

YALE HEAVY FAVORITE OVER HARVARD--RIVER ELEVENS BATTLE TODAY

Buell's Toe and Forward Pass Hope of Crimson

Return to Old Harvard Style of Play Predicted in Grid Classic—Overconfidence Chief Worry of Yale Coaches.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—If anything saves John Harvard from defeat at the hands of his greatest rival, it will be the forward pass and Buell's good right toe. In one short week the Crimson coaches have tried to get back to the style of play made extremely popular at Cambridge in Charley Brickley's time. You use the aerial attack to get within Yale's 45-yard line. Then you drop kick enough times to take the game.

It is simple unless you run up against an impenetrable line and an impervious secondary defense, both of which the Bulldog claims to have. Furthermore, Yale's philosophy this year is that "a good offense needs no defense," and Yale's often is assuredly stronger than Harvard's.

But aside from the issue of the game itself—and Yale seems to have the victory neatly tied up in a parcel and ready to take back to New Haven unless the string breaks—the public is chiefly interested in seeing whether a team without numbers panted on its respective backs is any better than a team wearing the handy numerals.

Harvard is obstinate to the last degree in the matter of permitting the men to wear the tell-tale figures, and Harvard is alone in the wide, wide world in its opposition to the system that has helped to add popularity to the game and give the spectators a little insight into what actually goes on down on the field. "It would give away our plays," they say at Cambridge. And the very natural reply that every other team does it, and that therefore Harvard accepts an unfair advantage over her opponents meets no response other than a repetition of the old phrase, "it would give away our plays."

Yale hopes to demonstrate none of its plays were "given away" in the long series of preliminary games and conversely that Harvard didn't keep many secrets by sticking to the old formula.

The one thing most feared by supporters of the Blue is that the occasional bitter experience of the team that sits in the seat of the successful man seems to pass this time. Yale is too confident, she enters the stadium a clear favorite for the first time since the war, and meets a team of earnest young men who will do their utmost to wipe out the bit of taste of two defeats and a tie game that is morally a kicking.

Sometimes that kind of a game proves to have one good punch left, a punch that has been saved for the final game of the year.

HOPPE IS STILL KING OF CUEISTS

Retains Championship of the World by Victory Over Morningstar.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Willie Hoppe, American, still remains without a peer in the world of cue and ivory balls. The world's champion billiardist defeated Morningstar in his match tonight by a score of 400 to 213 and kept his place as the undefeated champion of the world.

Hoppe won in eight innings. Morningstar never had a chance with the champion at any stage of the game and the titleholder never found need of exerting himself. In the fifth inning however he showed a real form, making a run of 282.

The real sensation of the day's playing came in the afternoon when Welker Cochran, Mason City, Iowa boy, shattered the world's record high run with a score of 284. The youthful phenom won from George Sutton, Chicago veteran, 400 to 57.

In the early match between Roger Conil, French star, and Edouard Horemans, the Belgian champion, the Frenchman defeated his opponent in five innings 400 to 105.

Briarley Hall Primes For Georgetown Preps

POOLESVILLE, Md., Nov. 18.—Briarley Hall's gridiron warriors are going into the last ten days of practice before their Turkey Day tilt with the Georgetown University Preps. Capt. West, Briarley's fullback, suffered a sprained ankle in the St. John's game and did not report for practice until last Thursday, but his injury has not made his punting and drop-kicking as his distance in both were excellent.

Marksmen Compete Today in District Rifle Championship

Crack shots of Washington will compete today in the annual District of Columbia championship individual and team rifle match to be held on the target range at Camp Simms, Congress Heights, beginning at 9 a. m.

Blacklist Yale Fresh For Rule Violations

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 18.—The dreaded club always held over the heads of students who dispose of their precious tickets to the big football games came down with a thud today on the heads of two freshmen whose tickets for the Yale-Princeton game got into the hands of speculators.

The two luckless youths were "blacklisted" today by the Yale athletic authorities and henceforth they will be unable to secure tickets to games. Their names were withheld by the authorities who refused to confirm reports that a like penalty had been administered to several others.

Two Unknowns, Brothers, Lead in Pinehurst Golf

District Entry in Triple Tie for Second Place in Mid-South Tourney.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 18.—Two relatively uncelebrated and youthful golfers, Tom Harmon, Jr., professional of the Hudson River Club, Yonkers, N. Y., and his brother, Peter, an amateur, led a strong field by a clear margin of 2 strokes at the conclusion of the first 36 holes of the Mid-South Amateur Professional Tournament played at Pinehurst today. The Harmon boys finished the day with 89—85—123.

Tom and Peter were the first pair to tee off this morning and got a flying start by going around in 35—34—89. Three dangerous teams, all about equal favorites for the first honors of the tournament, tied for second place in the morning round at 79. These were Tom Boyd of Fox Hills, and Jesse Guilford, National amateur champion, whose best ball was 36—34—70. Freddie McLeod, of the Columbia Club, and young Guy Standifer, the District of Columbia amateur champion, who went around in 34—36—70, and Walter Hagen and Irving S. Robeson, of Rochester, former North and South champion who finished with 34—36—70. Hagen's team led McLeod by two strokes, at the edge of the home green but Walter took 2 putts, while Freddie sank his shot for a birdie 3 and they were all even.

Not content with their morning round of 89 and their one stroke lead, the brothers Harmon settled down to the finest of team work in the afternoon journey, went out in 33 and came home in the same figure for a 66, the best 18 holes of the district. Peter helped Tom, or Tom helped Peter, whichever way you choose to look at it on six holes. Each had individual medal scores of 72.

Jimmy Darcy Will Tackle Al Nelson

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Jimmy Darcy and Al Nelson, middleweights, are to do a 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden next Friday night. Dan McKetrick, Darcy's manager, today exhibited a family bible more than 500 years old, with notations therein, indicating Darcy's real name is Valley Trambatis, and that the Trambatis tribe was one of the greatest fighting families in Rumania in the fifteenth century.

Bert Collina, of California, who gave Dave Shade a trouncing a week ago, was matched today to meet Dave Rosenber, the former amateur lightweight, in an 8-round bout next Friday night at the Garden.

K. O. Phil Delmont, one of the hardest hitters among the lightweights, and Bert Spencer, of Brooklyn, will have it out for 12 rounds at the Broadway exhibition association in Brooklyn, next Monday night.

Swampoodle Title at Stake.

The gridiron championship of Swampoodle, Georgetown's summer playground, will be at stake tomorrow when the Quincey A. C. eleven and the Independents pit their wares against each other on Killen Field at Catholic University. Money, Georgetown; Sherman, George Washington, and Foley, Gonzaga, will handle the clash.

Kanawhas Arrange Schedule.

The Kanawha A. C., which last year won the District championship under the name of Epiphany Tigers, wishes to arrange games with quints in the 140-pound class. For further information communicate with Richard Berlin at 1818 Seventh street northwest, or phone North 1780.

vidual competitors making the highest scores at each range.

It is planned to have one target for each team and additional targets for individuals who do not belong to teams.

The course to be fired and conditions of competition will be as follows:

Three Cogs in Canoe Club's Grid Machine

CAPT. PERCY WALTON FRED BAMMAN FRED BUCHHOLZ
Hopes of the Washington Canoe Club to turn the tables on the Potomac Boat Club in their annual battle at the American League Park today rest largely on the shoulders of these three men. Captain Percy Walton at half, Fred Buchholz at full and Fred Bamman at tackle are all men of exceptional ability. Bamman is remembered as a great Princeton lineman, while Walton and Buchholz are both former Charlotte Hall stars. Buchholz was looked upon as a strong candidate for the fullback role at Georgetown early this season, but gave up his work with the Hilltoppers before the coaches had a chance to use him.

Potomacs and Canoeists In Annual Battle for River Grid Title Today

Outweighed approximately three pounds to the man, the Potomac Boat Club eleven will take the field against the Washington Canoe Club at American League Park this afternoon in an effort to trim the Canoeists for the second time in as many years and thus gain permanent possession of the Occidental Trophy, a cup presented by Gus Buchholz, and at the same time become the river gridiron champions of the District. Permanent possession of the Buchholz trophy requires two straight victories by one of the clubs and as the Potomacs, by a 6-to-0 victory last season, already have one leg on the trophy a victory today will clinch the argument.

Both teams have been practicing daily for the last month and are in the best of shape physically. Numerous college, high school and independent stars of former years will be seen in each line-up.

Reports from the lair of the paddlers are said to be at the top of their stride and as their teams are somewhat weightier than their opponents and has just as good material in its makeup those on the inside were not the least bit shy about predicting a victory.

As there is only one local football game scheduled for Washington outside of the rivermen's battle, a large crowd should be on hand for the annual clash.

Paul Magoffin, former Michigan University star, will referee the contest; Lieut. Harmon, of Bethany, will umpire, and Edward Sutton, of George Washington, will act as head linesman. Two 15 and two 12-minute periods will be played.

COLLEGE ELEVENS SEE ACTION TODAY ON ALIEN FIELDS

Georgetown, Maryland, And Gallaudet Play Away; Others Idle.

For the first time this season Saturday dawned with no college football game on local fields.

Three Washington elevens are appearing on foreign ground and the other two are not slated for action, choosing rather to devote all of their time to preparation for their Thanksgiving Day game.

Georgetown hopes to return to the form shown before the game with Georgia Tech against Boston College in Boston today. The Hilltoppers have been put through a hard grind to prepare them for this contest. Johnny McQuade, who didn't get into action in Atlanta because of his injured arm, is reported to be ready to play in today's game. The Hilltoppers will miss the services of Rudy Comstock, star guard who is out with water on the knee. Sheehan is an able substitute for the veteran lineman, however.

Dope points to a Georgetown victory, despite the fact that the Bostonians have improved greatly since their scores tie with Fordham. With practically all of his regulars in shape again, Coach Curley Byrd sends his Maryland eleven against Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh today. Outweighed by the Sixbos, the College Parkers nevertheless hope to make a fine showing. They have been put next to the kinks and intricacies of the Carnegie Tech shift, which resembles that used by Chicago against Princeton. Gallaudet takes on the Drexel in-

Gallaudet Cage Prospects Bright; Lose One Veteran

Thirty Candidates Are Already Busy at Kendall Green.

With only one man, Bouchard, missing from last season's quintet and a host of new men out for the team, Gallaudet's prospects for a successful cage season are considered brighter by far than they have been in the last decade. Though Bouchard was considered one of the best guards in South Atlantic circles, the Kendall Greeners believe that Lahn, a holdover from last season, will more than fill his place. Lahn played in the early games last year and was in his way to a regular berth when he suffered a fracture of the collar-bone sustained in a late football scrimmage.

The Kendall Greeners' schedule is considerably shorter than it has been in recent years, but the class of teams to be met are, on the average, of high calibre. The high spots of the home games are two engagements with George Washington and one each with William and Mary and St. John's. Games with Susquehanna and Davis-Elkins colleges are pending as are prospective engagements with four Northern college quints.

Capt. LaFontaine, guard; Baynes, center; Boatwright and Seipp, forwards, and Lahn, guard, form the nucleus for the coming season. In addition to these, thirty new candidates have reported and have been going through light drills daily for the last two weeks. As soon as football is over the squad will probably be enlarged to fifty. Coach Cooper says he will not make his first cut until the latter part of next month.

Following is the schedule, still incomplete: December 31 (open date); January 6, George Washington, away; January 11, William and Mary, at home; January 14, St. John's, at home; January 17, February 4 (open dates), February 11, Lebanon Valley, at home; February 17, George Washington, at home; February 25, St. John's at Annapolis.

Frat Men Want Game.

The Alpha Alpha Epsilon Fraternity quintet, which opened its season with a 23-to-11 victory over the Aurora A. C. this week is anxious to arrange games with teams of 17 and 18 years.

stitute eleven in Philadelphia with fair chances of success. George Washington beat the Philadelphia team by a topheavy score not long ago, and the Kendall Greeners distinguished themselves by playing the Hatchettes to a tie. Capt. Conroy has practically recovered from the injuries received in the game with George Washington, but Lagenberg in the backfield is still nursing bruises.

In the strongholds of the Hatchettes, and Catholic University there is much activity in preparation for the annual Turkey Day struggle. Coach Robb has revamped his entire team as a result of the defeat at the hands of Maryland and is expecting to put a much stronger machine in the field. One of the changes is that of using Lynch, star punter, at his old position, an end. Eberts is holding down the center job for the time being and doing it well. A bunch of Catholic players who saw action against Maryland will be sitting on the sidelines next Thursday.
