Letter to the Editor.

To the Editor of The Herald: Sir—I respectfully request a brief space in your columns to express vigorously my dissent from certain assertions contained in an article in the Washington Post of March 15, under the signature "Byler Gramon"...

"Between thirty and forty priests who aided the enemy in spreading the propaganda of 'mutual laying down of arms' were executed. Twenty-six of Cadorna's generals were court-martialed and shot. This information is given me by an Italian officer who obtained it at the front."

No wide notice, of course, will be taken of these two startling allegations by persons well-informed as to the situation in Italy, and aware of the hysterical lack of judgment or critical ability among certain rumor-mongers recently posing among us, and imposing on newspaper editors, as publicists and diplomatic experts. But there will be persons likely to be misled, perhaps, because of the prominent place given such statements in an important metropolitan newspaper...

It must be a bit disconcerting for a 17-year-old bride to have a 17-year-old young lady call her "mother-in-law." This is the relationship into which Mrs. R. A. McDermid, an American girl, stepped when she became the wife of a wealthy Viadovostok merchant...

When Mr. Gramon's authority shall have been disclosed, it is asking too much that he identify for us his thirty or forty priests "executed" for peace propaganda...

It is idle to cite further evidence in this regard; one can only wonder apropos of Mr. Gramon's whole attitude, why international gossip would not do well to wait for the report of the mixed commission appointed to investigate the Italian military disaster of October before presuming to explain it.

REV. N. DE CARLOS, Pastor of the Holy Rosary Church. The other case is that of a widow who is the face to write such non-sense when on December 2, in the chamber of deputies, Prime Minister Orlando himself declared attacks made on the Italian clergy to be wholly unjustified by their conduct in the war and due to partisan prejudice...

There will be an entertainment given free to all on the evening of Friday, March 22, at 7:30 o'clock, at the Randle Highlands Baptist Church, Twenty-second street and Taylor road southeast. Men in uniform are cordially invited to attend.

A lecture for the blind will be given at the Library of Congress, Tuesday evening, March 19, at 8:15 o'clock on Pavilion 7. Lieut. Col. Charles F. Lee, of the British Aviation Mission will speak on flying.

The Federation of Citizens' Associations will hold a meeting this evening in the board room of the District building.

The Neighborhood Club will be at home informally to stragglers this evening from 8 to 8 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Hayden Johnson, 1842 Vermont avenue.

The Rosedale Garden Club will meet at Noel House, Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The eighth year and second anniversary banquet of the Cherrydale Fire Department, will be celebrated in the school auditorium this Wednesday evening, March 20, at 8 o'clock.

An exposition of biblical prophecies referring to the Bahai Revelation, and also present and coming events in the world's history, prepared by Mirza Asad Fazl, of Persia, will be presented at the meeting of the Bahai Assembly, in Studio, Hall, 1219 Connecticut avenue, Sunday evening at 8:15 o'clock.

The regular community dance and reception of the officers and uniformed men, will be held at Thompson School, this evening at 7:30 o'clock. Henry T. Rainey, Representative from Illinois, will be present and address the gathering.

Siam Phones Profitable. Bangkok, the capital city of Siam, is the only place in the kingdom which is equipped with a telephone system. The service is owned and operated by the government. In the fiscal year ended March 31, 1917, much progress was made in the use of the device. The average number of connections for twenty-four hours reached 12,755, compared with 9,320 for the corresponding period of last year. With the total receipts for the period covered fixed at $6,528, the profits amounted to $5,092. Vice Consul Hanson's description shows that there are 821 telephones in Siam, including five public pay stations.

A few additional patronesses of the box holders for the first school benefit for the District Chapter of the Red Cross Monday evening, March 25, at Belasco Theater, are: Countess de Cellere, Madame de Aldunate, Mrs. Marshall Field, Judge and Mrs. E. B. Parker, W. E. Fowler, Mrs. John C. Simpson, Mrs. John D. Barrett, Mrs. Bernard Baruch, Mrs. William Gorgas, Mrs. William Ritter, Mrs. Crowell, Mrs. McCain, Mrs. Mrs. Sharp, Mrs. George Marve, Mr. and Mrs. George Armsby, Judge Towley, engineers U. S. A., Col. and Mrs. Keller, Col. and Mrs. Ridley, and Mrs. Grant. Tickets on sale at Woodward & Lothrop's and at the theater after Monday, the 18th.

The Park View Social Club gave a poverty party at Maccabee Hall, on Wednesday evening. The dancers were attired in many-lined grotesque and tattered and torn costumes.

Mrs. James K. Kerr and L. F. Borland were awarded the prize for being the most poverty stricken looking couple attending the function. The prize was a one pound box of anthracite coal.

Hard times refreshments were served by the following committee: Mrs. Robbins, Mrs. Shaw, Mr. Anderson, Mrs. Kerr.

There are 120 children in St. Ann's home of whom over 6 years old, 113 of them being under 3 years of age.

During the past year the institution received $2,525.50 from a Congressional appropriation, which is just $65 more than the annual milk bill of $2,830. To meet the deficit in their maintenance expenses, St. Ann's must depend upon private charity. The fuel bill alone during the past winter amounted to $1,500.

A medical staff of prominent Washington physicians attend the children and a corps of trained nurses assist the sisters of St. Ann's in their care.

HOROSCOPE.

Saturday, March 16, 118.

This is a threatening day, according to the reading of the stars, for the Sun, Neptune, Mercury, Saturn and Venus are all in evil place. Late at night Jupiter is friendly.

The rule appears to forecast a period of extreme depression of spirit among persons in the East, or other world, those who direct military, naval and State affairs.

Warning is given against the voicing of fear in any form, as during the way of planets that produce despondency any tendency to recognize discouraging influences is exceedingly dangerous to public as well as to private welfare.

On this day there is a sinister sign for shipping and travel on the ocean. For the remainder of the month water will be a menace in storm and flood as well as for transportation.

Mercury is in a place pressuring much misrepresentation through writings. This may indicate, or it may be the dissemination of the enemy's propaganda, but the falsifying of reports.

This is not a lucky day for signing leases or contracts, the latter being subject to the most unfavorable influences.

Scandals arising in discoveries made of contracts signed a year ago this month will be of national concern. It is prophesied.

This is not an auspicious day for weddings or for any love affairs. Milliners, modistes and all who sell luxuries or ornaments for women are under a threatening rule of the stars.

Saturn again betokens death among distinguished persons who have passed middle age and presages the loss of an American of world-wide fame. Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of an active and fortunate year in business affairs, but they should guard against illnesses in the family.

Children born on this day are likely to be gifted, energetic and successful. They should be careful in association with the opposite sex.

Asks Court to Cancel Order Giving Alimony

Lloyd A. Brooke filed suit yesterday in the District Supreme Court for an absolute divorce against Rosina V. Brooke, charging misconduct and naming a corespondent.

On August 30, 1917, Mrs. Brooke filed a suit against her husband for maintenance. This suit has not yet been disposed of by the courts. Under a ruling of the court shortly afterward Brooke was ordered to pay his wife temporary alimony. He now asks the court to cancel that order.

Attorney Alvin Neumyer appears for the husband while Attorney James Hawken and Havell appear for the wife.

Confessions of a Wife

MARRIAGE AS A BUSINESS. I came back from my dreaming to find the girls were still discussing that most interesting subject of marriage, with much embarrassment, and was only too happy when Mollie said with a laugh, "Oh, Margie is day-dreaming over that baby that is coming to her. We were just discussing how many divorces money make," she continued.

"Well you know money is said to be the cause of all evil," I quoted fatuously.

Then my thoughts went back to the unhappiness that I endured over money when Dick and I were first married, and I knew I had some very emphatic ideas on the subject but before I could speak, Annie said: "I am almost sure the trouble is because a man always says and thinks 'my money' instead of 'our money.'"

"You have not spoken yet, Margie," said Mollie, "how would you settle it? I am asking you because I know that you settled the question in your own family very satisfactorily, although I think it took you about a year to do it."

"Well, you know my dear, that I always had some very radical ideas about marriage, one of which was that marriage is a business. I had a little trouble making Dick see this—in fact I did not quite see it myself at first."

"It is rather hard for a woman to look at marriage in a sane manner when she is very much in love. She wants to think that the life will be a kind of glorified courtship, when, if she had been properly educated she would always know that marriage was very different from courtship."

"I thought I wanted to belong to Dick when I married him but I early found out that I wanted nothing of the kind. I did not want to belong to anyone—true, I still wanted the little attentions that Dick gave me before marriage, and when I did not get them I was like every other woman, very unhappy."

"Yes," interrupted Annie, "I think the most tragic time in a wife's life is when she sees her husband settle down to read his paper in the evening before he has noticed that she is wearing his favorite frock."

As Annie said this, my thoughts went straying to the time when she would have said something entirely different. I wondered if Tim really understood how much she had grown and how

WAR MAPS UP-TO-DATE

SERIES OF HERALD'S MAPS INCLUDE ALL WAR ZONES

Here Is an Opportunity to Secure The Herald Maps that Will Enable You to Follow Events of Those Engaged in War.

THE HERALD has been fortunate in securing maps that will adequately convey to our readers the location of battle fronts and the relation to the other throughout the world. Officially declared, the divisional lines on the maps are before the war.

We have just concluded an agreement with the Geographical Publishing Company, publishers and to the public a series of maps of interest. These maps are on heavy paper, and are as follows:

First—Round World Spherical Projected with half tones of the rulers of the world.

Second—Western Battle Front with Battle Fronts on either side of large Western Front.

Third—Franco-German War Front, Eastern Front.

Fourth—War Zones of Europe and Asia: France, German Empire, Austria, Rumania, Servia, Bulgaria and European War in Russia, showing Gulf of Finland, and Luxembourg, Italy, and San Marino.

Fifth—Commercial America, United States, and Panama Canal Zone.

Sixth—Europe and Contiguous Countries.

These maps will be in six parts and will show the battle lines and the title line on which the soldiers are engaged.

To secure one of these maps, which is limited, you must send a coupon at the side, bringing with it the amount set in the Herald will be sent to you on receipt of your order, and the map in a box will be delivered as soon as it is received. As the demand for these maps will be great, The Herald urges on those who want these maps the necessity of ordering at once. Tear out this coupon and mail it at once.
