Senator Gallinger left Washington Wednesday for his home at Concord, N. H., where Mrs. Ralph Gallinger, his daughter-in-law, who resides in his Washington home, went a week ago. Mrs. Gallinger will remain in the North until autumn.

Miss Alice Downing and Miss Elsie Downing have gone to Jamestown, R. I., to spend the summer with their sister, Mrs. Hugo Osterhaus, who has the Tennant cottage for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Downing expect to keep their house in Hillary place open during the summer on account of their son, who is in the service and stationed at Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Vrooman left Saturday afternoon for Charlevoix, Mich., where Mrs. Vrooman will spend the summer with her mother, Mrs. Matthew T. Scott.

Miss Dolores Crawford went to Jamestown last week with Miss Alice Downing and Miss Elsie Downing. She will remain there until September, when she will make a series of visits before coming back to Washington in the late autumn.

Chicken-Pecked Parents

THE WORLD'S HIGHEST PAID WOMAN WRITER.

Among my acquaintance is a dear, clever, shrewd-eyed old lady who lives with her maiden daughter, Martha. Martha is a capable and energetic soul, a born manager, whose nature is destined to be the presiding genius of a husband and a large family of children. Unfortunately, fate somewhat thwarted the matrimonial dream, and she is now a widow, and having no one else to manage except mother she spends all of her talents in that direction upon the poor lady.

Strangers always say to mother: "My dear Martha, how blessed you are to have such a good daughter! I never saw such devotion. Why, she just simply never lets you out of her sight, and she seems to anticipate your every thought."

And mother smiles an inscrutable little smile, and murmurs politely: "Oh yes, Martha is the best of daughters," but to me she said once in a burst of confidence: "I am going to do you know what I am going to do? One of these days I intend to get together all the old fathers and mothers that I know who have loving children who are doing their duty to their parents, and I am going to organize these down-trodden and oppressed parents into a regular Fourth of July Independence League and we are going to make our last bid for a little bit of personal liberty."

"At present we are groaning under the tyranny of the young. We are chicken-pecked to death. We are being bullied by our children, coerced into doing those things that we do not wish to do, and prevented from doing those things that we do wish to do, and that is not pleasant. And it doesn't make it a bit easier to bear because our tyrants are loving tyrants, and their interference with all of our pleasures and amusements is done in the name of duty and for our own good. What we old people want is to have our own way, and to live out our own little short span of days in the manner that pleases us. Our children will not permit us to do that. That is why I am going to organize a revolt of parents."

"Our children don't seem to reflect that we are the ones who have raised them, and who only ask of food that it shall be nourishing. I have always been a connoisseur with an educated palate with as much discrimination as what I eat. I have only listened to or the books I read. Indeed, the pleasures of the table have been one of the joys of my life. And now that I am old, it is about the only pleasure whose delights are left unimpaired to me."

"But I can enjoy them no more in peace because Martha has decided that everything I like is bad for me. I must eat 'Mother's' touch that sauce; it is too rich for you. 'Mother, you must not drink such strong coffee.' 'Mother, you must not eat red meat.' 'Mother, you mustn't touch that until I am exasperated enough to throw things at her.'"

"And Martha isn't alone. Practically all of the old people who are treated in the same way by their devoted children, who seem to think that they are doing their duty when they interfere with everything their parents like to do, are in the same old people they would surely grant us a little personal liberty."

"We have only a little time to live anyway; why not let us do as we please that last hour? If we shorten our lives by eating the things we like or get killed by going about alone, what of it? Believe me, when you are 70 one day of freedom is worth five years of minding your children."

"Nobody except those who have experienced it know the pain of being chicken-pecked, nor how hard a good daughter may be to endure." (Copyright, 1912, by Wheeler Syndicate, Incorporated.)

I could have laughed aloud to see how foolishly Barclay Hill acted at the tennis tournament, little book. After depositing Donna in our box he stayed away for the longest time, and after Jim Edie came he positively glowered at us from across the clubhouse veranda.

To tell the truth, little book, I wasn't very happy. I simply seemed out of place; I wanted to be at home with my baby and Dick, for Dick's my brain and he became almost a living Dick to me.

It was one of the greatest griefs of my married life that Dick did not write me letters and consequently I was very glad to get back to Dick's own pleasure that he do as he pleased. Neither do care to go to a dancing party to dine out and come back to Richard Waverly id before he had gone to sleep.

NOTHING SAD IN TIER MODE

BY BETTY BROWN.

Collars and cuffs in tier are the motifs of this charming blouse and there is nothing to inspire tears in the effect obtained. This arrangement of white organdie in folds of varying width permits a clever use of cords and contrasting colors. The blouse proper is of blue and white organdie and the collar and cuffs are of solid white organdie amply corded in pale blue.

IN MISERY FOR YEARS

Mrs. Courtney Tells How She Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oskaloosa, Iowa.—"For years I was simply in misery from a weakness and awful pains—and nothing seemed to do me any good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and got relief right away. I can certainly recommend this valuable medicine to other women who suffer, for it has done such good work for me and I know it will help others if they will give it a fair trial."—Mrs. LIZZIE COURTNEY, 108 8th Ave., West, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Why will women drag along from day to day, year in and year out, suffering such misery as did Mrs. Courtney, when such letters as this are continually being published. Every woman who suffers from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, nervousness, or who is passing through the Change of Life should give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lowell, Mass. The result of its long experience is at your service.

Sunday Theatre Openings

Poll—"Stolen Orders."

A genuine masterpiece of the film is "Stolen Orders," which opened week at Poll's last night. It is projected from the studios and under the direction of the famous William Wyler, who is almost as well known in the screen world as in the theatrical—if, indeed, not more so. "Stolen Orders" doubtless is the most pretentious production of the celluloid era put out under his trade-mark.

Loew's Columbia—"The Firefly of France."

Wallace Reid in "The Firefly of France" was the feature photoplay at Loew's Columbia yesterday and will remain there through Wednesday. The picture, because of the spirit of patriotism which animates it, is one of the best seen in many weeks. It also furnishes Wallace Reid with one of his greatest roles as the frequent manifestations of the large audience amply testified.
