32 Dead, 500 Hurt; Torch Applied as Race Riots Spread

Traction Strike Forces Hundreds of Thousands Into Vortex of Mad Struggle—Police Head Still Refuses to Hold Troops Held Ready With Fixed Bayonets—Gov. Lowden on Scene—Disorder Breaks Out All Over City.

Chicago, July 29.—The third night of race rioting saw no abatement of violence. The rioting has spread to every section of the city, and bands of blacks and whites wage continuous guerrilla warfare.

Fire had added to the reign of terror. Incendiary blazes were frequent in the negro district. Fire companies responding to the alarms were fired upon, and orders were issued for all companies to be furnished with arms.

The city, with its 150,000 negro population, presented a strange aspect of terror. The people on the streets in the business district, and there were hundreds of thousands of them, forced to walk by the street car strike, moved with fear and apprehension.

The number of dead is not definitely known, but the police report thirty-two bodies in morgues tonight. The list of injured has grown beyond counting. The hospitals are filled to overflowing.

In the great sections of the "black belt" the appearance of a white face was the signal for a volley of rifle and pistol shots. The case of Harold Rignadell serves to illustrate.

A detail of police braved a volley of bullets and took the cottage by storm. Four women and nine men, all negroes, were arrested. Two revolvers, 500 rounds of ammunition and some knives and razors were found concealed in the building.

"I shot that white man," bragged a negro woman. "The whites have been killing us decent colored folks. We have to protect ourselves."

Soldiers of the Fourth Regiment, ordered from Camp Logan, reached here tonight. Their march through the streets with fixed bayonets appeared to impress the rioters.

But Chief of Police Garrity was not ready to admit the police could not handle the situation. He conferred with Adj. Gen. Dickson, who was alarmed by outbreaks of rioting.

Decision of the men to walk out came at a mass meeting where union chiefs presented the terms of the agreement with the street car companies.

Known dead, 32; 500 injured. Hospitals filled to overflowing. Four thousand troops with fixed bayonets held ready for action.

Gov. Lowden appeals to officials for complete co-operation. Rioting spreads all over city.

Both white and negro rioters use automobiles to cruise around city, shooting indiscriminately.
