

Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall Announces Reception Dates for the Season

Mrs. Marshall, wife of the Vice-President, will be at home for the first time this season on Wednesday, January 24, at the Willard and will receive every following Wednesday until Lent.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Lansing entertained a distinguished company at dinner last evening at their residence in Eighteenth street. Their guests included the Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakmeteff, the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. da Gama, the Minister of Bolivia and Mme. Calderon, Mr. Justice and Mrs. Willis Van Devanter, Senator and Mrs. Claude Swanson, the Third Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. William Phillips, the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission and Mrs. Joseph Davis, Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, Mr. John Barrett, director general of the Pan-American Union; Mr. and Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis and Dr. and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson.

The Minister of Bolivia, Don Ignacio Calderon, has been appointed Minister to Cuba in addition to his duties at Washington. Accompanied by Mme. Calderon and Miss Elena Calderon, he will go to Havana in January for a few weeks, returning to Washington for the remainder of the season.

The Minister of Switzerland, Dr. Paul Ritter, went to New York yesterday, to join his wife, who has been there for several days. They will return to Washington tomorrow.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Daniels will leave this evening for Norfolk to attend the Southern Commercial Congress. The Secretary will return to Washington on Saturday, but Mrs. Daniels will go to Raleigh for a short visit.

Senator and Mrs. Willard K. Saulsbury will be hosts at a reception this evening in compliment to the members of the Senate and their wives. They will be assisted in receiving by Mrs. Thomas F. Bayard, Miss Emily Bissell, of Wilmington, who is their house guest; Col. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Walcott, and Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Richards.

Mrs. George T. Marye will come to Washington after a brief visit to Pittsburgh. Mr. Marye, former Ambassador to Russia, has returned to their home at N street and Connecticut avenue from New York.

Miss Helio Davis, who will have charge of the Nebo rabbit dolls between the acts of the Hebe, will be at the Belasco this afternoon, will be assisting her Miss Margaret Clark, the Misses Tuttle, Miss Anne Hopkins and Miss Frances Wilkinson, of Chicago.

The first meeting of the Monday Evening Dancing Class was held last evening at the Playhouse.

The dances which are among the smartest functions of the season, are arranged by Viscount and Viscountess J. H. de Sibour, Mr. John F. Wilkins, Mr. George Peabody Eustis, and Mr. Reynolds Hitt. The dates for the dances are December 15, January 22, January 29, February 5, February 19 and February 26.

Mr. and Mrs. George Peabody Eustis entertained at dinner last evening at the Albi Club, taking their guests later to the Monday Evening Dancing Class.

Mrs. Delos Blodgett and Miss Helen Blodgett entertained at a theater party last evening in compliment to Miss MacDaniel, of Atlanta, who is visiting them. The other guests were Lieut. Heath and Mr. John Temple Graves, Jr.

Miss Blodgett will be hostess at a luncheon today for Miss MacDaniel. Among the other guests will be the Misses Edith and Minna Blair, Miss Mary Howry, Miss Dorothy Alshir, Miss Annwater, Miss Sophie Sweet, Miss Natalie Dulles, niece of Mrs. Robert Lansing; Miss Jane Gregory, and Miss Marie Pearce.

On Friday Mrs. Blodgett will entertain at luncheon for Mrs. A. W. Waite, of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Mrs. John Carroll Payne, of Atlanta, who will arrive at Washington today to be her house guests during the annual meeting of the National Society of the D. A. R.

Miss Edith Grace went to Baltimore yesterday to be the guest of Miss Marion H. Butler and attend the dinner, which Miss Butler gave last evening before the first Monday German. Miss Grace will return to Washington today.

Mrs. W. C. Prentiss will have charge of the fancy work table at the bazaar, luncheon, tea dance and ball to be given at the Raleigh today for the benefit of George Washington University Hospital. Mrs. Stockton will have a table of aprons of all varieties. Miss Larzer will assist, assisted by a group of young women.

Women, and Mrs. Ashley, a clever pianist, will give readings during the afternoon. Luncheon will be served from 12 to 2, and the tea dance, under the direction of Mrs. Eugene Byrnes and Mrs. Crawford, will be held from 4 to 6 o'clock. There will also be dancing in the evening after 8 o'clock.

Brigadier Gen. Charles L. McCawley was host at a luncheon yesterday. Mrs. Walter A. Bloedorn was hostess at a tea yesterday afternoon at the Club of Colonial Dames. Mrs. James H. Glennon, Mrs. Alexander Hunter Galt, and Mrs. Samuel Spencer presided at the table. In the receiving line were Mrs. Adelaide Worth Bagley, Mrs. Z. W. Reynolds, Mrs. Edward Rhodes Stitt, Mrs. Francois Berger Moran, Mrs. Hughes Oliphant, Mrs. Julian Bolling, and Mrs. Archibald Gracie.

Assisting in the dining-room were Miss Lucy Burleson, Miss Washington, Miss Dorothy Dennett, Miss Spaulding, Miss Belle Bagley, Miss Ethel Bagley, and Miss Mary Stith.

Mrs. Samuel Burleigh Milton delighted the guests with several songs from the opera "La Tosca." The decorations consisted of large gilt baskets of American Beauty roses, holly and ferns. An orchestra played throughout the afternoon.

An engagement of interest to Washington society is that of Miss Helen H. Draper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Draper, of Boston, to Mr. Walbridge Smith Taft, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Taft, of New York, which was recently announced.

Miss Draper is a cousin of Princess Margaret Boncompagni, formerly Miss Margaret Draper, of Washington, and came to Washington recently to be bridesmaid at the marriage of Miss Beatrice Clover and Maj. Thomas Holcomb, Jr., U. S. M. C.

Mr. Taft is a nephew of former President William Howard Taft. He ran for Congress in the Sixteenth New York district and was defeated. He is now a member of the law firm of Parks, McKinstry & Taft, but on January 1 will join his father's firm, Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft.

Mr. Reginald Huldekooper, whose marriage to Miss Bessie du Pont, of Wilmington, took place on January 21, has purchased the residence, 157 New Hampshire avenue, where he and his bride will make their home. The house was occupied by the former Secretary of the Navy, Mr. George von L. Meyer, and afterward by the late Mr. George W. Vanderbilt.

Jonkheer Tjarda van Starkenborgh-Stachouwer, attaché of the Netherlands Legation, and Mme. van Starkenborgh-Stachouwer, accompanied by Count J. A. Z. van Rechteren Limpud, and Baron Hardenbroek, of the Netherlands Legation, were guests at the dinner given last evening in Baltimore by Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Marburg before the first Monday German.

The marriage is announced of Miss Mary Leona Burch, of Washington, and Dr. Joseph A. Farrell, of Hartford, Conn., on Saturday, December 2.

The ceremony for which cards were issued, took place at St. Patrick's Church at noon, Rev. Martin Egan officiating, assisted by Rev. James Smyth. The bride wore a becoming traveling costume of dark broadcloth with smart velvet hat. Her only attendant, Miss Katharine Hardin, also wore a tailored suit and hat to match. Prof. James F. Conner, of the Catholic University, was best man.

Dr. and Mrs. Farrell left immediately after the ceremony for a honeymoon trip. They will reside at Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed Riley have come up from their home at White Post, Va., and are stopping at the Shoreham, where they are entertaining their friends informally and being entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Hazell, Jr., of Middleburg, Va., are also at the Shoreham, as are Mrs. R. H. Dulany and Mrs. A. C. Randolph, of Virginia.

Miss Mary C. Boone, of Baltimore, accompanied by Miss C. J. Smith, motored to Washington yesterday and is stopping at the Willard.

Mr. Hollis Godfrey, president of the Drexel Institute, Philadelphia, came to Washington yesterday and is stopping at the Willard.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, of Waynesburg, Pa., who have been spending the winter at Washington for several years, arrived yesterday and are at the Willard for the season.

Judge W. W. Morrow, of San Francisco, one of the trustees of the Carnegie Institution, and Mrs. Morrow arrived in Washington for the annual meeting of the institution.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson came to Washington from New York yesterday and are at the Willard.

Former Representative and Mrs. Martin W. Littleton, of Brooklyn, are at the Willard for a few days. Others arriving there yesterday include Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Hardaway, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Andrews, Jr., and Miss Andrews, of New York.

"Cohan Revue" Offers Bits of Broadway as "The Brat" Bows in Eastern Premiere

VALLI VALLI, Leads Feminine Faction of "The Cohan Revue."

National—"Cohan Revue." "The Cohan Revue 1916" is a rollicking show, a riot of laughter and melody, a composite of dancing, travesty and spectacle.

The cast in the most notable feature of the big show. Few companies can boast such a competent collection of prominent headliners. There is Richard Carle, in a remarkable study of the doctor in "The Unchastened Woman," Elizabeth Murray, searching everywhere for the husband who went out for a drink twenty years ago and never returned; Charles Winniger, as "The Great Lover"; Miss Juliet, as "The Unchastened Woman"; Little Billy, the Boy Scout; James C. Marlowe, Harry Bulger, John Hendricks, Harry Delf, Alfred Latell, Lila Rhodes, Boyle and Brazil, and many others.

They sing, dance and chatter most engagingly, and their specialties carry the show to a triumphant conclusion. Cohan & Harris seem to have cornered the handsome choruses in this production. There are plenty of squabs, broilers and other types, and their gay male companions are agile and clever.

Richard Carle has never been funnier. Valli Valli is as pretty as a picture and dances charmingly, and Charles Winniger lends effectiveness to their travesty of "Julia and Donald and Joe," a song which satirizes the well-known stars of her summer outing, has just returned to Washington, and has taken an apartment at the Shoreham for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, of Chicago, are in Washington and during their stay are stopping at the Shoreham Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed Riley have come up from their home at White Post, Va., and are stopping at the Shoreham, where they are entertaining their friends informally and being entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Hazell, Jr., of Middleburg, Va., are also at the Shoreham, as are Mrs. R. H. Dulany and Mrs. A. C. Randolph, of Virginia.

Miss Mary C. Boone, of Baltimore, accompanied by Miss C. J. Smith, motored to Washington yesterday and is stopping at the Willard.

Mr. Hollis Godfrey, president of the Drexel Institute, Philadelphia, came to Washington yesterday and is stopping at the Willard.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, of Waynesburg, Pa., who have been spending the winter at Washington for several years, arrived yesterday and are at the Willard for the season.

Judge W. W. Morrow, of San Francisco, one of the trustees of the Carnegie Institution, and Mrs. Morrow arrived in Washington for the annual meeting of the institution.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson came to Washington from New York yesterday and are at the Willard.

Former Representative and Mrs. Martin W. Littleton, of Brooklyn, are at the Willard for a few days. Others arriving there yesterday include Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Hardaway, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Andrews, Jr., and Miss Andrews, of New York.

CHARLOTTE IVES, Prominent in the Cast Presenting "The Brat."

"Syll." Elizabeth Murray asks, "Can you tell me I'm Irish?" and Little Billy scores heavily. Harry Delf and Boyle and Brazil contrive difficult dancing numbers, and Frederic Santley dances neatly with Lila Rhodes.

The best travesties were those of the courtroom scene in "Common Clay," done in synopsized time, and the humorous rendering of "The Boomerang." Melody, dancing and brilliancy all combine to make "The Cohan Revue 1916" a happy entertainment.

Belasco—"The Brat." An Oliver Morosco premiere, the first eastern performance of a new comedy with a pretty and popular young actress in the double role of playwright and star, brought to the Belasco Theater last night an audience of the kind that quite filled the house. Miss Maude Fulton responded after repeated calls with the modest speech, "I am glad you like it."

"The Brat" is an appealing human comedy. Comparison with "Peg o' My Heart" is so obvious that it seems to be directly calculated by the author and the producer. There is excellent workmanship in the play, of so sure and firm a touch, as to make Miss Fulton's apparently lightsome personality, that the whisper rose on many lips, "Do you suppose she really wrote it?" For the first act, or even a little longer, the lines seemed to point to the development of a comedy drama of substantial import, but these cues are followed only into paths of bright and pleasant entertainment.

"The Brat" is a little bit of East Side, New York, whose most shining experience has been gained as a "pony" chorus girl at the Hippodrome. She is rescued from the Night Court by a cool, keen novelist, who takes her home as a type to study. The writer's domestic entourage furnishes the acid test for the girl's demure ignorance and bubbling spirits. There is his mother, proud, but shallow and insincere; a younger brother, with a weakness for drink, encouraged by the older brother's example; a sister, a bishop, windy and pompous; a faithful and bibulous butler, and two affected young women engaged in a cynical contest for the novelist's attention.

The novel's plot draws a false conclusion from the author's kindnesses and is well on the way to a heartbreak when her affections are diverted to the younger brother, who takes a big brace and finally plunges off the ranch in Wyoming, much to the chagrin of his proud relations.

Miss Fulton is a sheer delight, making of the bowery wail a perfectly plausible character, continually compelling sympathy and laughter.

The cast is excellent. Lewis S. Stone, as Michael Foster, the novelist; Roscoe Arbuckle, as his brother, Stephen Forrester; Frederic de Belleville, as the bishop, and John Findlay, as the butler, all were warmly and deservedly applauded. Charles and Angela, who give the novel's proposal by cipher, are lively, capable, and Katherine Emmet, as Jane, the rival schemer, is good. There are no weak members in the company.

B. F. Keith's—Vaudeville. Rollieking, jolly Emma Carus is once again in Washington, and listen! she's thinner. Yes, she's proud of it, too. She confessed that to her audiences yesterday at B. F. Keith's, where she leads an excellent bill of a little of everything.

Miss Carus has some good songs, with the polka still bright on them, and the loss of those extra pounds she says she has dropped has added, if possible, to her agility when dancing. She still has her mirth-provoking wink, and all the little mannerisms that have made her a favorite with Washington vaudeville lovers.

Beatrice Harford is here, too. She is as delightful as ever in her repertoire of amiable characterizations. Sam and Kirtie Morton are "right there," so to speak, in an interesting little skit entitled "Back Where They Started." Another "former Washington girl" is here this week. She is Edna Munsey, "The Pollyanna of vaudeville," a beautiful voice and charming personality made decided hit. Morton and Moore, always entertaining, were at their best in "That Lively Pair."

Keith's wouldn't be Keith's without a "playlet," and this week a one-act comedy, "The Woman He Married," is killing it. Music? Always. There's something for music-lovers, and this week the De Pace Sextet show great talent. "Peers of the Perch," featuring the same family, has some of the most darling and wonderful pole "stunts."

An intermission with the pipe organ recital, and the Hearst International News Pictorial close the show.

Cosmos—Vaudeville. Four features are on the Cosmos Theater bill this week, including the photoplay of the St. Lawrence and the Thousand Islands, "The River of Romance," in which Harold Lockwood and May Wilson are the leading players. The bill opens with Les Jennetta, a French novelty, featuring a flock of white and black doves, dogs made up as ponies, and a tumbling monkey, along with the three human principals in what might be called an acrobatic fantasy.

"Harvest Days" is a musical burlesque featuring seven attractive young girls in dancing ensembles and chorus accompaniments. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Desmond present a playlet entitled "The Soldier of Propylaea." The fourth number is the Tamsamian trio, in tumbling and acrobatics. Other acts are Eleanor Sherman, in a piano; Gertrude Millington and Lawrence Paul in "Love and War," a singing sketch; Fox and Ingraham in "Chatters," and Neil McKinley, comedian.

Besides the photoplay, which is shown at 1:45 and 10:15, and which will be replaced with "A Prince in a Pawnshop," the big Vitaphone comedy featuring Barry Bernard, Thursday, the Bell-Tribune

Will Dance in Aid of the Tubercular Soldiers of France MISS LILLIAN EMERSON. Little Miss Lillian Emerson, who has danced before royalty, will make her first public appearance in Washington as one of the artists who have given their services in aid of the tubercular soldiers of France. The famed Russian dancer, Pavlova, once said of this little girl that Pavlova could teach her nothing. Among other artists who will appear will be H. V. LeMaitre, formerly of Tours, France, who has an international reputation. He will recite monologues. Frank Pallack, of New York, with his rich and sympathetic tenor voice, also will appear. Many prominent society women have taken boxes for the benefit performance, among them Mrs. George Vanderbilt, Mrs. Marshall Field, Mrs. Theodore V. Boynton, Mrs. Richard Townsend and others. The benefit performance is being made under the leadership of Mrs. Edith Wharton, who has recently received the decoration of the legion of honor. Nearly 100,000 soldiers in France have returned from the front infected with tubercular germs. The benefit performance will be part of an extensive effort to prevent spread of the white plague through France. It is estimated that $500 will be raised for one of these sufferers for one year.

HOROSCOPE. "The stars incline, but do not compel." Tuesday, December 12, 1916. Early today Venus rules kindly, but later Jupiter and Saturn are strongly adverse. It is a favorable rule under which to sell, but buying is not indicated. Speculation should be conducted with caution. A flurry on the market is indicated by the stars. Jupiter is in a place read as threatening to business, who should guard against fraud and embezzlement. Woolen merchants and manufacturers have a rule that may cause losses of large profits owing to some unforeseen condition. It is sinister surely under which to deal in bonds or securities. Investments should be delayed. Lawyers and judges have a forbidding direction of the stars believed to indicate severe strain and serious disappointment. Women, who may expect reasonably good fortune in all business affairs today, should beware of speculative ventures. Disgrace for one who attempts large enterprises is prognosticated. Increase of interest in dress and all that pertains to the adornment of women is foretold for 1917, which will be a time of extraordinary extravagance. A reaction from licence in books and plays is indicated. President Wilson has the Moon in conjunction with Mercury, and in trine to Uranus aspects that foreshadow many of the new year, which will be most memorable for the United States. The rise of an unknown statesman again is prognosticated. He will probably come from the West. Increase of interest in the theater will develop many new producers in Canada, as well as in the United States, astrologers predict. Persons whose birthdate it is should tend strictly to all business affairs during the coming year. The young will court and marry. Children born on this day probably will be kind and generous. These subjects of Sagittarius are usually trusted and respected. (Copyright, 1916.)

Old Point Comfort Norfolk And ALL POINTS SOUTH New York and Boston By Sea Daily from Seventh Street, 11:30 A. M. City Ticket Office, 731 15th St. N. W. NORFOLK & WASHINGTON STEAMBOAT CO. A steller bill of high-class burlesque is offered at The Gayety this week. A review of the performance appeared in The Washington Herald yesterday. Lyceum—Burlesque. A burlesque entertainment with many new features is being presented at the Lyceum this week. A review of the attraction appeared in The Washington Herald yesterday. MISS WILSON AT POLI PLAY. Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of President Woodrow Wilson, was the center of interest of a box party at Poli's Theater last night, when Virginia Harford's great success, "For the Woman He Married" was presented as a benefit for the Park View Citizens' Association. Miss Wilson has taken the liveliest interest in this organization, as has also District Commissioner Oliver F. Newman, who was also a boxholder.

Moog's Garden—Olga Petrova. Mme. Petrova drew large audiences to Moore's Garden Theater yesterday, where she headed a triple feature program in "The Black Butterfly." The story tells of a French peasant girl who marries a count. Believing he is already married, she becomes the toast of the club. Her mother love years for the daughter she cannot call her own. She becomes a hardened, bitter woman of the world. The story ends happily in a field hospital. Mme. Petrova plays the dual role of mother and daughter with a convincing depth of understanding. An uproariously funny farce, "Persistent Percival," features Oral Humphrey in the leading role. The program, which will continue until Wednesday inclusive, further embraced a Mutt and Jeff cartoon comedy, the Garden Tropical Digest and special music by the Garden Symphony Orchestra. Thursday, Friday and Saturday the stars of "The Wolf Woman" will head the program in "The Vampire's Prey," adapted from Richard Harding Davis' last story, "Somewhere in France." Louise Glauin is well suited to the "Vampire" role and Howard Hickman enacts the avenging lover. Roscoe Arbuckle appears in his funniest farce, "Pickle Fatty's Fall." There will be other film attractions and special musical accompaniments by the Garden Symphony Orchestra. Moore's Strand—Robert Edeson. Robert Edeson heads the triple feature program at Moore's Strand Theater. Large crowds yesterday saw the film version of Rudyard Kipling's story, "The Light That Failed," with Mr. Edeson in the steller role. Splendid scenes of the South and of studio life in the Bohemian quarter of Paris lend the proper atmosphere to the film play. Jose Collins plays the role of the model. The other films include Herbert Lloyd in comedy, "Luke's Preparedness Preparation," and "Bringing Up Father," an animated cartoon comedy by Geo. McManus. These pictures will continue on the screen until Tuesday inclusive and on Wednesday and Thursday Bessie Love and Ethel Owen and Peggy Hyland make their debut as film stars in a novel by George Randolph Chester, "The Enemy." Poli's—"The Woman He Married." "The Woman He Married," formerly played by Virginia Harford, is the attraction at Poli's this week. A review of the play appeared in yesterday's issue of The Washington Herald. Loew's Columbia—"Oliver Twist." Marie Doro in the film version of "Oliver Twist" is playing at Loew's Columbia this week. A review of the film appeared in The Washington Herald yesterday. Gayety—Burlesque. A steller bill of high-class burlesque is offered at The Gayety this week. A review of the performance appeared in The Washington Herald yesterday. Lyceum—Burlesque. A burlesque entertainment with many new features is being presented at the Lyceum this week.
