

CANADA SEEKING SETTLERS FROM EUROPE AND U. S.

Opens Drive to Attract Immigrants to Lands And Industry.

NEW YORK, July 16.—What the United States will lose in the way of desirable citizenry through the enforcement of her sweeping new alien immigration law, Canada hopes to gain.

An unprecedented drive for new settlers has been launched by builders of the Dominion and every effort will be made to exceed even the high-water mark of colonization set before the world war, when hundreds of thousands of immigrants were pouring into Canada yearly.

As part of the campaign, Col. John S. Dennis, veteran colonizer and developer for the Canadian Pacific Railway, has come to New York to establish in the new Canadian Pacific building a bureau of information where inquiries concerning lands and industry in Canada will be answered and aid given prospective settlers.

"We expect the ban of the United States on European immigration to turn the tide into Canada," said Col. Dennis. "In fact we are going to capitalize the situation and go after the cream of the immigrants. We will have representatives in Europe who will 'hand-pick' the class of people we especially want. We have found the Scandinavians and other peoples of Northern Europe especially fitted for agricultural work in the Canadian Northwest. And they make wonderful citizens, as the middle West of the United States can testify."

Wants American Farmers. Col. Dennis said that the great migration of farmers from the States to Canada, which was at its peak just before the war, virtually stopped during the conflict and its revival will be one of the first and chief aims of the Canadians.

"The very best immigrant we get out in the Northwest is the farmer from the States," said Col. Dennis. "He usually is well fitted when he arrives here, knows just what conditions he must face and he almost invariably stays and becomes a loyal, hustling citizen of whatever community he settles in. Last year despite the great slump in immigration more than 16,000 of the 19,000 skilled farmers settling in Canada came from the United States. We're out to beat that percentage."

Slow "Central" And Fast Stork Didn't Mix Well

ROCKFORD, Ill., July 14.—Because Adam Cannell, a farmer, referred "central" to an even hotter place than Northern Illinois when she was slow in ringing up a doctor who was wanted by the Cannells to aid in an impending visit to a vice stork, the telephone company removed the telephone.

Cannell appealed to the utilities commission, which ordered the telephone restored. The company insists first upon an apology, which Cannell refused to make. The next move is awaited with interest by the neighborhood.

MURDERER WARD PAYS THE PENALTY

"Lone Wolf" Keeps Up Creed Of Desperado as He Walks To Gallows.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Harry H. Ward, the "lone wolf" murderer of at least two men, died Saturday as he had lived, in contempt of the law. He walked to the gallows without the flicker of an eyebrow, displaying to the last moment, the hardy creed of the desperado.

Before the cap was adjusted Ward looked calmly and contemptuously over the group of spectators below. There was no quaver in his voice as he responded to prayers spoken by the Rev. Father Shields, of Holy Name Cathedral. His last words were spoken through the cowl, and his final response was cut short by the trap was sprung. His neck was broken, proving that he had not flinched at the last.

Eighteen minutes after the trap fell he was pronounced dead, but the body was held for an hour to prevent attempts at resuscitation. Early today a man dressed in priestly robes appeared at the jail door and asked to see the "wolf." The guard was suspicious and called an assistant jailer. They were about to search the visitor when he dashed away. About the same time a truck load of men drove slowly past the jail, shouting "Ward, Ward, Ward." Police officers drew their revolvers and the truck moved on.

ONE U-BOAT SUNK, OTHER NEARLY SO

U. S. Destroyers and Battleships Speedily Do the Work.

NORFOLK, Va., July 15.—Both the remaining former German destroyers, allocated to the Versailles conference by the United States government—the V-43 and the S-132—were attacked by gunfire of American destroyers and battleships sixty miles at sea off the Virginia Capes today.

The former was first attacked with 14-inch guns by the destroyer Leary, and then with 15-inch shells by the battleship Pennsylvania.

The S-132, being hit six times by shots from the destroyer Herbert, and riddled with gunfire by the battleship Delaware, which did not finish shooting until a few minutes after 6 o'clock this afternoon, was in a sinking condition after the Herbert made its attack and more when the Delaware had finished.

The Leary made two hits on the V-43 and the Herbert was credited with six hits on the S-132.

Sixty shots were fired by the two destroyers and more than 250 by the battleships.

The Herbert made three hits through the water line of S-132, one through the bridge and one through each funnel.
