

Activities of Women Prominent in the Social Life of the Nation's Capital

NOVEMBER

Quite the most notable of Washington's many beautiful autumn weddings was that of 11 o'clock yesterday morning at the Mexican Embassy, when the marriage of Senorita Cecelia Bonillas, elder daughter of the Ambassador and Senora Dona Maria Borton de Bonillas, and Senor Dr. Juan B. Rojo, first secretary of the Mexican Embassy, a scholar and diplomat of distinction, took place.

In the ball room which for a quarter of a century served as a private meeting place for society until circumstances closed it more recently, the ceremony was carried out in the presence of forty or more guests including members of the family and the embassy staff. The white and gold room is lined with mirrors and there was draped amethyst, with tall palms and ferns placed where most effective. An altar was arranged at the far end of the room, a huge mirror only partly concealed with the brilliant scene. At either side were placed marble stands, and near the prie-dieu tall, slender baskets of white enamel, each filled with huge chrysanthemums. The mantel was banked with ferns and a graceful lattice work of vines concealed the musicians.

The lofty hall and drawing rooms were decorated with palms and ferns and in the dining room where the wedding breakfast was served, were quantities of ferns and white roses. Senor Ing. Ygnacio Bonillas led his daughter to the altar, where Mr. Thomas S. Lee performed the ceremony, and where later, Father Buckley officiated at the nuptial mass. The bride, who possesses to a marked degree the beauty and grace of the sturdiest type of her countrywomen, wore a splendid gown of rich white satin fashioned with a court train, race old lace relieving the austerity of the duchesse satin. In contrast to jewels which her bridal robes, were the splendid old family heirlooms, a full set of diamonds and pearls, comprising necklace, brooch, bracelet and other pieces. Her sweeping veil of tulle was worn with clusters of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of valley lilies and roses.

Proceeding the bride and her father was the younger daughter of the Ambassador and Senora de Bonillas, Senorita Maria Bonillas, who wore a charming creation of blue satin trimmed with silver and veiled with a child chiffon. A large hat of silver net with blue and orchid streamers added a charm to the toilet and she carried orchid-colored chrysanthemums.

Dr. Rojo was attended by his younger brother, Senor Don Guillermo Rojo de la Vega, who was the proxy for an older brother, Senor Don Jose Rojo de la Vega.

An interesting feature of the wedding ceremonies was witnessing the event, when the President of Mexico was represented by his countryman, Senor Dr. Alfred Caturegli, and Gen. Oregon was another distinguished witness.

Before and all during the ceremony and while the guests were at breakfast, an interesting program of very soft music was given by the Misses Knapp. Added to the brilliant scene in the ballroom were the handsome gowns of the women present. Senora de Bonillas was particularly handsome in a gown of gray chiffon fastened with a graceful train and trimmed with lace.

An interesting incident of the wedding breakfast was when the bride cut the cake with an ancient Spanish dagger, centuries old, and carried a beauty of workmanship with a hint of gold.

The gifts to the bride were many and handsome, and included silver services, works of art, jewels and a beautiful home in Mexico presented to her by her father.

Senora de Rojo wore on her wedding journey yesterday a handsome one-piece dress of brown silk, the same shade of brown being carried out in her hat, coat, furs and such accessories as gloves and shoes. Dr. Rojo has taken an apartment at the Somerset and he and Senora de Rojo will be at home there shortly after their return to Washington.

A number of guests came from New York and Mexico for the wedding, among the latter being Senor Don Mario Bonillas, a son of the Ambassador and Senora de Bonillas.

Ever since last spring the Colonial Dames have been paying the salary of a Y. M. C. A. secretary and providing him with an automobile, which enables him to make daily visits to each of the camps near Washington. This is one of the activities which the society wishes to keep up during the winter months. It is hoped that the proceeds of the entertainment will be sufficient to carry on the and other work of the society for six months.

sum already has been raised through subscriptions and through a dance given by the marine corps officers at Quantico at the Officers' Club. Additional contributions may be sent to Mr. George Howard, treasurer, Dupont National Bank.

The passing of no man of note in late years has so affected society in general as the death of Gen. George W. Foster who with members of his family has been allied with the brilliant social life of Washington and the capitals of the world, for more than a quarter of a century.

The home of Gen. Foster has been the meeting place for diplomats, and having represented this country at the courts of Russia, and Spain, having been the minister of this republic to the Republic of Mexico and mingled in the court circles of Great Britain, France, Austria, Germany, China, Chile and other countries through his services on the various important treaties negotiated between America and these countries, has enabled him and his family to present a far more interesting hospitality to the diplomatic world than any other household in Washington.

Mrs. Foster joined her husband in extending the hospitality of their home to their son-in-law and daughter, the Secretary of State and Mrs. Lansing, thus adding another brilliant chapter to their Washington life. The closing of their home, even temporarily, adds much to the depression of society.

Mrs. Thomas F. Bayard, Mr. and Mrs. John Hay, Gen. and Mrs. John Sherman, former Senator, and Mrs. Elihu Root, Senator and Mrs. Phander C. Knox and Mr. Justice William R. MOVIE ACTRESSES AND THEIR HAIR

Did it ever occur to you that every movie actress you have seen has lovely hair, while the most popular count their curls as their chief beauty? In fact, many are leading ladies just because of their attractive locks. In inquiry among them disclosed the fact that they bring out all the natural beauty of their hair by careful shampooing, not with any soap or make-up, but with a simple mixture by putting a teaspoonful of castor oil in a cup of hot water and applying this instead of soap. This full cup of shampoo liquid is enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. After its use, the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. The mixture is as follows: The Washington Home for Foundlings, 175 Fifteenth street, will have a tea on Thursday afternoon, November 22, from 2 until 7. The following
