The Grotto
If the reader will visualize a wheel with innumerable spokes, each spoke representing hundreds of people extending congratulations and praises and Monarch Charles A. Stevens at the hub, receiving these encomiums, some idea may be formed as to the success of the wonderful entertainment staged by Kallipolis Grotto Monday evening last.

Following the ceremonial at which a large class of candidates was initiated, an elaborate entertainment was staged in the form of an operetta entitled "The Mystic Isle of Chin Chiu," written by Monarch Stevens. The play was Oriental in character, beautifully staged and included an array of talent.

Following the operetta, the audience applauded the 1,800 prophets and their ladies who comprised the audience. Long before the hour for the entertainment arrived, the grand ballroom was filled to its capacity and several hundred people had to be denied admission.

The play afforded opportunity for many clever and novel numbers, some of which were of such high order that it would be impossible to single out any one for special mention. The leading role was taken by Monarch Stevens and Past Grand Monarch Edward S. Schmid essayed the character of the Keen Observer.

Phrophe Walker is enthusiastic to the annual baseball game to be played with Almas Temple, Mystic Shrine, June 12, for the Star home. "Andy," says he, for an "aggregation of winners" and that every man is fit and ready for the battle royal.

Legion Women Start Wounded Soldiers in the Chicken Business in Washington

Wounded soldiers at Mount Alto Hospital are becoming poultry fanciers. George Baldwin McCoy unit of the American Women's Legion has donated a fund to start each man in the chicken business.

About 100 veterans have been gathered to this Public Health Service hospital from institutions scattered throughout the United States to undergo the treatment.

Members of the legion staff now make regular visits to every military hospital around Washington. They are constantly on the alert for means of helping the men regain their health and spirits.

With their first national convention over, the women are devoting most of their attention to a big membership drive. Legion officials believe there are 20,000,000 women in the United States eligible to become members.

It is planned to make the legion chapters living memorials of the boys who gave their lives in the war.
