

COVELESKIE, WITH THREE VICTORIES TO CREDIT IS BIG MAN IN CLEVELAND NOW

By DAMON RUNYON. (Universal Service Staff Correspondent.) League Park, Cleveland, Oct. 12.—Three innings of the last game of the world series pass this afternoon, and a gentleman viewing the unsteady Brooklyn Dodgers arises in the press stand and peevishly inquires: "Well, who's going to kick this game away on Burleigh Grimes?"

Grimes presently answers the question. He kicks, or throws it away on himself. The terms are synonymous in baseball. Cleveland wins by a score of 3 to 0. Thus Cleveland, a most deserving and enthusiastic community, is the new seat of the baseball championship. It moves here from Cincinnati and the National League.

Everything is coming Ohio's way this year. Coveleskie Biggest Man Here. Stanley Coveleskie, the Pennsylvania coal miner, draws the curtain on the series of 1920. The bulky Pole pitches Cleveland to its fifth and his own third victory in the series. The Dodgers score but two runs out of his pitching in twenty-seven innings.

Tris Kisses His Mother. Tris Speaker, the manager of the new world champions, is used to the crowd press around him. He goes over to a box in the stand back of the home plate and greets a gray-haired woman. He kisses her.

While Grimes' own error contributed to his defeat, the Dodgers had their chance to win against the pitching of Coveleskie. A few of the bad breaks of baseball are against Brooklyn, perhaps, but it is a baseball axiom that a pitcher cannot make a run cannot expect to win a ball game. The Brooklyn club is unable to get even very close to a run off the great Pole this afternoon. Robinson has no success.

Tris Speaker is called to the plate and is handed two loving-cups of silver. This takes off his cap and shows that his gray hair is getting thin on top. Jim Dunn, owner of the Cleveland club, makes the presentation. Motion picture men chase players about, taking reels of the game.

There are no empty seats in the yard when the game starts. The tree behind the field bleachers is so heavily clustered with people that it does not look as if it can stand the weight. The house-roofs break right here, are packed. Robinson's pitchers are getting this game this morning. Last night he says he will go with Marquard, the wry-necked. This morning he decides to stake everything on his ace.

ALIBIS FOR BEATEN ROBINS

Zach Wheat Sings Praise of Coveleskie and Manager Tris Speaker. By ZACH (BUCK) WHEAT, Captain of the Brooklyn Dodgers. League Park, Cleveland, Oct. 12.—They beat us, and they beat us badly and soundly. The game was a good ball game as games go, but it was all Coveleskie's. He is some pitcher, and of the three games he pitched in the series he worked best today. He was a beautiful game of Coveleskie's, no matter what angle you view it from.

Grimes worked better today, but couldn't win against the pitching that Tris Speaker deserves all the credit that can be given him, both for his playing and for his generalship in the series. Credit to Indians. The entire Cleveland team deserves the championship, but to serve the bulk of the praise for his handling of the Cleveland team, both here and in Brooklyn.

I was a little disappointed in our victory. The boys did not show to advantage. They were not hitting at the gait that was to be expected of them, and I do not say this to detract any from the splendid victory, which I believe as good we did much better all season. Tris Speaker deserves all the credit that can be given him, both for his playing and for his generalship in the series.

Looking back over the series, the work of Coveleskie stands out as the big feature, surmounting any such factors as triple plays or home runs. Several pitchers have won three in a series, notably Urban Faber of Chicago, Bender of Philadelphia, Babe Adams and others, but that they can extract anything from the credit due Covey.

I surely expected Grimes to win one of his games here, as we are always confident behind his pitching. I was sure did not get any of the breaks in the last three games. Look at my slam against the fence today. At first I thought it might have been a home run, but it was a foul ball. Better luck next time.

TECH SURPRISED BY MARINE PREP ELEVEN The Marine Preparatory School eleven surprised the local school football enthusiasts yesterday by capturing a hard-fought game on the Tech field in Potomac Park by the count of 7 to 6. Heine's failing to kick on a goal after touchdown proved the factor of importance. The Prep's victory. Tech scored first when they recovered a blocked kick on the 15-yard line, and Gude kicked the ball over soon after. The Prep's 7 points were made in an easy manner. Tech had held for downs on the 5-yard line almost at the end of the quarter, and tried to kick out of danger. The backs became mixed up and the ball was incidentally stopped by the ball as it left Heine's toe. The Northeast boys then took the ball over, with Heine kicking the goal from the field. The line-up and summary:

ALOYSIUS RUNNERS WIN IN BALTIMORE The Aloysius Club won the Knights of Columbus trophy over in Baltimore last night in the 5-mile race. The club, representing the Baltimore City and County Club, defeated the local team when five of their runners crossed the finish line ahead of all other contestants. McCoy, Williams, Bland, Lynch and Healy were the leaders at the finish.

Wants to Sue Aviator Who Knocks Down Chimney Rub your specs, grandpa, this is what you say in a newspaper at Dix's Mines, Ia. "Can I sue the man who knocked down the chimney off my roof with his park airplane?" queried a Highland Park resident on the telephone. "I think you can but I'll give you the police officer's name for further information," replied Desk Sergeant William Brownson.

Dodgers Are Blanked As Indians Grab Series

giving automobiles and diamonds to the Cleveland players. It was reported that Ebbets was considering presenting Manager Robinson with a calendar for 1920. The Dodgers were lined up around the gates until the heroes of the series came out. There was more affectionate manhandling of Coveleskie, Speaker and the others at the gates. Cleveland, officially fifth in population and first in baseball, knew how to make the most of its great day.

Play-by-Play Story of Game

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 12.—The detailed account of the game follows: First Inning. Olson raised a weak pop to Gardner. Sheehan raised a fly to Jamieson. Griffith drove a grounder to Johnston. Coveleskie got to first to take the throw, but failing to touch the bag, Griffith was safe. Wheat popped to Wambey. No runs, no hits, one error.

Second Inning. Jamieson grounded out to Koney. Wambey drove a high fly to Wheat. Koney popped to Johnston. No runs, no hits, one error. Third Inning. Miller was called out on strikes. Grimes drove a high fly to Wheat. Olson drove a grounder to Sewell and was safe on the latter's fumble. Sheehan drove a bouncer in left field. Grimes made a sacrifice. Olson was out for being hit by a batted ball, and Grimes' safe return to second. Sheehan was safe at first and received credit for a single. Griffith raised a fly to short right. No runs, two hits, two errors.

Fourth Inning. Wheat slammed the ball against the screen in right field for a safe hit, but was out to do so. Sheehan made a spectacular catch. The Smith made a perfect line throw to Wambey. Myers bunted and was thrown out by Gardner. Koney raised a high fly to Jamieson. No runs, one hit, one error. Fifth Inning. Kilduff hit a sharp liner over second base. Speaker made a remarkable catch. Miller went out. Sewell to Johnston. Grimes fouled one and then smashed a hard drive off Coveleskie's glove for what seemed to be a hit, but the Cleveland pitcher made a fast recovery and threw him out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning. The crowd here lined up around the gates. Cleveland, officially fifth in population and first in baseball, knew how to make the most of its great day. The game was a good ball game as games go, but it was all Coveleskie's. He is some pitcher, and of the three games he pitched in the series he worked best today.

GREAT GOLFERS French Champ Knocks Out in Fourth; Vardon and Ray Meet Hutchison and McLeod on Columbia Club Course.

Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, the famous British professionals, arrived in the city last night and are stopping at Wardman Park Inn as the guests of Harry Wardman. They are all set for the match with Fred Hutchison, local favorite, and Jock McLeod, the present Western open champion, which starts at 10 o'clock this morning over the course of the Columbia Country Club. Play will be resumed in the afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The Columbia Country Club announces that this match is not only for members of the local club, but for anyone else interested in the game. Badges for admittance may be obtained at Spalding's, 613 Fourteenth street. Thirty-six holes will be played in the match, eighteen in the morning and the same number in the afternoon.

BRITISH GOLF STARS WIN IN BALTIMORE Baltimore, Md., Oct. 12.—Harry Vardon and "Ted" Ray, the crack English golf professionals, defeated the American stars, Jock McLeod and Clark Corkran, local amateur stars, today in a 36-hole exhibition match on the greens of the Baltimore Country Club. The play was close in both the morning and afternoon rounds, and especially in the afternoon. All the players were decidedly off form. The afternoon round it looked as though the Corkrans would come through and take the match. They won the first four holes going out, but fell down badly on the fifth hole.

Levinsky Out in Fourth; Crowd 'Boos' Tame Fight

Jersey City Ball Park, N. J., Oct. 12.—Georges Carpentier, idol of the Paris boulevards, knocked out Battling Levinsky in the fourth round tonight. A flurry of rapid rights and lefts put Levinsky in a daze. All but sitting on the middle strand of the three-ring ropes and in a neutral corner, Levinsky received a vicious right across on the jaw. The end came after one minute and seven seconds of the fourth round had been negotiated. When ten seconds had been counted over Levinsky, whose arms and shoulders were hanging out of the arena, a "boo" arose from the crowd.

The battle had been too one-sided. From the first to the third rounds Carpentier was aggressive. During the third round he took matters calmly. Francois Deschamps, manager of Carpentier, stung by the "boos" of the crowd explained in broken English that his man had been ill for three days.

Second round.—The second round found the men almost immediately in clinch. Georges broke backward and fixed Levinsky with his widely heralded "levi eye." He then staggered Levinsky with two rights and knocked him down with a third other right in Georges' corner. Levinsky took the count of nine. He rose to receive a volley of swings, another right sending the Battler to the carpet. This time his eyes glared with approaching defeat. Levinsky heard eight seconds tolled over him. Clinching desperately in a neutral corner, Levinsky stayed the round out.

Fourth round.—In the fourth Carpentier, gliding two-thirds across the ring, found Levinsky with a straight right. The Battler received a terrible blow on both ear and chin and while sitting against the neutral corner slumped for the knockout, a right to the chin.
