1,000 CRACKS TO SHOOT ON RIFLE RANGE

100 from Capital to Attend Contest at Saunders, Md., This Week.

More than a thousand expert rifle shots are scheduled to face the targets on the State range at Saunders, Md., in the two-day shooting contest which begins Saturday morning, ending Sunday afternoon. Of these, over one hundred will go from Washington, comprising the best rifle shots in this city. The contest in question will be one of the most important ever held in the country, and is attracting a great deal of attention from a high class of shooters. It involves the annual championship matches of the National Rifle Association rifle clubs of Maryland, and the District of Columbia, and is under the immediate direction of Maj. William C. Harlee, U. S. M. C. vice president of the National Rifle Association, and member of the national board for promotion of rifle practice.

Teams from the Naval Academy Rifle range, Annapolis, Md., and the navy rifle range, Burnie, Md., will enter for their regular annual division team competition. Whatever score they make will count in their official qualifications. The Navy Department is heartily in accord with the idea of holding these annual contests, and is giving every encouragement to the one in question. It recognizes the fact that the naval cadets from Annapolis will be pitted against some of the best rifle shots in the United States, and seems anxious to encourage this spirit of friendly rivalry on account of the excellent training it will afford its future naval officers. Maj. Harlee deserves a great deal of credit for his efforts in arranging these contests, so it is claimed by members of the different rifle clubs. Several years ago, when he first began an agitation of the idea, participants were allowed but 100 rounds of ammunition each by the government. Now they are given an unlimited quantity, and it is estimated that thousands of rounds will be shot each day in the series of matches.

Best Shots Going. Col. M. A. Winter, president of the Washington Rifle Club, and commanding officer of the Home Defense League Rifles, is rendering Maj. Harlee the utmost co-operation to make the tournament a success. The best shots of both organizations represented by Col. Winter will participate, and it is known that the Naval Division team, winner of the shooting matches over the Eastern Market rifle range last Saturday night, will be on hand to try conclusions with the best shots from the Naval Academy. Fifteen different matches have been arranged for the two days' contest. They are open to citizens of the United States, including members of rifle clubs, military, naval, Home Guards, National Guards and similar organizations, without regard to previous qualification. Full information respecting these matches may be obtained from Col. M. A. Winter, 1438 U street, northwest, Winter Building, or phone north 40.

Austrian Vandals in Air Leave Wreckage in Italy

New York, June 18.—The Italian bureau of information published a dispatch from Rome giving official data of Italian edifices and architectural monuments which had been damaged or destroyed by Austrian aerial bombardment. The list, which is an extensive one, will bring a pang to the heart of many an admirer of Italian art. Many of the acts of vandalism against the ancient churches and palaces of Venice and other Italian towns have apparently been intentional, as the same churches have been singled out time after time as targets for Austrian bombs. The most important items in the list are as follows: In the year 1915 the Church of San Gerolamo at Ancona; the castle and palace Albertozza at Bari; the castle at Barletta; the Church of the Scapoli at Venice. In 1916 the churches of San Apollinare Nuovo at Ravenna; Santa Maria Formosa, San Pietro in Castello, Santi Giovanni e Paolo in Venice; the Abraxia at Chiaravalle; the Church of Santa Corona in Vinzenza. In 1917 the Basilica and Museum at Aquileia; the Episcopio at Udine; the Villa Soderini at Nerves; the Tempio Canoviano at Positano. In 1918 the Museum and Library at Bassano; again the Tempio Canoviano at Fossagno; the Palazzo Provinciale, the hospital and the Church of San Nicolo at Treviso. The following buildings in cities in the Venetian region were damaged: The Teatro Verdi (facade); the Duomo and Battistero (twice); the Civic Museum and Basilica del Santo, Chapel of San Giorgio; house of Eszellino II Baldo; Church of San Francesco, School of Charity; house of Via Beato Pellegrino; Palazzo Veronesi and Palazzo Maldrati; all in Padua. In Venice in 1918 several small houses of the fifteenth century in the quarter of San Leonardo; churches of San Giovanni e Paolo, San Grisostomo, Santi Simone e Giuda, Santi Andrea (ceiling), Chiesa del Frati (roof), San Toma, Casa della Seta, Palazzo Foscarini.

BILL TO PUT CANDY IN SOLDIERS' RATION

American sailors on sea duty, whether attached to Amerian or European ports and members of the American Expeditionary Force in France, will soon be eating hot fudge, milk chocolate, caramels, stick candy, marshmallows and "kisses" if the bill introduced in the House yesterday by Representative N. J. Gould, of New York, becomes a law. The bill directs the Secretaries of War and Navy to include in the regular ration a candy ration to be selected by these Candy is not now a regular part of the ration of the fighting man. Many suggestions to this effect have been sent to the departments, but so far they have not been carried out.

AERIAL TANK INVENTED FOR USE IN MOUNTAINS

Milan, Italy, June 18.—(Special Correspondence)—An aerial tank has been invented and put into practical use by the Alpini, Italian soldiers who have astounded the world by their extraordinary feats in mountain warfare. An Austrian machine gun emplacement was so situated on a mountain side that it poured an harassing fire into an Italian post. The Austrian position was unassailable by ordinary means, but according to the Corriere della Sera, of this city, it was absolutely necessary that it be wiped out. A "Teleferica" car, many of which are operated by the Italians across chasms and up mountain sides, was armed and equipped with machine guns. Volunteers were called for, and from the many who responded two were chosen to man the guns. This improvised aerial dreadnought was then swung out across the valley. After one or two exploration trips at a dizzy height, the men in the car finally located the Austrian post and quickly put it out of action with well directed fire.

"Sells" Train of Cars in Red Cross Auction

Clinton, Ill., June 17.—During a Red Cross auction here anything in sight was offered for sale. In the midst of bids on a hog the auctioneer espied a Vandals passenger train approaching. "How much am I offered for it," he said, indicating the locomotive and string of cars. It "sold" for $35. A freight train brought considerably more.

COMMONS TO SIT JULY 4

London, June 17.—Bonar Law announced in the house of commons today that Parliament will not adjourn on July 4. In answer to a query from William Thorne, the chancellor of the exchequer said: "I hardly think it would be a satisfactory way to celebrate the Fourth by suspending work in the commons."

BREAKFAST IN THE AIR

Breakfast served in an aeroplane to six people is one of the latest feats of the giant Caproni, according to the Corriere della Sera, of Milan. These machines, which have created much interest in this country, are still the cause of much wonderment and enthusiasm in Italy.

"Good Morning, Judge" Human Interest Stories of Police Court Happenings.

A $40 Dream. One night last week Herbert Owens had the D. T.'s. He was rooming in the same house with Clara Mason and Maude Wayne. He got up about midnight and threw a shoe in Maude's room, scaring her almost into a fit. Then he went into Clara's room and knelt down beside her bed and said his prayers. So Clara said and Clara pushed him away with her foot. Herbert grabbed the foot and bit it. Clara yelled. Maude got up and went to see what was the matter. Herbert grabbed both women, and knocked their heads together. Maude grabbed a stick and let him have it over the head. Clara got him by the neck and held on until a cop came in. The two girls were scratched and bruised from head to foot. Herbert was pretty well bunged up. The cops bandaged his head where Maude struck him with the stick. Of course the next morning Herbert knew nothing about it. He couldn't remember what he did or anything about it. But that did not stop the court from fining him $40 in the two cases. Why Worry a Tired Man? Judge, do older night when Ah got home funk work Ah was all tired out. Ah sets mahself down on de porch to res' mah bones. "Mah wife kept hollerin' at me. Ah tole her to shet up an lemme alone. She wouldn't do it." "But what did you strike her for?" the court asked Millard Thompson, who was charged with an assault on Joie, his wife. "Ah never hit dat woman, Judge," persisted Millard. "She jus' dreamed dat Ah hit her." "Yes, but you put her to sleep after you hit her, and she must have dreamed something then," remarked the court. The whole trouble grew out of Millard's reluctance to go up stairs and nail down some matting. His wife had been after him all summer to put down this matting. She is so stout that she cannot do it herself. Joie said that Millard was never too tired to go out every evening to shoot crap or play pool. So, why should he be too tired to do odd jobs around the house, she argued. The court suspended a thirty-day sentence and took Millard's personal bonds not to repeat the offense. Jim Butts In. The other day when Bill Henderson got paid off by the District government, he stood outside the pay office for a few minutes. A man walked up to him and asked him to change a $5 bill. Bill handed him five ones and the man walked off. A second or two later Bill discovered that the man hadn't given him the $5 bill for the five ones. He called him back. "The man argued that he had given Bill his five spot. Bill insisted that he had not. "Another man, Jim Reeder, showed up and butt in. "Dat man did gib yo de five," put in Jim. "en of yo says ne didn't Ah will shoot yo, cause dat man is a fren ob mine. "Ez yo is gwine to shoot," said Bill. "go ahead an shoot." Jim did. He shot Bill on the side of the face and in the shoulder. Then the cops took a hand and arrested Jim and took his gun away from him. He pleaded guilty in court to a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. That being the case, he was put under $1,000 bonds to await the action of the grand jury.

George Did It

Just as Helen Ford and George Thomas passed a corner on their way to the movies Monday night, like Tolson, who was standing nearby, asked them: "Ah has mah opinion of a woman who will trammel wid a dam craphooter?" Helen blushed (as well as she could) and turned her head the other way. George got real mad. He wanted to stop and lick Ike, but she wouldn't let him. They went ahead to the show. On the way back Ike was still on the corner. George saw him before he saw George. "Still goin' wid dat craphooter?" asked Ike, as Helen passed him. George was all ready. He had his fist doubled and Ike caught it under the chin. The pair grappled. Helen ran home. A crowd collected and watched the fight. The cops heard about it and came on the run. The fighters were separated and locked up. But since Ike started the fuss, his fine was the heaviest. The court told him to pay $10 and George only $5.
