

FISHERMEN MEETING WHY AND WHEREOF OF WESTY HOGANS

Trout and Spot Prove Plentiful at "Wicomico and Solomon Island."

Yes, boys, the fish are here, there and everywhere, and the fishermen are busy as ever.

So are the fishermen. Hardly a man who has gone out to his old stamping grounds during the past week but what has been well rewarded for his trouble and time. Nick Stoenestret, Edward J. Hierling, Davis S. Pool, I. C. Manake, H. William Jerns, Barton Ewers and Leroy Gaddis, Jr., formed a party of six that went down on the Wicomico during the week. They forgot to take an extra large camera along because the string of fish they caught was so long that the bunch had a circus tinge to get all in the picture. More than 400 fish—trout, spots and perch—composed the catch.

Charles Branson (he is always fishing), Charles Dourant, H. H. McKeever and M. S. Wright, honored Solomon's Island with their presence and under the guidance of Capt. Sift fished a few hours and stopped when they caught the pulling in the fish. It ceases to be sport when the fish beg to be caught and the boys were sportsmen.

Annapolis is coming back as a fishing spot. Last Thursday N. L. Pullian, E. T. Stunkel, Dr. S. Wren Howard and Frederick Eberly made up a fishing party and fished in the vicinity of Thomas Light. Before a storm interrupted their sport that took 200 fish into getting caught. Charles Simmons, George W. Parezo, and Dale Barron visited Branson and fished in about 40 trout, the biggest of which weighed three and a half pounds, which fell prey to Simmons. The other fish were busy with the regular fish to look for prize ones.

Detective Joe Morgan, attached to Inspector Grant's office, is wise enough to know a crab when he sees one. He is familiar with the human as well as the crustacea. He scandalized the whole office by bringing a whole raft of the many-legged, eight-legged, ten-legged, and bid them feed till they had plenty.

Another gun-toter, Inspector Grant, chief of detectives, has a hobby for butter fish. He spent the day at Swan's, near Piney Point, with Roy Parker, Phillip Parks and Harry Evans. Grant caught an enormous butter fish with a blue ribbon around his neck. The trout and other fish were tallors. The trout and other fish were tallors.

A channel bass weighing twelve and a half pounds (would you believe it?) was caught by George H. Demont. This fish was pulled from the water by tallors. The trout and other fish were tallors.

Five hundred and twenty-seven fish (count 'em). The boys who did that at Rock Point a few days ago were E. C. Snyder, William Curtis, Tom Flinn, (note his name), William Price, Thomas M. Quill, Ed Costigan and Bill Withers. Withers is responsible for the count. There were all kinds, shapes and sizes and a few unknown varieties. The hungering of the fish and the expertise of the fishermen were the only excuses Bill had for the enormous number.

Eighteen Mississippi cats and 14 perch. John Speck, who says if the fish are not in one place they are in another, went for a little jaunt to Sycamore Island, and intended to stay there until he caught something. He did and came back with a big fish, a bluehead, perch and other small fish. A black sea bass got on Heacock's line to the surprise of everybody.

John Brady, of Georgetown, cannot get the cat fish alone. Yesterday he went up to Chain Bridge and for a seven-day wonder he got nothing. He left away he went down by the Michewick Bridge and there he hooked a white and went home. Stuffed.

Famous Brooklyn Pitcher and White Sox Mainstay Were Members of Same Minor League Club—Virginia U. Player Among Officer Reserves.

By GRANLAND RICE. The Canadian, who have responded to the country's call don't overlook Virginia. One of the former Virginia football players took his training at the Officers' Reserve camp at Fort Myer and every man who has a commission. Three received captaincy and eight were commissioned as first lieutenants.

The most interesting case of all was Randolph, one of the stars. For the first time he has been pastor of the Episcopal Church in Lexington. He has a wife and a child. He received indefinite leave of absence from his church to go into the line, receiving a captain's commission.

Subscriptions Reign Supreme

Winners of Gold Piece Will Be Announced as Soon as Total of Subscriptions Has Been Completed.

"Home Club" subscriptions reign supreme at the All-Prize Club headquarters at The Washington Herald office on an early hour Saturday morning until two hours before midnight, when the curtain was rung down on the special ballot offer. Most of the enthusiastic candidates worked hard to get the required amount of subscriptions to entitle them to an extra prize of $5 in gold.

Just how many of the members succeeded in capturing a "Golden Eagle" to the value of $5 in Uncle Sam's precious metal is yet to be determined. The work of checking and counting the business turned in during the special offer has been completed just as quickly as possible. The cash prizes will be paid to the winning candidates as soon as the total of the subscriptions has been ascertained, which will likely be sometime Wednesday or Thursday. The vote standing of the members of The Herald's All-Prize Club will be reported in the issue of Tuesday's issue of The Washington Herald.

TWIN APARTMENTS CHANGE HANDS HERE

Gladstone and Harwarden Bought by Mrs. Jessie Cugle.

The purchase of Gladstone and Harwarden, twin apartments, at 1419 and 1423 R street northwest, by Mrs. Jessie C. Cugle, was one of the biggest realty transfers reported last week. The property was owned by the Gladstone Apartment House Company.

These two buildings, which are separated by an attractive lawn, were erected about fifteen years ago, by John Nolan. They contain forty-four keeping apartments. While these apartments are among the most comfortable in the city, and have the additional advantage of being desirably located. The total annual rental for the property is about $20,000.

The construction is of brick, steel, and concrete. The front is of white brick and presents a very striking appearance. The plans for the building were by Frank R. White. Work on the apartment building at the intersection of Connecticut and New Hampshire avenues, which was halted by protest from the Austrian Embassy for some time, has been resumed since relations with that country have been entirely to offices while the remaining floors consist of apartments. Some of the features of this building are soundproof doors, electric elevators, fireproof corridors, permitting free circulation of air. The general arrangement of the rooms affords ample light on all sides. It is a building of rather novel appearance and is very attractive.

The purchase of the building at the corner of Eleventh and F streets by the Boston Ground Rent Trust Company consummated one of the most important transfers in F street property recently. The building is occupied by The Mode clothing and finishing store.
