look to have an inning of their own. A number of unreasonably high salaries is past and some owners are even ready and anxious to knock out the national agreement and start baseball all over again under conditions.

The National Commission, composed of the presidents of the two big leagues, with Garry Herrmann, of the Cincinnati club, as chairman, has not given satisfaction to all of late, and the National Commission, composed of the presidents of the two big leagues, with Garry Herrmann, of the Cincinnati club, as chairman, has not given satisfaction to all of late, and the National Commission, composed of the presidents of the two big leagues, with Garry Herrmann, of the Cincinnati club, as chairman, has not given satisfaction to all of late.

The off-color happenings that marked the closing game of the past season set tongues wagging, with the result that the perfect harmony that has marked the intercourse between the National and American leagues of late years is noticeable by its absence, while Ban Johnson and John Tener are beginning to say friends should not use as a criterion for the statements made when the latter quit the Giants' bench during the lay-down series with the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Tener comes back at Johnson for not disciplining Lammie when the latter declared that the American League umpires were trying to rob his Red Sox of the pennant.

This war talk between rival presidents of the two big leagues convinces many that Dreyfus may be right when he says that organized baseball needs overhauling in order to bring it up to date. However, those familiar with the methods of some of the big men in baseball are inclined to look beneath the surface in considering the threatened rupture between the leaders of the two big leagues.

Johnson has ever been dictatorial in his dealings with the National, and before Tener took command was apparently on the brink of breaking off diplomatic relations. He may now consider for the best interests of the game to resume this public appearance of bitter rivalry.
