

Secretary of State and Mrs. Lansing Hosts at Large Dinner Party

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Lansing were hosts at dinner last evening, entertaining at their residence in Eighteenth street.

Mrs. Lansing's sister, Mrs. A. M. Dilling of Auburn, N. Y., will arrive at Washington today to be the guest of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Lansing.

Mrs. All Kull Khan, counselor of the Persian legation, and Mme. All Kull Khan entertained at dinner last evening at their residence in Wyoming avenue in celebration of the Persian New Year.

The drawing rooms were effectively decorated with aspidragons, jonquils, astringes and pussy willows.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Commander F. H. Clark, U. S. N., wore a gown of white bridle satin, trimmed with pearl embroidery.

The long square court train which fell from the shoulders was fastened with a pearl ornament in butterfly design.

Her tulle veil was held with a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Ardella Clark of Boston, cousin of the bride, was her only attendant, and her gown was of blue taffeta, with an applique trimming of rose color silk.

She carried a bouquet of pink roses. Passed Assistant Surgeon J. F. Haynes, U. S. N., was best man.

A reception followed in the ballroom, which was decorated with large baskets of spring flowers, palms and ferns.

Mrs. Clark, mother of the bride, assisted in receiving, wearing a handsome gown of black georgette crepe over satin, with a black tulle hat trimmed with black feathers.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Heath were hosts at dinner last evening at their home in E street.

SCHOOL DAYS By DWIG

Folk We Touch in Passing

APPEASEMENT OF GOD.

By JULIA CHANDLER. Turning from the contemplation of his western sky, down which the sun of his life was sailing fast, the Man looked back along the path he had come—and was afraid.

Measuring success by the height of his pile of gold, the World said he had run a good course. Many there were who envied his ease and luxury, and the Man himself had had much the World's conception of achievement, expecting to find on the far side of his life some peace and happiness in his accumulation of wealth.

He owned a beautiful home; bought what he chose, gave the one thing which is without price and priceless, for love he had none—not even in the family which respected his business acumen and obeyed his wishes through fear of his sternness.

Looking back, the Man wondered why it was that he turned his face toward the west with so heart-breaking a sense of desolation. "I have been a hard and selfish man, seeing where I did not sow," he finally concluded in honest retrospection.

"But that is a matter easily rectified," he added, hopefully. Whereupon, the Man called for his check book and generously offered a part of that which he had ground out of the mortar in charity.

The newspapers praised his deed, and the World wondered just what sin he might be trying to expiate, while the Man himself sat back comfortably to wait the blessing of peace which he felt would follow in the wake of his gift.

But of peace there was none. His sun was slanting farther west, his feet grew slower as he walked, and the desolation which gripped his heart was a mighty poignant thing.

HOUSEWIFE'S DAILY ECONOMY CALENDAR

Through the Meat Chopper. By FRANCES MARSHALL. No one could justly be called a good housewife or cook who did not understand the art of using meat the second time.

Here is something good to remember. When the meat is in small scraps and perhaps a little dried and browned in place it should be ground. If it is in better condition it should be fine cut, and if it is in very good condition, as it will be from the better portions of a roast that has been served but once, it should be coarse cut.

From the ground meat one makes croquettes, loafs, fine hashes and meat cakes. From fine cut meat should be made scalloped dishes, timbales and cream dishes, and from coarse cut meat, timbales or a scalloped dish can be prepared.

As much as possible the fact that the dish is made over should be hidden. This is best done by taking great care with the cooking of the dish—if a pie is made let the pie crust be beyond reproach. If a creamed dish may be, macaroni, sauce be well seasoned and well prepared, so that it will seem sufficiently good to warrant its existence aside from the fact that it has been made in order to utilize left-overs.

In making pies do not limit yourself to pie crust cover. Biscuit dough or mashed potatoes may be used. Bread-crumbs moistened with milk and one egg make a delicious pie cover.

In making scalloped dishes do not always use breadcrumb. Rice, macaroni or noodles should be used by way of variety. In making creamed dishes do not always use the same sauce. Tomato sauce, especially in the summer time, is better. Although the meat may have been cooked once, it should be thoroughly cooked the second time.

One very important thing to remember in making make-over dishes, and this applies especially to the summer time, is this. Although the meat may have been cooked once, it should be thoroughly cooked the second time. It is said that more cases of ptomaine poisoning are due to the fact that croquettes and other "make-over" dishes are not cooked thoroughly the second time than to any other cause.

Experiments are under way in England with a method for thawing frozen meat without bursting its tissues, so that it will compare favorably with fresh-killed meat.

What Every Woman Should Know. Dr. Ferdinand King, New York physician and medical author, tells physicians they should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for their patients—says anemia—iron deficiency—is the greatest curse to the health, strength, vitality and beauty of the modern American woman.

THE GIRL WHO DIDN'T CARE.

There was a terrible hot fire last week. Some of you probably read of it, but I won't. But you were there, those who don't know, for the sake of the girl herself. Maybe she didn't care, but she does now.

What we call a road show had started out from New York the week before I left home. The firemen reached there in time, and the look on Peggie's face. He left them there in the hall, talking.

"Not fifteen minutes later the cry of 'Fire!' rang through the hotel. It was one of the old-fashioned kind, and just under to the flames. In less than three minutes, the people were making for the windows. The firemen made wonderful headway in reaching us, and I was among the first saved, as my room was on the parlor floor, but the men in our company nearly all were on the fifth and sixth floors out of reach of the ladders.

Randy was running around counting heads, as I were, when S— was missed, and we saw him at a window with the girl in his arms. Just as the flames swept out behind them, the firemen reached there, and Peggie above and drew them both up to safety.

"I shall never be long as I live forget Monday night," she wrote. "I was about two in the morning, and the weather eight below zero. We were playing split dates up through here, and I had made an early jump out at six-thirty for the train. Everybody was worn out, as Randy had been calling extra rehearsals for a new comedian who joined us Wednesday, S— simply could not make it."

Answers to Correspondents. Rose M. T.—I could not attend the movie ball as we were very busy taking "The Poor Little Rich Girl" at Fort Lee. I never attended college. I went on the stage when I was 5 years old and had private tuition. I do not know yet where the national convention is to be held. If it is possible we always try to attend it.

TRAIN YOUR HAIR AS AN ACTRESS DOES. No class of people devotes as much time to beauty as do actresses, and no class must be more careful to retain their charms.

TOMORROW'S MENU.

And thus they bid farewell to carnal dishes. And solid meats and highly spiced ragouts. To live for forty days on ill dressed fishes.—Byron.

BREAKFAST.

Prunes, Cereal and Cream. Bread Omelette. Rolls. Coffee.

LUNCHEON OR SUPPER.

Fried Scallops. Watercress Sandwiches. Cucumber Salad.

DINNER.

Cream Tea Soup. Broiled Steak. Parsley Sauce. Baked Potatoes. Battered Beets. Celery Salad. Lemon Jelly.

Bread omelette—Take one-half cupful of bread crumbs and equal parts of milk, soak for half an hour, mix with four eggs, season with salt, pepper and cook in an omelette pan.

Fried scallops—Wash a quart of scallops and drain them as dry as possible. Then plunge them into boiling water and boil until tender. Drain again. Mix a few tablespoonsful of flour with salt and pepper. Wipe the scallops as dry as possible, dip them in the seasoned flour, then in a beaten egg and then in fine cracker crumbs, and drop into hot, deep fat to brown. When brown remove, drain for a minute on paper, and serve very hot with crisp broiled bacon and tartare sauce. Garnish with slices of lemon and tiny sprigs of fresh parsley.

The shad should be nicely broiled and served on a hot plate with this sauce: Two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice with three tablespoonfuls of butter and two teaspoonfuls of finely chopped parsley. This sauce is delicate and of a pretty, pale green color.

A Favorite Quality Butter. Elk Grove Butter satisfies every demand. It is pure, wholesome and palatable. Golden & Co. 922-928 La. Ave. Wholesalers Only.

HOROSCOPE.

Thursday, March 22, 1917. Good overbalances evil in the influence of the stars today. According to astrology the Sun, Uranus, Venus, Saturn and Mercury are all in benefic aspect, while Jupiter and Mars are adverse.

Under this rule men and women are likely to feel contending emotions and to be swayed by grave uncertainties and they should be exceedingly cautious, especially in money affairs.

This sign augurs an encouraging government for promoters and publicity men. Editors and advertisers have the best guidance.

Trampus gives aid to inventors, who will find the year 1917 most advantageous. America will achieve victories in vehicles for transportation in air and water, the seers declare.

Venus is read as presaging serious problems for women who will be called upon for service in public affairs. Grave mistakes are to be avoided only by supreme care, it is predicted.

The stars appear to give warning of scandals and dissensions among organizations in the United States, where well-timed men and women will be seemingly unparoled.

Riots, bloodshed and a new sort of strike are prognosticated. These will affect the highly educated as well as the ignorant.

The signs augur ill for tranquil conditions in the army and navy. Danger of a surprise that will be of grave import is forecast.

Business should be safeguarded as there may be heavy losses through conditions now wholly unforeseen.
